WHERE DISTINCTION HAS MEANING

With the Audubon Key section of Point Manalapan rapidly approaching completion, the fabled beauty of old Hypoluxo Island soon will be enhanced by a group of distinctive waterfront homes built for some of America's finest families.

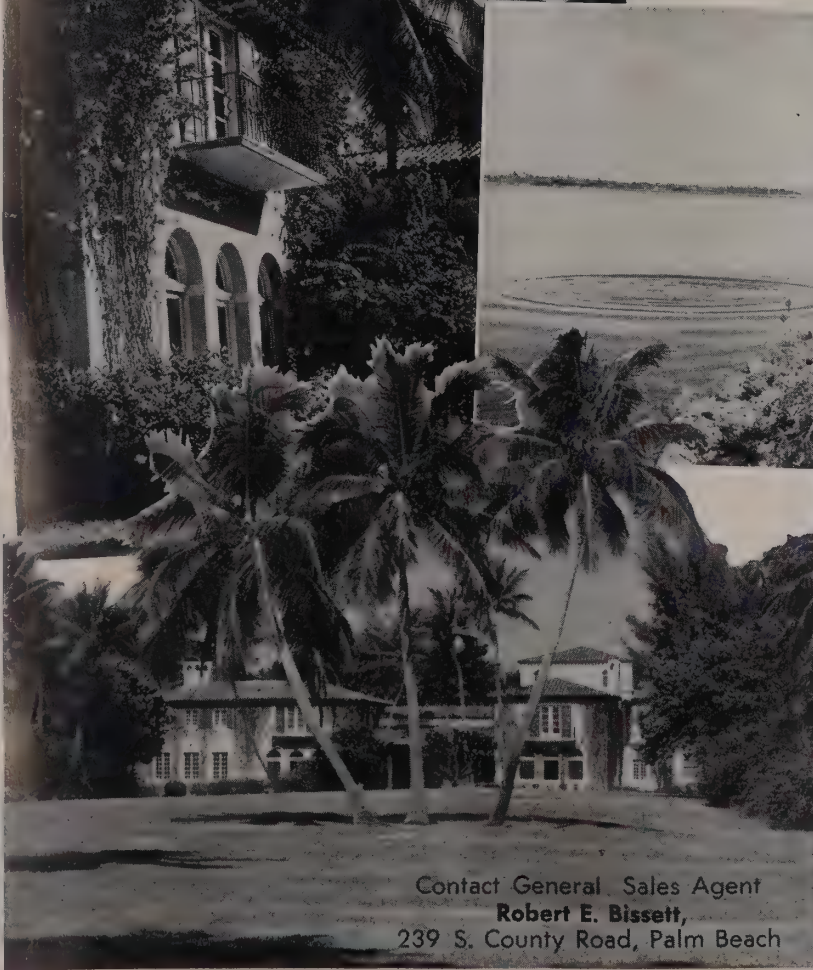

Because homesite availability in the Point Manalapan community, requires acceptance in the very desirable Manalapan Club, residents are assured neighbors of taste, culture and accomplishment. Practical, too, is the Point Manalapan community, for its plans include just about everything you consider necessary for Florida living with distinction.

Extremely wide waterways are your tree-lined avenues to the Ocean Inlet less than a mile away. The shops, clubs and restaurants of Palm Beach and Delray Beach are pleasantly convenient, as are six fine golf courses. Architectural control and rigid restrictions guarantee the value of your investment, as does the superbly engineered quality of our land improvements.

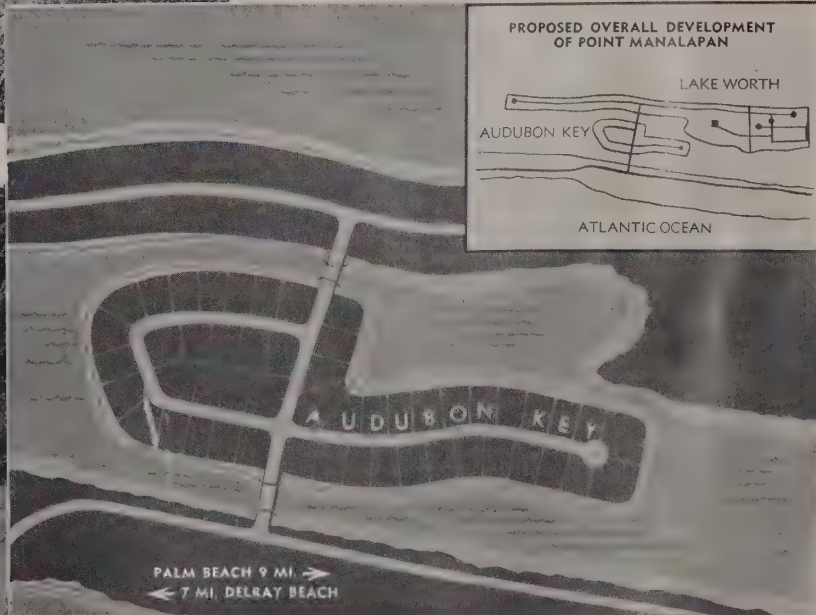

You will enjoy the short drive on A1A from Palm Beach, and you are cordially invited to visit Point Manalapan during its development stage as well as enjoy the charming Clubhouse grounds.

The Miami Herald

"A Florida development that is living up to its fanfare is Indian Lake Estates. Leon Ackerman is the Washington realtor who is creating the state's first private city on 7,000 acres. Last July, The Herald carried a story about this development. The verdict then: Indian Lake Estates was NOT in the misleading mail-order pattern."

The Christian Science Monitor

"Mr. Ackerman brings to his 15-square mile Indian Lake 'We-oh-ya-Kapka' the vision of an idealist combined with the get-up-and-go of a practical builder. He is here, there, and everywhere, directing the crews that are gradually building the community into a pattern that the eye can follow. It's fabulous even for Florida."

Private Country Club Community in Florida

So great has been the interest in this multi-million dollar, private country club community that it has attracted newspaper reporters from many states who have brought to their readers unbiased, on-the-scene reports of the continuing progress at Indian Lake Estates.

High above sea level (a gradually rising elevation from 64 to 115 feet) and away from enervating humidity, this beautiful lake property is close to both the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. The delightful, dry climate; the magnificent 15-square mile lake; the wide, white sand beach fringed with exotic palms; and the expert plans being carried out ahead of schedule make Indian Lake Estates the place you will want to see—and live—in Florida.

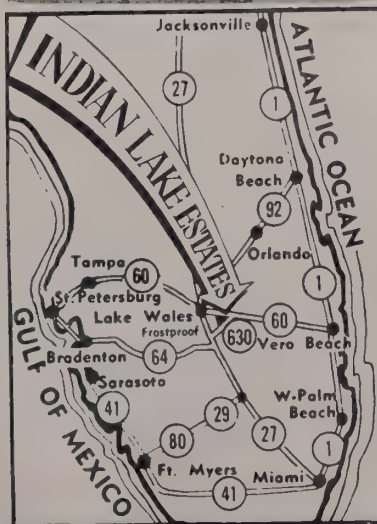

Miles of dual lane avenues have been paved and planted with majestic palm trees; the development is being extensively landscaped; the modern, beautiful club house is well underway; and the 18-hole golf course is also under construction. The 1,100-foot private pier, the longest fresh water pier in Florida, is completed, and more than one-half of the marina to accommodate 2,000 boats has been completed. All recreational facilities are being provided for the exclusive use of Indian Lake Club members, whose approval is a requisite for purchase. No effort is being spared to fulfill the plans designed for our ideal Country Club Community.

The Whitehall

IN PALM BEACH

Larry Borsten, General Manager

The Whitehall

By Christine de Marcellus

WITH THE OPENING of its thirty-second season, the magnificent Whitehall, overlooking Lake Worth in Palm Beach, has once again started its gay round of social events.

The social program for the Christmas season was gayer than usual, each day filled with activities for all ages. There was a continuous stream of parties and soirees for the adults and junior guests, while the children were kept constantly amused by special programs.

The holiday season got off to a good start with the Champagne Hour and Balloon Festival, featuring Verne Casanave and his Fred Astaire Dancers.

A bar-b-que and moonlit sail accompanied by the spirited music of a rock and roll band were among the first of many gala events. Later, in the lovely Marble Hall, the Management entertained at a cordial party followed by a concert featuring Baron Buika, international supper club and concert artist.

Christmas itself was made merry by a Hawaiian revue on Christmas Eve, and on Christmas Day by an eggnog party in the Marble Hall and at the Sun and Surf. This was followed by a show for the young in the ballroom, and an unusual show, "Youth on Parade," starring the Three Jays, for the adults.

The following day an old-fashioned Southern hoedown with Ezera Shuman and his Corn Cobblers was in true barn dance tradition.

From Trinidad came the South American touch with Lord Count and his revue giving a delightful calypso atmosphere.

The Guest Talent Night revealed initiative and esprit de corps, being thoroughly enjoyed.

The Grand Finale of the holiday season was a gala New Year's Eve show with all star entertainment featuring Joe E. Howard, Tina and Coco, and many others.

An active and well-rounded sports program is being enjoyed by the Whitehall guests. Golf tournaments, including the popular Father and Son Tournament, show keen competition on the Palm Beach Country Club course. During the holidays, the collegians and junior guests competed in tennis and swimming at the beautiful Sun and Surf Club.

The Whitehall's younger guests enjoyed the fun-filled days of their vacation. Dividing their time between swimming, boating, tennis, bingo, bicycle trips, bowling, ping-pong, jam sessions, beach parties, "Coketail" parties, and a tree-trimming party, each child's vacation was one to remember.

Mr. Larry Borsten is again manager of gracious Whitehall. Bob Murray is tennis pro and Miss Alicia Cuomo, swimming instructor at the Sun and Surf Club.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Sonabend are occupying their penthouse suite for the season. Mr. Sonabend is president of the Hotel Corporation of America, and President of the Whitehall. His other business activities include chairmanship of the board of Botany Mills and directorship of Columbia Pictures. Among Mr. Sonabend's many philanthropic and civic interests is the National Council of Christians and Jews, who presented him with their gold medal award for outstanding achievement last Fall.

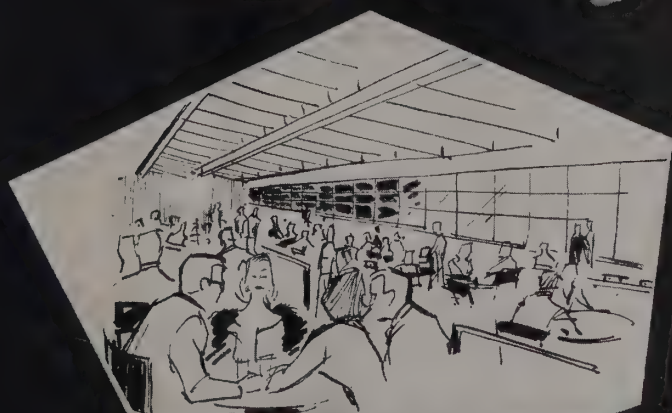

Among the other guests of the Whitehall during the holiday season were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Gryzmish, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Felt, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Shapiro and their son of New York; Mr. and Mrs. I. Salz, New York; Mrs. Charles Ginsberg, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Spector, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sacks, Paterson, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Schuman, Boston; Dr. and Mrs. Harry Sphiner and family, Boston; Mrs. Charles Hayes, New York; Mrs. M. UNEXCELLED CLUBHOUSE SERVICE

Palm Beach KENNEL CLUB

WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL GREYHOUND COURSE

JOHN E. BOGGIANO President

Ponte Vedra

By Madolyn Borum

WITH SUNNY SKIES OVERHEAD and warm sandy beach underfoot, the holidays at Ponte Vedra differed greatly from other sections of the country; however, as always, the festive spirit prevailed. All was happy and gay at The Inn and in the Cottage Colony.

It was a very busy season for the members of the Ponte Vedra Community Association. The first big event was the annual Turkey Tombstone Golf Tournament sponsored by the Women's Golf Association. First place winners were Mrs. Charles Hoffman and Howard Bissell with Mrs. Ben Park and Al Wittenburg coming in second. Mrs. Ding Butler and Jude Joseph won prizes for being closest to the pin on No. 16 and Mrs. Oliver Wipple and R. B. B. Wrixson were blind bogey winners. Much to their surprise Mrs. Henry Peiker and W. F. Peterson, a vacationer from Baltimore, carted away some unusual prizes. The very beautiful Golf Club was the setting for the presentations.

The Community Association's annual Christmas Dance was held in the Cactus Room at The Inn a few days prior to the 25th. Naturally, there were many Santas present but all were attired in formal dress. At the Children's Party at The Surf Club the following day there was only one Santa Claus, but, to the delight of the youngsters, he came in full regalia with red suit, rosy cheeks, black boots and a full pack. Somehow he seemed to know just what the small fry of Ponte Vedra desired most and this, of course, made the party a huge success.

Deane's Studio

The day after Christmas the Junior Members of the Association gathered at The Surf Club for a Tea Dance. This was quite a gay event with many prep schools and colleges over the nation represented. Miss Judy Gray served as co-chairman of this party while her mother, Mrs. Ronald Gray, assumed the duties of chairman.

264 SOUTH OCEAN BOULEVARD

A Gulf-front home in Port Royal

Galleon Drive, Lantern Lake section

Tropical landscaping abounds in Port Royal

Crowding cannot ever occur here!

Nor can guest-cottages be "rented" at Port Royal.

At least twenty-five feet of space must be allowed between structures at Port Royal. That may seem unduly mandatory, but it forever insures against cluttering encroachments.

Port Royal puts a premium on spaciousness.

The same quality endures at the water's edge. Your boat can dock at the foot of your lawn with ease—a convenience that is rare.

Port Royal waterways, incidentally, are wide and deep and ocean-going—winding streams, no square canals. Accessible as the boulevards and estates which they border.

The Port Royal Story

Port Royal was conceived by a perfectionist. The resulting creation is a highly protected residential area forming a peninsula on the Gulf of Mexico. It comprises most of the southern part of the attractive city of Naples, on Florida's famed Gulf Coast.

Here on all sides is the charm of the unencumbered. Each dwelling site embraces a wide, attractive water-front...affording unusual space for the private docking of pleasure craft.

Dock Your Boat In Your Garden: The graceful waterways of Port Royal serve as beautiful approaches to the homes along their banks. The land is the highest above sea level, facing on navigable waters, in the entire vicinity.

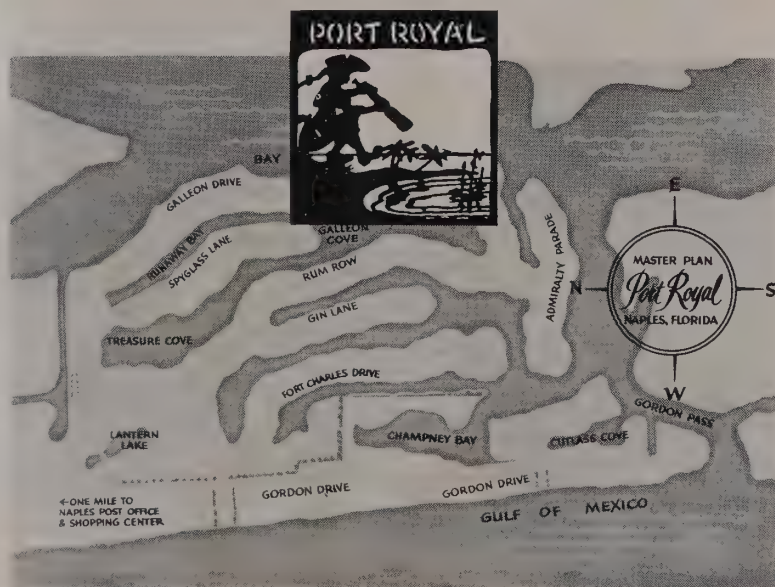

Two Beach Clubs: Two private beaches on the Gulf of Mexico, comprising long stretches of white tropical sand, are the joint exclusive property of Port Royal residents.

Golf At Hole-in-the-Wall: Hole-in-the-Wall is a newly completed 200-acre golf course, and there is none finer in all of Florida. Its 18 holes were laid out by Dick Wilson, famous in his field the world over. The club is within a few minutes of Port Royal.

Palm-lined Thoroughfares: Paved streets with tropical landscaping traverse Port Royal. Naples city water...the finest in Florida...together with all utilities, are available throughout each area for all residents.

For Your Protection: Port Royal residents are well-bred people, of discriminating taste. They have built beautiful homes of character with complete assurance that no other kind will ever be built nearby. To this end, the founders of Port Royal exercise vigilant control over all building design in the area. And conditions of ownership are as meticulous as in the most exclusive country clubs.

Guests at The Inn found the holidays to be enjoyable in every respect. Ponte Vedra's General Manager, Luther N. Grimes, served as host at the festive Christmas Eve party in the Lounge. The Yule logs burned brightly as carols were sung around the stately tree. After gifts were distributed, many attended midnight services at various churches in the area.

Then on Christmas Day, residents of Ponte Vedra joined the guests for Open House at The Inn. This affair is now traditional at this resort and one of the most enjoyable of the year.

During the Fall Ponte Vedra's Golf Cottage was the setting of a very wonderful family reunion. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Peterson

That Elizabeth Arden. Never satisfied. Endlessly fussing to make things better. Now she's really done it. Dreamed up "New Fashion", the new color that adds a lively glow to the quiet beiges and browns . . . ignites the classic blacks! Here it is in Click-change, the refill case that saves tempers and money. One twist and the used lipstick clicks out. Another twist and the refill clicks in. No messy hands. No scooping out. No squeezing in. Try "New Fashion", the new color created with that rich, creamy texture, so lasting, so lustrous, so gentle to the lips, so exclusively Elizabeth Arden, in Click-change, the new lipstick. of Baltimore, were joined by children and grandchildren for the celebration of their 40th wedding anniversary. Included in this family group were Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. William Peterson, Mrs. A. W. Brewster and Mrs. Robert Fisher. Grandchildren present were Billie, Peggy, Laura Gibbs, Carrie, and Ann Peterson and Nan, Wicky and Andre Brewster, Jr. Another special event took place during their Ponte Vedra holiday as Miss Nan Brewster celebrated her birthday. This, of course, was a gala occasion enjoyed by the entire family.

Anyone visiting Ponte Vedra feels that every day is a holiday with golf, tennis, swimming and all the other activities that are scheduled. Guests during the Fall included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rambusch of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Harold N. Bross of Montclair, New Jersey; Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Skilling and son of Webster Grove, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Daley and son of Dearborn, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. James M. Slattery, of Mespeth, L. I., New York; Mr. and Mrs. George Gibson, of New York City; Dr. and Mrs. William H. M. Weaver, honeymooners from Macon, Georgia; Henry Brightwell, of Hamden, Connecticut; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moffitt and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Heineman, of Pittsburgh.

Even though the snow is covering sections of the North at present, there is Spring in the air at Ponte Vedra. The camellias are in full bloom with azaleas beginning to show the bright reds and fuchsias that make this resort such a scenic spot in Florida and the ideal vacationland.

Palm Beach Society

By Wilma Spencer

THE HOLIDAY SEASON was a busy one in Palm Beach, with the young folks who were away in college or boarding school vacationing with their parents.

Many resorters came down earlier than usual this season.

Congresswoman Frances (Mrs. Chester C.) Bolton spent several weeks at "Casa Apava," her oceanfront home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Balcom, who were at "Windsong," their home on Pelican Lane, for the early season, have gone to Sun Valley, Idaho, for two months of skiing. Later, they will go to Europe for the Spring skiing in Val d'Isere, France, Klosters, Switzerland, and perhaps Zurs, Austria. Mrs. Balcom's daughter, Miss Lucile Vanderbilt, joined them in Sun Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rasmussen are occupying their new home on Woodbridge Road this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O. Edwards arrived at their home on South Ocean Boulevard early in December after spending the Fall months in Europe.

Comdr. and Mrs. John M. L. Rutherford are occupying their Winter home on North Lake Trail following a Summer at Sands Point, L. I.

Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., has arrived at her home, "Southways," on Barton Avenue.

The Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen of Morristown, N. J., and New York City are occupying their home, "Casa Primavera," on El Bravo Way.

Edward T. Howe is residing at Monterey Road for the season. During the Summer he took a North Cape cruise and later was a guest of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge at her home in Windsor, England. Mr. Howe also attended a houseparty during the Summer at Mrs. Merriweather Post's Summer camp at Upper St. Regis Lake, N. Y.

William Howard Bell arrived in mid-December from New York to spend the season at his oceanfront home.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Howerdd and their daughter, Miss Mary Jo Howerdd, are occupying their home on Via Del Mar following a Summer at Sapphire Valley in the North Carolina mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boardman Milliken of Kings Road also spent part of the Summer at Sapphire Valley. Earlier in the Summer they took a motor trip through the New England states and into Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas opened their Winter home, "Casa del Sur," on South Ocean Boulevard early in December, following the Summer in Europe. They were joined during the holidays by Mrs. Cernadas' daughter, Miss Suzanne Townsend, a student at Wheaton College, and Suzanne's brother, Peter Townsend, who attends the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean of South

Ocean Boulevard were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Beard of Oklahoma City, Okla. Mr. Beard attends Oklahoma University.

After a Summer at their country place, "Emerald Springs," in Springfield, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Duvall are at their oceanfront home.

Miss Anita Kay came down from New York to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Kay, at their home on El Vedado Road.

Mrs. Frederick E. Guest came down from Roslyn, L. I., for her annual stay at "Villa Artemis," North County Road.

Admiral Jesse B. Oldendorf (ret.) and Mrs. Oldendorf, who have been residing in Spain for most of the past year, enjoyed a holiday stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Earl on South Ocean Boulevard.

Mrs. Audrey Emery, who formerly resided in Palm Beach, came down from Charlottesville, Va., for the holidays with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ilyinsky and family, at their home on Queens Lane.

Senator and Mrs. Errett Lobban Cord of Reno, Nevada, came South shortly before Christmas. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hummel of Boston, Mass., and the Cord's younger daughter, Miss Susan Cord, a student at Stanford University, were with them for the holidays.

Among those arriving early in December were Mr. and Mrs. Myron Taylor of New York, who are residing at their home on South Ocean Boulevard.

Mrs. Horace E. Dodge is at the Everglades Club for the season, where her granddaughter, Miss Diana Dodge of Schenectady, N. Y., and her grandson, David Dodge of Arizona, were her guests for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer Jr. of South Lake Trail, were joined by Mrs. Pulitzer's sister, Miss Marie M. McKim of New York.

Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien is residing at her home on Adam Road after a Summer in Europe.

John E. Gefaell has arrived from New York and is residing on Worth Avenue.

FAREWELLS are almost as much a part of the Washington scene as visitors and the departure of Australia's popular Ambassador and Lady Spender to Sir Percy's post on the International Court of Justice at The Hague sparked a three-months' long procession of hail-and-farewell parties. One of the most impressive was a gay dinner dance hosted by former U.S. Ambassador to Australia, now Deputy Assistant to the President and Mrs. Amos Peaslee. Scene was the swank Sulgrave Club where 64 guests found places at tables designated by steps in Sir Percy's career — among them Sidney, Canberra, Washington, U.N. and The Hague. Each lady found at her place a card tied to a split of champagne designating the gentleman who would share each of the five courses of dinner with her. There was dancing between courses to Sidney's music, a surprise birthday cake for the hostess, Dorothy Peaslee, and champagne toasts by Sir Percy and the host.

A well-known company lingered to the wee hours in the glowing Peaslee hospitality. First dance to "Beautiful Lady" found petite and blonde Lady Spender in rich red satin twirling with Greek Ambassador Melas. Blue-eyed Mrs. Peaslee, wearing crystal-encrusted ice blue faille, danced first with her husband. Others included the German Ambassador and Mme. Krekeler, Italian Amba-

Music was the reason for one of the season's elegant supper parties given by the French Ambassador, Herve Alphan, following the Philadelphia Symphony Concert in Washington's Constitution Hall. Guests of honor were the distinguished conductor and Mrs. Eugene Ormandy and the soloist, violinist Zino Francescatti and Mme. Francescatti.

Other guests found places as they chose which gave a happy, informal note to the black-tie event.

Top French dishes included creamed mushrooms, breast of chicken, sliced beef en gelee and cherries jubilee. Enjoying same were the Assistant to the President and Mrs. Sherman Adams, National Symphony Conductor and Mrs. Howard Mitchell, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Johnston, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Magnuson, Assistant Treasury Secretary and Mrs. James P. Hendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McClintock, General and Mrs. Wade Haislip, Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson, Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Carmichael, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cox, the John Simmons, the Myron Cowens, Mme.

LEADING the Luncheon Parade was a brilliant noonday salute to the wife of the new Secretary of Defense, Mrs. Neil McElroy, given by Mrs. Wilbur Brucker, the Army Secretary's wife.

Over 50 ladies reported in to the Officers Club at Fort Myer. Clara Brucker, a clever hostess, was disappointed but not dismayed at the interference of "Old Man Flu" which kept her honor guest, Mrs. McElroy, at home. Choosing a charming "pinch hitter," visiting Mrs. Reuben Robertson of Cincinnati, wife of the former Deputy Defense Secretary, Mrs. Brucker went ahead as planned.

First there was "advice to official wives" gained by Mrs. Brucker's three and a half years in Washington, which she hoped guests would carry to Mrs. McElroy — "have a good sense of humor, know how to work, learn the art of small talk and don't take yourself too seriously." There was a special program by the famous Army chorus featuring a song to the absent honor guest. Set to the "My Fair Lady" tune, "I'm Getting Married in the Morning," it was a plea from Defense Department wives to Mrs. McElroy to use her influence to shorten hours:

"We'd like to make a small suggestion
Just so our lives can be sublime
While Neil is guiding missiles,
Our lives are bowls of thistles,
'Cause our men have to work,
And we all have to wait,
So please, please
Try to get him home on time."

Enjoying the fun and a delectable luncheon at holiday-decked tables were Ambassadorial wives: Lady Spender, Mme. Yang, Senhora Esteves Fernandez, and Lady Caccia. Cabinet wives included Mrs. Summerfield, Mrs. Seaton, Mrs. Weeks and Mrs. Mitchell. Mrs. Maxwell Taylor, wife of the Army Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Arleigh Burke, wife of the Naval Operations Chief, were in the company, and the wife of the Air Force Chief of Staff Mrs. Thomas D. White.

Others included Mrs. Donald Quarles, Mrs. Allen Dulles, Mrs. Dewey Short, Mrs. Homer Gruenther, Mrs. Floyd Bryant, Mrs. Murray Snyder, Mrs. Percival Brundage, Mrs. Robert Le Baron and Mrs. Harold Baker.

Well-known generals' wives attending were Mrs. Walter Bedell Smith, Mrs. Lyman Lemnitzer, Mrs. G. D. Erskine, Mrs. Wade Haislip, Mrs. William Arnold, Mrs. John G. Van Houten and a number more.

The Palm Beach Towers

THE PALM BEACH TOWERS is beginning its second year. Formerly an apartment hotel, it has been redesigned into a hotel. However, at least half of the residents make it their year-round home, except for trips during the Summer.

Emmett Conniff has been appointed manager of The Palm Beach Towers. He has brought with him his lovely bride, the former Virginia Brennan of Denver, Colo. Purely coincidental, Mr. Conniff's sister, Mrs. Thomas Sheeche and Mr. Sheeche were among the first to lease an apartment at The Towers. Their brother is Frank Conniff, national editor of the Hearst newspapers, who just returned from a trip to Russia with William Randolph Hearst Jr. and Bob Considine.

No newcomer to Florida, Emmett Conniff was at the Casa Marina in Key West for ten years. His daughter, Andrea, is attending Rosarian Academy, and Mrs. Conniff's son, Jimmy Sullivan, is a student at Andover, Mass.

Among distinguished guests recently at The Palm Beach Towers were Hon. and Mrs. Dewey Short (he is Assistant Secretary of the Army), Judge and Mrs. Craig Starbuck Atkins (he is in the Tax Court of the United States in Washington), and Hon. and Mrs. William Edwin Hall, who live at the Carlton House in New York City.

Among those who have visited The Palm Beach Towers during the pre-season period were Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Rider of Los Angeles, Calif., who were accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Movius. Others have been William Gregory 3rd of New York City, John P. Egan of Pittsburgh and San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Dockson of Grosse Pointe, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Peacock of Chicago, who are returning shortly, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Lavino 2d of Philadelphia.

Foreign visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. Hells Astrup and Niels Werring from Lysaker, Oslo; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warfield Jr. and sons, Richard and Robert, of Caracas Venezuela. Mr. Warfield's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warfield Sr., live in Palm Beach.

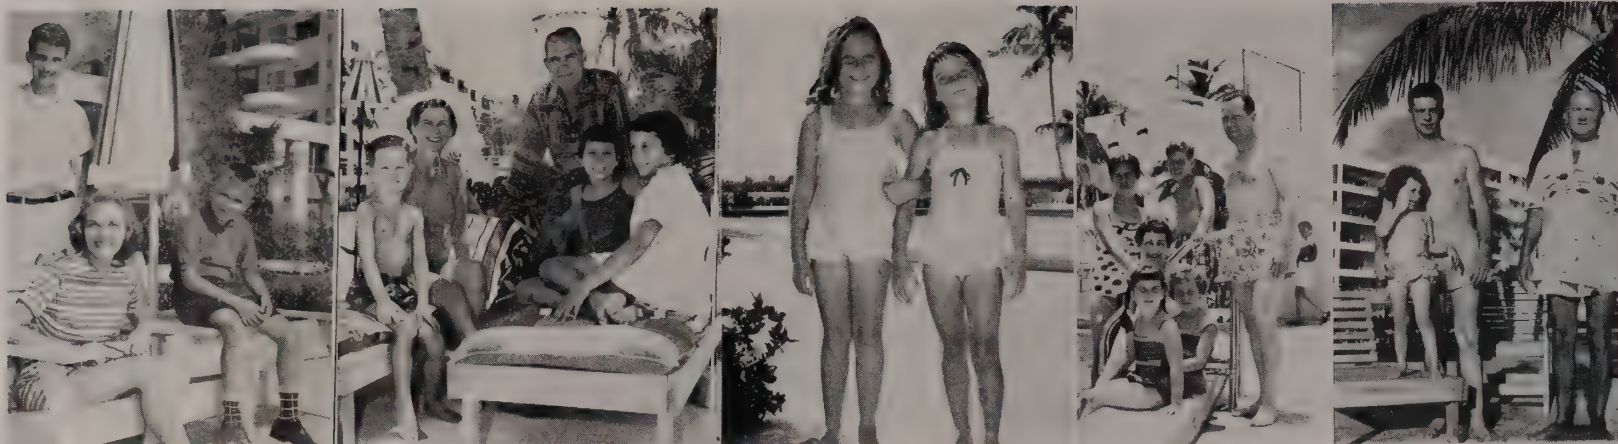

From Cuba were Mr. and Mrs. Luis Rodriguez, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Adan, Manuel Carmon de Padilla, Mrs. Carmen Amerro, Tony Cutierrez, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Morales. Mr. Morales is now Cuban Consul at Key West. His daughter, Margarita, is a student at the Graham-Eckes School in Palm Beach.

The Palm Beach Towers has also attracted Canadians — among them were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Slattery, Charles Laurent and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rose.

From the left, first, Senora Marquez De Marfield and sons, Richard and Robert, of Caracas, Venezuela. Mrs. Warfield's husband, Robert Warfield Jr., accompanied them. Mr. Warfield's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warfield Sr., live in Palm Beach. Second, Hon. and Mrs. Dewey Short. Mr. Short is Assistant Secretary of Defense. Third, Mrs. Clarence Movius (left) with Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Ryder of Los Angeles. Fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Slattery, Westmount, Quebec, Canada. Fifth, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clayton, Wilbraham, Mass.

From the left, first: Mrs. William Jones of Hazelhurst, Miss., with sons, Billy Day and Tommy. Second, Dr. and Mrs. George Kirkland, Durham, N. C., with their children, Kirk, Judy and Gini Sue. They were guests of Mrs. Kirkland's sister, Mrs. Paul Krich and Mr. Krich, who are year-round residents of the Palm Beach Towers. Third, Shana and Tedana Clark, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark of New York City. Fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McManus and children, Jane Ellen and Rosalind, and (rear) Judy and Shields. Fifth, John R. Kohl of Washington, D. C., with daughter, Renee, and father-in-law, Edward G. Pisotte of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Numerous members of the Palm Beach Cottage Colony now call The Towers home. These include Mrs. Charles Francis Coe, Mrs. John Benton, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Horton Bath, Mrs. Leigh Wrightson Bowles, Mrs. Pauline Rowe de Coataudon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John Maibach, Mr. Nathan Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, Mr. and Mrs. George Carnegie, Mr. Clemens Hoppe, Mrs. Shirley Vigard, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Holder, Miss Frances Marie Bardill, Mr. Thevor Howell, Mr. and Mrs. James McGann and many others.

The Poinciana Room of The Palm Beach Towers, operated by Al Green of Grosse Pointe, Mich., was deemed too small last season and has been remodeled to create two terraces, one on each side of the main room, to comfortably seat 350.

A smart new Keyboard Lounge has been opened, so named for the keyboard bar around the piano.

From the left, the year-round residents of The Palm Beach Towers are Mr. and Mrs. John Fellows, formerly of New York City. Second, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Druker of Boston, Mass. Third, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Horton Bath, formerly of Washington, D. C. Fourth, Mrs. Gladys Foss, formerly of Delray, now a year-round resident. Fifth, Mrs. Irene Brailsford, another year-round resident.

At The Palm Beach Towers. First, Mr. and Mrs. John McLaughlin of Cincinnati, Ohio, were guests at the apartment of Mr. McLaughlin's uncle, Ronald Bechtel of Sandusky, Ohio, with their children, John Jr., Christopher, Megan and Timothy. Second, Mary Ann Maines, with her sister, Charlene, and brother Mark, children of Charles Maines. Three, a trio of golfers from Baltimore, Md., from the left, Bill Collins, John Bass and Robert Collins. Fourth, Rudolph Mjorud is a test pilot from Los Angeles now living at The Towers.

First, Frequent Nassau visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Charteris of Lantana, Fla. Mr. Charteris is the author of the popular "Saint" mystery stories. Second, actor Richard Carlson and Mrs. Carlson. Third, Mr. Duncan M. Forlong of Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. Forlong.

Fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Alejandro De Tomaso. Mrs. De Tomaso is the former Isabelle Haskell of Palm Beach and Red Bank, N. J. Fifth, Mr. Roger Wing of Chevy Chase, Md., and Mr. Steve Spitler of Bethesda, Md. Mr. Spitler placed first in his class in the race.

NASSAU'S SOCIAL TEMPO is at a pace akin to the speeding sports cars which made international headlines at the new race course on Oakes Field. More than 125 entries, some of the fastest machines and most skilled drivers of the racing world, participated in the Fourth Annual Nassau Trophy Road Races in early December.

Sharing the spotlight right from the beginning was Stirling Moss, sports car driver from Nassau and London, England. With him came his bride of a few months, the Ocean Race for power boats partied while waiting to receive their trophies.

Handsome Lance Reventlow, his manager Warren Olson with drivers Bruce Kessler and Charles Daigh, all from the Beverly Hills and Los Angeles area, were among the early arrivals at the Royal Victoria. With his increased crew, Lance raced two entries in Nassau this year, a new Cooper flown to Nassau from England and a Maserati.

The crowd descended on the quaint Wind-sor Hotel for the second cocktail party. The former Isabelle Haskell of the prominent Haskell family in New York City and Palm Beach. Havana, Cuba, was represented by Julio Batista, while Antonio Izquierdo arrived from Bogota, Colombia.

A "Welcome to Nassau" party was given at the popular Pilot House Club. While the Esso steel band from Trinidad played captivating rhythms, the world's ultimate in racing exchanged notes in the newly enlarged club patio.

Party sparklers were racer Peter Collins, now of Italy, with his attractive wife, former actress Louise King. Brian Naylor, one of England's top drivers, and William Sadler, designer of the Sadler Special from Toronto, Ont., hobnobbed with Donald Healey of and Nassau. Mr. Hil, driving a Ferrari, won the Governor's Trophy Race, placed third in the 250-Mile Nassau Trophy Race, and won a five-lap heat. Mr. Moss won the Nassau Memorial Trophy Race and the 250-Mile Nassau Trophy Race, placed third in his class in the Nassau Tourist Trophy Race, fourth overall in the Governor's Trophy Race and four overall in a five-lap heat. Fifth, sports car racer Mr. Masten Gregory, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., now of Rome, Italy. He won the 102-Mile Nassau Tourist Trophy Race driving a Maserati. He was second in his class in the Governor's Trophy Race, and third in his class in a five-lap heat.

former Katie Molson of Toronto, Ont. With their carefree, international clique they enhanced the sparkle of the evening cocktail parties and days at the track.

Katie's look-alike, racer Ruth Levy from Hollywood, Calif., flirted with danger and Sweden's bearded racers Ulf Norinder and Joakim Bonnier.

The first party, poolside at the Royal Victoria Hotel, was a tremendous success to launch an exciting Speed Weeks program. Not only were the sports car enthusiasts on hand, but participants in the Miami-Nassau third night the native Junkanoo Club overflowed with revelers. Mr. and Mrs. David Darrin of Roseland, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Art Bunker of Kansas City, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Stiles of Palm Beach were among those trying the calypso beat.

All eyes focused on the Mexico City's famed Rodriguez brothers, Ricardo and Pedro, youthful racers who, with their sister Conchita, covered the dance floor in true Spanish style.

From Buenos Aires, Argentina, came Alejandro de Tomaso with his wife, the Healey Motors in London, and trophy collector Masten Gregory. The latter has recently moved his family from Kansas City to Italy.

Drivers raced to the south side of New Providence Island for cocktails at the plush Coral Harbour Club. Here Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones of Hollywood, Calif., and Jack McAfee of Sherman Oaks, Calif., chatted with pert Velva von Kaesborg and her husband, Lek, of Redlands, Calif.

Luedeke of Buffalo, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crawford of Northfield, Ill., and Carroll Shelby of Dallas, Texas, were merry-makers in the tropical setting.

End of the week cocktail parties were held at the Fort Montagu Beach, Emerald Beach and British Colonial Hotels. The Fourth Annual Motor Ball, under the patronage of His Excellency The Governor of the Bahamas, Sir Raynor Arthur, and Lady Arthur, took place in the main dining room of the swank British Colonial Hotel.

Peppy racer Denise McCluggage of New York City was squired by driver Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif. Among the ball guests were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schechter of Miami, Fla.; Marty Malarkey of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. John Mull of Malvern, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John von Neumann of Hollywood, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dorr of Miami; John Moore of London and Nassau.

Others included Tom Newcomer of Overland Park, Kansas; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Orr of Kentfield, Calif.; Col. and Mrs. Robert Kuhn of Fairborn, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs.

Charles Wallace of Washington, D. C., and Carl Haas of Lincolnwood, Ill.

Stafford L. Sands, chairman of the Bahamas Development Board, presented the trophies (in the Governor's absence because of illness) with the help of Capt. Sherman F. "Red" Crise, chairman of the Competitions Committee. Red's hard working wife, Evelyn, one of the backbones of Speed Weeks, got the good sportsmanship award.

Major winners of the gleaming silver trophies were Masten Gregory, who won the Nassau Tourist Trophy Race, Ed Crawford and Phil Hill. Each drove to first place in their class in the Governor's Trophy Race. Stirling Moss won the Nassau Memorial Trophy Race and the Nassau Trophy Race. Curtis Turner of Roanoke, Va., won the Grand Touring Race, and Denise McCluggage won the Ladies Race.

Phil Hill also won a five lap heat. Ed Crawford won a five lap heat and the Porsche Race. James Orr won a mixed race of Bristols and Healeys in a Bristol with Phil Stiles leading the Healey parade and fifth overall.

Boris Said of Pound Ridge, N. Y., was the handicap winner of both the Nassau Trophy Race and the Governor's Cup Race.

Nassau Power Boat Race

Sirens, boat whistles, and even a gun went off at the Nassau Yacht Haven the night of November 27 to welcome Doodle III, winner of the second annual Miami-Nassau Ocean Power Boat Race.

"Doodle 'dood' it again!" was the cry at the Pilot House Club headquarters as spectators and participants relaxed in tropical surroundings waiting for the other boats to come in. Owner of last year's winner Doodle II and this year's Doodle III, James F. Breuil of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Miami Beach, Fla., and skipper Sam Griffith of Miami Beach, who built the 35-footer, were met by their enthusiastic wives.

Racing into the harbor for second place was Tooky, skippered by owner Forest E. Johnson of Miami, Fla. On board with him were Dave Craig and Cyril Nottage, also of Miami.

Mr. Sutherland placed fourth in his class in the Nassau Tourist Trophy Race in his Austin-Healey. Fifth, Mr. Carroll Shelby of Dallas, Texas, who placed third overall in the Governor's Trophy Race and second overall in the 250-mile race.

Crystaliner breezed in for third place with co-owners Don Mucklow and Gordon Hoover weather beaten and wet, but holding their own on the bumpy Gulf Stream crossing. Waiting at the pier to greet them were Gordon's wife and his mother, Mrs. Dorothy White of Sunset Island II, Miami Beach.

As each boat came in, the weary but jubilant contestants and their greeters headed for the Pilot House Club, where the cozy dining and bar area turned into an unofficial welcoming and cheering area.

New Bahamas Airport Opened

Although, with the opening of the fabulous new Nassau International Airport, the Bahamas are ready for the jet age, the leisurely island pace remains the same.

In celebration of the airport opening Frank H. Christie, Chairman of the Airports Board, with his attractive wife, Francise, and the Christies were Donald V. Lowe, chairman of the New York Port Authority, with his wife, and Col. and Mrs. Joseph Mackey of Fort Lauderdale. Col. Mackey is president of Mackey Airlines.

Others in the group of over 200 spotted sampling the delectable tropical dishes were O. W. Campbell, Manager of Dade County, Fla.; Frank J. Sakser, Director of Airports, Palm Beach County, Fla.; N. H. P. Vesey, Hamilton, Bermuda; Ralph Kelly, Commissioner of Customs, Washington, D. C.; Ira F. Willard, City Manager of Coral Gables, Fla., and Mayor and Mrs. Harry A. Brown of Bal Harbour Village, Fla.

The Social Whirl

August newlyweds Leslie and Harry Cruickshank were hosts for one of the first social get-together cocktail parties of the Season. Many of Nassau's chic mink and sable turned out to meet the guest of honor, handsome Peter Carter of London, Eng.

The cry of the evening was, "When did you get back to Nassau?" Mrs. Robert H. "Babs" Holt had her houseguest, Lady Orr-Lewis, in tow chatting with Mr. and Mrs. Noel Crowe and E. James Kenney.

Fervent calypso lovers, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy hunted down the native beat which came from a native band almost hidden in the seaside foliage with the moonlight waters serving as a magical backdrop. Mr.

Fifth, at the Pilot House Club are Mr. David Cunningham of Miami, Joakim Bonnier of Stockholm, Sweden, Mrs. Stirling Moss, racer Ruth Levy, and Mr. Ulf Norinder, also of Stockholm.

Harold G. Christie, greeted guests at Cascadilla, the latter's captivating home in Nassau.

A native band beat out rhythms until the arrival of His Excellency the Governor, Sir Raynor Arthur, K.C.M.G., C.V.O., and his party, when everyone stood at attention to "God Save the Queen." U.S. Congressman Paul Rogers of Washington, D. C., and West Palm Beach, Fla., Mayor Kenneth Oka of Miami Beach, Fla., and Mayor John V. Russell of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., were among those greeted by the Governor.

Revelers at Cascadilla followed a string of colored lights from the cocktail terrace down a garden pathway through the tropical growth and night-blooming jasmine to a large open area where a buffet table was spread and numerous small tables were arranged, each boasting miniature Union Jack and Stars and Stripes flags.

Among those at the Governor's table with Bahamas anglers made ready for the season.

Checking for the password and tickets at the entrance was Miss Beverly Brice, who spearheaded the fund-raising party, with other willing helpers, including Mrs. Peter Newcomb and Mrs. G. A. "Peter" Bethell.

The delectable chowder, other courses and liquid refreshments were donated by club members. Charlie Freeman, Michael Lightbourn and Jimmie Robertson must have sprouted at least two extra hands each for their work behind the bar.

Among those choosing to dine perched on the stone wall by the water's edge were Mr. and Mrs. Don Delahey, Mr. and Mrs. Benson McDermott, Miss Shirley Oakes with R. H. "Bobby" Symonette, the American Consul, Temple Wanamaker with his wife Sophia, Mrs. Ulli Lillas, and William Turtle.

Commander and Mrs. Hollie Judd formed a cozy circle with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Potter and Mrs. E. G. P. St. George and Harold G. Christie sampled hors d'oeuvres with island newcomers, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rubbra of Montreal, Que.

Sir Oswald and Lady Bancroft paused between refreshments with Chief Justice Sir Guy and Lady Henderson. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noad compared notes with Mr. and Mrs. Barnie Black and Mrs. Betty Sproule. Miss Beverly Brice arrived with her sister, Mrs. Charles Bechtell, while Mr. and Mrs. Basil McKinney circulated through the glittering party goers.

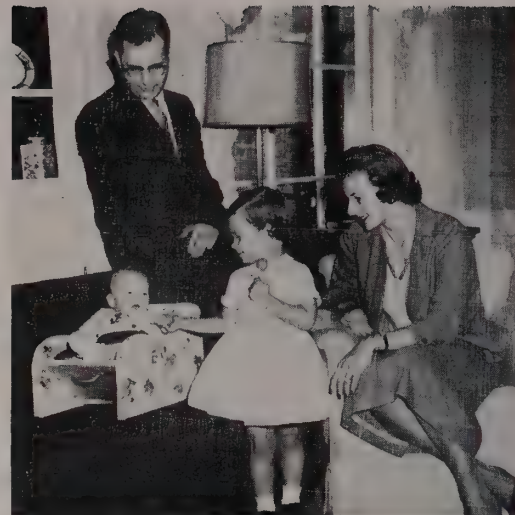

Before their marriage, Mrs. Cruickshank was the widow of Joseph Whiteside Boyle of Nassau and New York. She is the daughter of Alexander Bunyan of West Palm Beach, Fla. Mr. Cruickshank, formerly with the Canadian Bank of Commerce in London, Eng., is now manager of the Nassau branch.

THE HOMESTEAD

By Joan Burczyk

WINTER AT THE HOMESTEAD in Hot Springs, Virginia, is still another delightful season in the Warm Springs Valley.

Occasionally the usually verdant mountain-side is blanketed with trillions of snowflakes glistening in the warm Winter sun.

It is a time for a brisk canter through the miles of winding trails on The Homestead's 17,000 acre estate; for a carriage drive, for an invigorating swim in the warm mineral waters of the indoor pool, a round of golf on The Homestead Course, a set of tennis on the all-weather courts, just basking in the unseasonably warm sun on the sun deck, or reading a favorite book on a deck chair on the white pillared porch.

Temperatures are mild during the Winter months in Virginia and The Homestead offers the same unsurpassed service and atmosphere which delights people from all over the world during all the seasons.

A Winter vacation can be fun for all the family in Hot Springs: honeymooners, people who are in need of a spa vacation, or those just wanting a restful few days or weeks away from the hustle of the city.

Tea, served every afternoon in the magnificent white columned Great Hall, in front of the blazing fireplaces, is a Homestead tradition. There is always a concert at tea time.

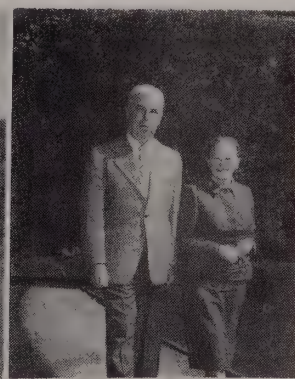

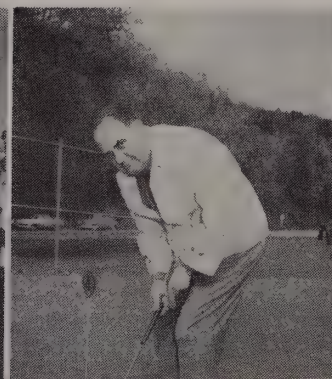

A pleasant Winter evening can begin with a cocktail in The Homestead Club, a lavish dinner from The Homestead's wonderful kitchens in the lovely Empire Room, a first run movie in The Homestead Theatre, then dancing till midnight in the beautiful Crystal Room — or if you prefer, a game of bridge in the Garden Room.

For the occasional days when the weather is inclement, the Game Room in the Spa Building features badminton, pool, ping-pong, shuffleboard, billiards or smash ball. One can also have a game of bridge, canasta or backgammon in one of the cozy lounges or the Great Hall.

The ninety-eight-acre palm studded Round Hill Peninsula overlooks Round Hill Bay on one side and Montego Bay on the other with the Great Hall in the center of the Estate directly in the foreground.

EVERY YEAR new resorts open all over the world, which according to advance billing, are destined to become the smartest gathering places of international society. Few are able to live up to the advance notices, but one that has made it is Round Hill, eight miles west of Montego Bay, Jamaica, B.W.I.

Round Hill, in fact, may be said to be the brightest meteor to flash across the resort horizon in many a decade. Now, four years after its opening it has, unlike a meteor, stayed on to become one of the brightest stars in the world of glittering resorts.

Thirty-one year old John Pringle, recently dubbed by society's historian, Cleveland Amory, as a social umpire in a resort empire, sparked Round Hill in 1953 when he gathered together a group of international socialites seasoned with a sprinkling of celebrities to become shareholders in paradise on this palm-studded 98 acre peninsula jutting out into the sea. Topped off by a rounded hill, it was here overlooking Round Hill Bay on one side and Montego Bay on the other, that the Spaniards first defended themselves against the English and later the English against all comers.

Now there are three rambling hotel units and 25 posh individual cottages, which are rented as hotel units when the owners are not in residence.

The shareholders in this enterprise have become legendary in resort history, and include such Britishers as Viscount Ednam:

Wilson and his wife, Princess Paley; Korean war correspondent Marguerite Higgins and her husband, General Hall; C. E. S.'s prexy William C. Paley; Vollmer Fries of Cleveland; William McAdoo, to name a few. The Canadian group includes such well-known figures as John C. McConnell, publisher of the Montreal Star; and uranium king, James C. Duncan.

As Mr. Pringle puts it, celebrities attract celebrities, and with this group as a starter, it has become a "cocktail" of international society with its guest list ranging from Vincent Astor and Adele Astaire to Mrs. William Woodward and Richard Widmark.

Round Hill is extra-ordinary in that it is actually one of the few luxury hotels of the world geared to relaxation mid-twentieth century style. Here there is everything available for creature comfort, while simplicity and informality reign supreme — particularly fashionwise for at Round Hill guests have adopted extremely casual informal attire for daytime living. And in a setting of fabulous beauty—a paradise on its own hillside overlooking its gem-like beach with the sparkling blue waters of Round Hill Bay bordered by the blue Jamaican mountains stretching along the coast in the distance. It easily rivals the greatest beauty spots of the world.

Round Hill was designed by well-known New York architect, William Ballard, and the interior decoration was done by Guy Roop. In Mr. Ballard's instance he retained the original charm of the island by combining the 18th century great house type of georgian architecture with a modern flavor. Guy Roop in turn flavored the decor with color from 18th century fabrics from indigo blue to flame pinks, and also used the pineapple, eighteenth century symbol of hospi-talities in the islands on black wrought iron finials, especially designed for Round Hill. This idea has since been brought back from Round Hill to become popular here in the United States.

Sports-wise Round Hill has one of those heavenly tropical beaches with palm trees coming down to the shore-line and almond trees providing shelter for the few who don't want to bronze their skins. Other aquatic sports include water-skiing and skin-diving or goggling out at the Round Hill reef which is a short swim from the beach, and one of the most beautiful to be found anywhere.

Tennis is another popular Round Hill sport, with a fine tennis court always kept in excellent condition.

Although not exactly a sport, a new chic pastime at Round Hill is beach chess, innovated by Cleveland Amory and taken up by other chess-happy players such as Oscar Hammerstein II, William Paley, Richard Avedon, and Robert Sarnoff.

The gem-like tropical beach at Round Hill is the center of daytime activity. The Cocktail Terrace and Lounge is seen in the background.

CARTOON RESTORATION NEARS COMPLETION

RESTORATION OF THE FOURTH and last of the mammoth, world-famous Rubens tapestry cartoons owned by the Ringling Museum of Art is just being completed.

The last cartoon is "The Israelites Gathering Manna in the Desert," and, as with the other three, restoration is in the hands of Edward O. Korany of New York, erstwhile of Vienna.

The four great paintings were purchased by John Ringling in the late 1920's from the Duke of Westminster, for $100,000. Conservative estimates now place their value nearer a million. Moreover, where it was once usual to deprecate them somewhat, by saying that Peter Paul Rubens established the framework, but that the pictures were doubtless completed by other painters in his workshop, it has now become evident that the master himself played a much larger part in their creation than was then suspected.

John H. Phillips, architect, designed a tall clerestory room in the northeast corner of the museum, especially to hold the huge paintings. There they have hung ever since. In fact, the restoration has been done in that gallery, because to remove and replace the canvases would have been a major operation, and a highly dangerous if not impossible one.

Though "The Israelites" is only second largest in actual area, it measures 192 x 163 inches. The adjacent "Abraham Receiving Bread and Wine from Melchizedek," which is the largest Rubens painting in America, is 168 x 228 inches, or 14 x 19 feet.

Work was begun — on "The Four Evangelists" — in June, 1954. Twice during each year since then, Korany has come to Sarasota for a period of work lasting from eight to ten weeks. When he returned again in November, 1957, he expected to complete the last of the four cartoons. The total cost will be paid from a fund foresightedly set up for just such a purpose by John Ringling.

In between these visits to Sarasota, almost always accompanied by his wife, Ilse Korany, he restores pictures at the Detroit Institute of Arts, takes on occasional projects for other American museums, galleries or private collectors, goes to Europe, and spends brief periods at his New York studio. In mid-April, last year, he was at Playa Riente, Palm Beach, again in a professional capacity. He is a man of well-grounded skill and long experience, a member of the International Institute for Conservation.

Edward O. Korany, known to his friends as Orley, was born in 1903 in Vienna, where his mother was a restorer at the Museum of the Academy. In that gay and charming city with its long tradition of delight in all the arts, he grew up, went through an initiation into the craft in which she was an expert, and acquired his more academic education. By 1922, when his mother finally gave up her work, the son had served his apprenticeship.

"I had to learn the techniques of different painters," he recalls, "and what materials they used. As a part of the technique of actual restoration, I was trained in determining the proper method of replacing paint on pictures of different periods, and in matching the original, without touching the original."

"It is impossible to overemphasize the importance of acquiring and maintaining respect for the original. The basic painting must be sacred! In Victorian times, restorers were inclined to beautify earlier pictures, to make them conform to the taste of their own times. They even went so far sometimes as to repaint large areas — as happened in the Ringling Museum's 'Judith with the Head of Holofernes,' by the 17th century Vincenzo Damini, which was painted over so much it became 'An Allegory of Music.' No self-respecting restorer nowadays would think of doing such a thing."

For the actual craftsmanship required, Orley Korany is still using tools and even some materials that were prepared and used by his mother's teacher, and date back to 1860. He still carefully treasures some mixed wax and resin that his mother compounded in the 1890's.

"Abraham Receiving Bread and Wine from Melchizedek," largest of the four mammoth tapestry cartoons, and the largest Rubens in America. Since restoration it has become evident that at least four of the heads are by Rubens alone: those of Melchizedek (the king), the man standing behind him slightly at the right, the soldier in the background eating bread, and the slave in the right foreground who looks out at the spectator.

The St. Jerome at the extreme right in "The Fathers of the Church" is now known certainly to be by the hand of the master alone. This became evident during restoration by Edward O. Korany.

At the University of Vienna, the youth studied history of art exclusively, as a parallel to his technical training. Thereafter, for a number of years, he worked in many European capitals, and in 1939 he and Mrs. Korany came to New York, where they have made their headquarters ever since.

Mrs. Korany usually works along with her husband. Visitors to the Ringling Museum are familiar with the sight of her moving about in the Rubens Gallery, standing on a scaffolding, kneeling on a platform along the floor, or just standing close by, ready to supply tools and materials for the restoration of the cartoons.

The history of these pictures is a romantic one. In approximately 1625, the Infanta Isabella Clara Eugenia, daughter of Philip II of Spain and governess of the Netherlands, commissioned from Peter Paul Rubens a series of eleven tapestry cartoons on the subject of the Holy Eucharist.

A cartoon in this sense is a full-scale painting from which the weaver will copy both design and color. Incidentally, he works from the back of the tapestry, and in consequence the picture on the resultant weaving emerges in reverse.

From the eleven Rubens cartoons, the Infanta had tapestries woven, which she sent in 1628 to the Convent of the Barefoot Carmelites in Madrid. The cartoons themselves remained in Brussels until 1648, when Philip IV ordered that they be shipped to Spain.

Of course any number of equally "original" tapestries can be woven from the design, and the Ringling Collection contains two 17th century tapestries woven by Jan Frans van den Hecke from other cartoons in the series — "Fides Catholica," and "The Triumph of the Eucharist over Ignorance and Blindness." It also contains a Velasquez portrait of Philip IV of Spain, and a portrait of the Infanta by an as-yet-unidentified 17th century Spanish painter.

Four of the cartoons were destroyed in a fire, and never left Brussels. The remaining seven reached Madrid, where they stayed until 1808, when they were taken out of the country during the conquest by Napoleon Bonaparte. At that time they suffered certain damage that was still apparent when the present restoration began. In transporting them, the enormous canvases were folded again and again, to make packages small enough to be carried in a wagon. On the folds, the canvas cracked, in greater or less degree as the fold was rounded or sharp.

One of the seven designs by Rubens that Napoleon's troops found in Madrid has disappeared. Two others are in the Louvre. By way of the Marquess of Westminster and his descendants, the Ringling Museum has the remaining four.

Such full-scale cartoons are now very rare indeed, and their importance and value is thus much enhanced. There are those who say that it would be worth while to travel great distances to Sarasota, even if nothing were to be seen except the Rubens cartoons in the Ringling Museum.

In the very nature of things, paintings as big as these have a tendency to sag, and the canvas to grow weak and eventually to crack in spots. The binding material that holds paint to canvas is likely to deteriorate under even the most admirable conditions. The heat and moisture of sub-tropical Sarasota, producing mildew, can work a good deal of havoc. Especially in the "Abraham," lacking proper ventilation and special precautions between 1936 and 1946, mould spread through both canvas and paint, and bloomed over the surface, like a noxious growth.

When Peter Paul Rubens was painting in Antwerp in the 17th century, he used narrow canvas, seamed to make areas large enough to hold the graphic glories called forth by his imagination. Several years before the current restoration began, a special, very wide canvas was woven in Brussels and shipped to the museum.

The broad canvas was for what the restorer calls relining. But a number of preliminary processes must be completed before relining can begin.

In the first place, the frame is removed from the picture. Then, standing on a scaffold to reach the high portions, the restorer carefully inspects every inch of the picture, often through a magnifying glass, and photographs are taken of certain areas. The surface is then covered with a special, very tough translucent paper, to protect the surface, and the picture is ready to be taken down from the wall.

Workmen grasp the stretcher cautiously on both sides, and inch by inch the top is lowered until the painting can be carried to a smooth platform built on the floor at one end of the gallery. There the painting is laid on its face.

Now begins the laborious, back-breaking, prolonged task of removing the backing from the original canvas. At some time in the past, probably 80 or 90 years ago, a second canvas was affixed to the back of the painting. That backing must come off, and with it every speck of the unfortunately far-from-ideal paste and glue combination with which it was attached.

Kneeling on rubber pads, the Koranys pull and scrape and clean, until nothing but the clear back of the original canvas remains.

Now it is time to apply the well-proven wax and resin combination Orley Korany first saw in his mother's hands. Still on their knees, he and his wife cover the entire area with that binding agent, and rub it in with hot irons, slowly, patiently, around and around, up and down and across. It impregnates the canvas until that cloth is completely saturated, and in doing so unites any weakened paint areas and attaches them firmly to the canvas base.

After that layer of wax and resin has been thoroughly ironed in, the new, strong canvas is laid on top of the original one—that is to say, on the back of it as it lies face downward on the platform, and held in place firmly by strips of wood. Down go the Koranys again onto their knees, and apply another layer of wax and resin, which again they iron in. That layer penetrates the new canvas, and cements it firmly to the old. Picture and its strengthening backing are now united, firm enough to stand the next process, which is to stretch it anew over the wooden frame.

A mildew-resistant agent has been incorporated into the bonding material, guaranteed to protect the picture from renewed growth of mould or other fungus. These cartoons should now withstand any normal wear and tear for an indefinite period.

Again a dozen workmen come in, lift the stretcher with the utmost care, and stand it again upright close to the wall. The translucent paper is still in place, and dimly through it may be seen the color and design of the great painting that Rubens created in the 17th century.

After the paper is removed, it is time for Korany to give his attention to the surface. That surface is very brown in certain areas; all the colors are muted. Details are obscured in figures, in the landscape glimpsed in the background, in columns and entablature at sides and top, and in the folds of cloth at top and bottom that give the effect of a canvas within a canvas.

A couple of tourists stop in the center of the Rubens gallery and look around them.

"Aren't those colors magnificent!" says the man, gazing appreciatively at the brilliance of the three cartoons already completed.

"Well, they are beautiful," his wife replies musingly, "but they look so bright! I always thought old masters were dark and subdued. Like this one over here." And she turns to the "Israelites."

The visitor is perpetuating a misunderstanding that used to be more prevalent than it is today, when all museums are spending large sums on restoration, and the majority of centuries-old masterpieces have been returned to something like their original state.

Many an old master painted in clear, bright colors and finished the surface with a protective coating. Inevitably, through the years, dirt collected on the surface. Without cleaning off the dirt, the whole was covered with varnish. And that process might be repeated a half dozen times. The general public believed that the resultant murky dullness, consisting actually of layer after alternate layer of dirt and varnish, was an "old master glow," and that the picture had deliberately been painted that way in the beginning.

A month ago, much of the "old master glow" still obscured the beauties of the fourth of the Ringling Museum's Rubens cartoons. When Korany returned in the late autumn, his first task was to remove every particle of varnish and dirt—down to the original, but without removing any of the original. This is accomplished by applying a solvent of the weakest kind capable of separating the newer from the old. Patiently he rubs the surface with a wad of moistened cotton, and wipes off the loosened material.

When every square inch of the entire area has been cleaned, certain "lacunae" will show up—usually, in these paintings, very small areas, where the original paint has flaked off. But before Korany can begin to retouch these lacunae, one more process is essential.

The whole painting is permitted to dry thoroughly after the cleaning—perhaps for

It has always been known that Peter Paul Rubens created the designs for these cartoons, and painted certain areas. Cleaning has now revealed that in this "Four Evangelists," the angel, St. Matthew (center) and St. John (right), are masterful portraits by the hands of Rubens himself alone.

"The Israelites Gathering Manna in the Desert," last of the four tapestry cartoons to be reconditioned, is shown here before work was begun. The camera reveals more details than was then evident to the naked eye. The model who posed for Moses (right)—clearly by Rubens himself—is seen again in the "Abraham." Other duplications in models are found throughout the series.

1, 2, and 3—details heads of the angel, St. Matthew, and St. John from "The Four Evangelists," as they appeared when cleaning had been completed, and retouching had not yet been begun. Note how small the actually damaged areas are, despite the age of the cartoons and the extremes of heat and moisture to which they have been subjected.

three or four days, with the time required depending on the humidity. Then he sprays the surface with a thin coat of "retouching varnish." By this foresighted measure, he makes certain that, if at some future date it should be necessary to clean the picture again, a protective layer of varnish will lie between the original paint and the retouching. Again the whole is permitted to dry thoroughly.

When paint flakes off, leaving the canvas exposed, there is actually a variation in the height of the surface. That is smoothed out by applying a neutral "stopper" to the denuded spots. After that, any portion of the design that is lacking is restored by painting it in.

It is in this process that Korany's "respect for the original" stands him in peculiarly good stead. He works with the tiniest of brushes, mixing color on a palette held on his left thumb, as he goes. But not one unnecessary stroke of the brush does he make. Not one more drop of paint is applied than is absolutely essential. The new meets the edge of the old, but does not overlap it. This is a painstaking mending by a master craftsman, who is always conscious of the great painter who produced what lies before him now.

Again a period for drying—at least several days, with the humidity again the determining factor. Then a layer of varnish, and again the whole surface must dry. At the very last, a coat of wax is applied, to act as a moisture-repellent.

The stretcher has already been strengthened with cross-shaped pieces of heavy aluminum at the intersections, so that there will be no torsion of the canvas.

A couple of years ago, a new false ceiling, equipped with adjustable lights, was installed in the Rubens room below the clerestory windows. Recently, the entire building has been repaired and waterproofed. The four mammoth tapestry cartoons will hang in fitting surroundings, revealing their full glory of design and color, clean and glowing with renewed beauty.

Standing on a scaffold, magnifying glass in hand, Korany closely inspects an area in the great cartoon, "The Four Evangelists."

Because he has worked recently on canvases of such tremendous size, Orley Korany says laughingly that he has been called "the giant's restorer." In April, he helped maintain that reputation at Playa Riente, the home Addison Mizner designed in 1923 for Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Cosden, which was sold in 1925 to Mrs. Horace E. Dodge. On the walls of Playa Riente were nine huge mural-type paintings by Jose' Maria Sert, painted on gold leaf, depicting incidents from the story of "Sinbad the Sailor."

Mrs. Dodge has given the paintings to the Detroit Institute, and Korany spent some time in Palm Beach, removing the paintings from the walls and rolling them on cylinders for transportation to Detroit.

In the Detroit Institute itself his major project at present is the reconditioning and conservation of "The Feast of Balshazar" by Washington Allston—a 12 x 16 foot canvas that must be relined. He has already completed work on Rembrandt Peale's "The Court of Death," which is 27 feet long.

"I stretched it singlehandedly," says Orley Korany, marveling at himself.

Of course he reconditions innumerable paintings of more ordinary size. Making the most of intervals when some liquid applied to the great cartoons has been drying, during the past three years he has completed major conservations projects on at least 25 of the Ringling Museum's paintings, and minor conservation and maintenance work on at least 25 more.

But no matter what else is accomplished at the museum owned by the people of Florida, the restoration of the four incomparable tapestry cartoons will outshine all the rest.

One can't help wishing that John Ringling himself—who bought them, placed them in the Rubens gallery, and always delighted in them,—might see these pictures again, brought out from under the deadening effect of the centuries, clear and clean, strong and beautiful, as they were when they came forth from the Antwerp studio of one of the greatest painters of all time.

Orville Bulman

Goes to New York, Chicago and Paris

By Emilie Keyes

"M. Epee"

(Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Rosenberg, Chicago)

BEFORE BEGINNING WORK on a Chicago exhibition planned for next November, Orville Bulman, business man-artist of Palm Beach and Grand Rapids, Mich., re-established his hold on New York art circles with a second sell-out show in October at the Grand Central Galleries.

This eleventh exhibition for this artist proved a wonderful excuse for Palm Beachers in New York to stage a reunion as a curtain raiser for the approaching Winter season.

As usual, the gay bright-hued Bulman oil paintings of Haitian scenes and natives captivated New Yorkers as well as his Palm Beach following. It was no surprise to those familiar with past Bulman shows that before even the first cocktail was sipped at the opening day party, not more than three of the 42 pictures failed to show bright red stars.

A sell-out has become as much a trademark for this artist as his pixy-like dark figures that cavort irresistibly across his canvases.

"An original talent with a sure instinct for atmosphere, mood and color," is the way in which Inez Robb, distinguished metropolitan newspaper writer, summed up her reaction to the Bulman work.

She continued: "On his canvases, Haiti and its people live in an enchanted never-never land under a white, hot sun or in the sultry mystery of a tropical night. The people are fey, the landscape bewitched. Together, they are irresistible."

The public has come to regard the festive gaiety, charm and color of the Haitian scene as typically "Bulman." The artist is going to have a difficult time veering into other fields. This is indicated by the way his Caribbean scenes are always gobbled up first, while his occasional somber, mood paintings of desolate, weathered turn-of-the-century houses are last to go at his exhibitions. The final cocktail may be finished and the lights about to be dimmed on the preview showing before these show red stars.

Such was the case in New York. The fact that these eerie mansions were as meticulously painted and as full of atmosphere as his most brilliant canvases had nothing to do with it.

When Mr. Bulman opens next November at the Fairweather-Hardin Gallery in Chicago, by request, the Haitian will prevail. So once again during the months to come at his studio in Palm Beach and in Grand Rapids, the artist will again be busy capturing on canvas the blue skies and seas, the gingerbread houses and the gay humor of the natives.

Not before next year will he have the opportunity of assembling a collection for Palm Beach's Worth Avenue Gallery, where he has had four successful exhibitions.

As the result of interest of friends in Paris and of the Duchess of Windsor, who has acquired several Bulman paintings, the artist has been invited to exhibit in that city and plans for a showing there sometime after the Chicago exhibition.

Mrs. Duggett Benson, owner and director of Worth Avenue Gallery, came to the opening at the Grand Central Galleries. She was accompanied by her niece, Mrs. Peter John Sharp and Paul Crosthwaite, artists from Nantucket, New Hope, Pa., and Palm Beach . . . Harold Masten of Palm Beach . . . Mrs. Wilfred C. Rigg of Greenwich, Conn., and Palm Beach.

Robert Bushnell, famous mural artist, was among the guests. He had just returned to New York after spending the late Summer here restoring the Balinese figures on the walls of the Everglades Club cocktail lounge, which he did originally in 1947. Mr. Bushnell took time out for the opening from work in his studio on the mural he had just been commissioned to do for the Royal Poinciana Playhouse Celebrity Room.

Among those from other art circles who came in was Mrs. Harold Beach of Nantucket, who as Edith Beach is regarded as one of the island's outstanding painters; her husband, and their artist daughter, Anne.

This was one exhibition opening at which guests not only chatted and mingled, but made the rounds of the studio walls, newcomers to enjoy their first acquaintance with the Bulman technique, old-timers to look for familiar tricks of the brush and to seek new facets of the artist's style.

The consensus was that the collection was representative of Orville Bulman at his best. Though there was little change in general style and subject matter, these paintings showed new emphasis on imaginative detail, especially in the realm of the animal kingdom. Chuckles resounded as visitors lingered before the wall-eyed bovines in "Vilain Merchant," or the skeptical looking donkey reduced to "third class" in the dinghy in "Premiere Classe." There was always a crowd gathered to look at the details of the animal-laden "Noah's Ark" and the appealing study of the tiny Haitian girl handing out roses to the convicts filing by her gateway.

Anyone familiar with Bulman paintings is probably also versed on the Bulman saga, of the business man who heads two corporations in Grand Rapids, yet turned to art as an avocation about 12 years ago. As the result of an automobile accident that forced him from his desk for a long period, he decided to revive a long suppressed interest in art.

Virtually self-taught, he had his first show in 1950 at the former Clinton Shepherd gallery in Palm Beach. Since then, he has exhibited in Madison, Wisconsin; Knoxville, Tenn.; Wilmington, Delaware, and his home city, as well as in Palm Beach and New York.

In addition to the Chicago show, one in Beverly Hills is under consideration.

Receiving with the artist at the New York show opening was his wife. The two are now at their Winter home on Woodbridge Road.

The show's top winner attracts the attention of two of the exhibition's top figures, as Mrs. James Cameron Clark, chairman of the art committee, and her husband, who donated $1,000 towards the $1,500 prize fund, view Artemis Jegart's "Railway Express." THE FOUR ARTS

Contemporary American Painting

Willis F. Woods, director of the Norton Gallery and School of Art, takes pride in the achievement of Minerva Walker Goldsmith, who started her art career at that school, in winning a $50 award with her "Mountain Mother" watercolor.

IN LINE WITH TRADITION, opening of the Society of the Four Arts in early December with a Contemporary American Painting Exhibition, proved an event of interest both socially and art-wise.

Virtually all early arrivals among the membership turned out for the late afternoon to exchange greetings, sip a cup of tea, and view the exhibition. For this opening show has not only gained great stature as an outstanding regional exhibition, but holds special local interest by reason of the number of Palm Beach artists with works on view.

Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, honorary president, whose guiding hand was one of the strongest in the Society's early days, made one of her few public appearances, to be warmly greeted on every hand.

Marion Sims Wyeth, president, and Mrs. Wyeth, assisted by many of the officers and board members, greeted members and artists who filled the galleries. Mrs. James Cameron Clark, new chairman this year of the Art Committee, received congratulations on the success of the first exhibition. Also attending was her husband, who personally donated $1,000 towards the $1,500 given in cash awards.

show also marked the official opening of Four Arts activities, continuing into April.

The lecture series, for which Ambassador to Cuba Earl E. T. Smith is chairman, got underway December 31 when young Robert F. Kennedy, counsel for the Special Senate Committee, spoke on "The Senate Committee's Investigation of Racketeering in the Labor-Management Field."

Evidence of the preponderance of Florida artists is noted in the fact that of 57 artists represented in the 61 works hung, 15 were from six other states, the rest from Florida.

Among artists from this area whose work was accepted for showing in this exhibition and who were present were Ouida George, Ena O'Brien, Janet Folsom, John R. Hayes, Russell J. Conn, who was accompanied by his wife; Patrick Archer, a newcomer both to Palm Beach and to the art world here, with his wife, the former Susan Tripp.

Gertrude (Mrs. William P.) Schweitzer, noted artist, whose "Summer Day" was a fine addition to the watercolor room, and Theodora (Mrs. George H.) Tilton, an exhibitor who is to have a one-man show this Winter at the Worth Avenue Gallery, did not return in time for the opening.

Among other figures of the art community mingling with the crowd were Willis F. Woods, director of the Norton Gallery and School of Art, and Mrs. Ralph Norton, a noted sculptor in her own right.

Russell A. Plimpton, Four Arts director, made his second season's bow to the membership at this time. Mr. Plimpton came to the Four Arts last year after retiring from the Minneapolis Institute of Arts.

Missing from the scene were two Four Arts well-knowns, Mrs. LeRay Berdeau, whose service on the directorate dates back to earliest days, and Mrs. A. Atwater Kent Jr., one of the newest on the board, both of whom died since the gallery closed in April.

The preview tea for the contemporary

Mr. Kennedy made time for the address while spending the holiday season with his parents, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy, in Palm Beach.

The lectures are now being held each Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Julius W. Noyes, chairman, and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, vice chairman, of the music and dance committee, present their first event of the season on the night of January 22. At that time Ruth Slenczynska, pianist, will appear in a concert. Enlargement of the stage and dressing room area to allow for dance ensembles and larger music groups was a special feature of the summer program of improvements at the Four Arts.

BARTON COLLECTION of American Indian Art

An Eskimo mask from the Barton Collection.

AMONG THE MOST INTERESTING and least familiar of the world's ethnic arts is that of the American Indian. When the Barton Wing of the Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery, University of Miami, opens this Winter, the Southern public will have the opportunity to learn about contributions of the American Indian to our culture.

The $50,000 wing houses the Barton Collection of American Indian art. One of the finest collections of its kind, it is the product of 15 years of study, travel, barter and enthusiasm on the part of Mr. Alfred I. Barton of Surfside, Florida.

Included in the Collection are examples of the work of the principal tribes of North America, offering a comprehensive picture of Indian life in the United States from prehistoric to modern times.

Of major importance is the unique group of Indian blankets. Also, the Collection contains beadwork, carved wood and stone objects, quills, pottery, rare objects in metal and bone, as well as examples of other handicrafts.

For fuller appreciation of the art of the American Indian, a fuller understanding of the Indian himself is helpful.

Under the auspices of Hollywood movie producers and the authors of Westerns, the Indians of the United States have more or less lost their identity. Because of these inaccurate interpretations many people have the very mistaken impression that all Indians nourish a thorough and homicidal dislike of White men, that they all live in tepees, smoke peacepipes and dress in buckskins. This concept is particularly unfortunate in light of the diversity of Indian life and culture.

The typical Indian doesn't exist — any more than there is such a thing as typical Indian art. In prehistoric times there were hundreds of scattered tribes belonging to many racial and linguistic families — all living within the continental United States.

Everything Indians made was made to be used. Fine art in the sense of art for art's sake is a concept almost unknown in Indian cultures. That many of their artifacts are beautiful is both a coincidence and a tribute to their innate sense of beauty.

Over the years the Indian artist developed a feeling for what was most suitable in the way of decoration to the shape and material of whatever he happened to be making. For instance, baskets and pottery not intended to be seen in motion are generally decorated with designs that give them a life, a motion of their own. On the other hand, clothing is often ornamented with geometric designs since clothing receives its motion from the wearer.

Symbols were of course used to convey abstract concepts and to record facts. But many symbols became in time mere decorative devices. Interpreting them is extremely difficult, even for experts, because symbols are by no means universal, differing from tribe to tribe, and even from family to family.

Similarities do naturally exist between the various tribes. There are five cultural areas which differ from each other greatly in social, political, economic and artistic heritage.

One of these areas is the Southwest. There are similarities between the Navajo and the Apache, between the Zuni and the Hopi.

It is this cultural area which is most heavily represented in the Barton Collection.

Although weaving was known and practiced in other areas, the Southwest is the textile Mecca. The Barton Collection contains some of the finest examples of Pueblo and Navajo weaving extant and traces the history of weaving in the Southwest from the early times to the present.

Indian weaving has a continuous history in the Southwest since 800 A.D. The first to practice this craft were the Pueblos. Around 1700 the Navajos learned weaving from their Pueblo neighbors, borrowing heavily from Pueblo designs. However, in the early 1800's, the Navajo craftsman began to introduce squares, diamonds and other simple figures with terraced boundaries. Navajo weaving is that tribe's most outstanding contribution to the field of Indian art.

Weaving is still very much alive among the tribes of the Southwest. Navajos today make a few traditional blankets but the quality is not always comparable to their earlier efforts. And they are prolific rug weavers.

Second of the major crafts plied by the Indians of the Southwest is basketry. In prehistoric times baskets were used for every purpose, with pottery gradually replacing them for everyday use.

But in basketry the Indians of the West Coast topped all the rest. They never made pottery to any substantial extent, using baskets even for cooking. Food and water were placed in a basket and redhot stones were added to make the water boil. Baskets were made in every size from that of a pinhead to 10 or 12 feet in circumference. Stitches were as fine as 60 to an inch. One tribe, the Pomos, made delightfully colorful baskets with bird feathers.

Another craft at which the Indians of the Southwest excelled was, and still is, pottery. Of particular interest in the Barton Collection are two Chaco containers which date back to prehistoric times.

Pottery-making, an outgrowth of the earlier work in basketry, has been carried on without a break for 1600 years in the Southwest. All pottery designs were applied free a grand scale. Their houses and canoes were immense. Their ceremonies huge and featured fantastically masked figures.

hand and no two are alike. Each village used its own basic design elements over and over again until today they are more or less without significance.

The Iroquois Indians are one of the two great groups belonging to the cultural area encompassing most of the Northeast, the other being the Algonquin. A most unusual tribe, the Iroquois developed the first representative system of government in the United States. In the field of art, they are especially noted for their masks. Wooden masks were partly carved on living trees. Indians believe that if the preliminary carving was done on a live tree, the masks themselves would also have life. The masks represent mythical beings and are still made and worn by the Iroquois.

Quillwork as practiced by the Indians of the Great Plains is also well represented in the Barton Galleries. The Plains quill embroidery is a unique art. Porcupine quills, which take dye well, were used. They were first softened with water, then flattened, making embroidery relatively easy.

The Sioux woman's dress in the Barton Collection illustrates another craft — bead-

Most significant in the art of the Northwest — at which the Plains Indians excelled.

Perhaps most interesting of all the cultural areas is the Northwest Coast. The Indians of this area were the greatest of all navigators and wood workers. They did everything on west Coast is the vastness and vigor of the products. For instance, the Northwest Coast Indians originated the totem pole. Contrary to common belief, totem poles are not idols and are not meant to be worshipped in any way. They were used to display family crests or relate family legends or they were erected as memorials to the dead and as symbols of family pride and wealth. The figures on the pole were arranged arbitrarily and not as in a story or genealogy. The totem pole was to the Northwest Coast Indian as the family coat of arms is to be European. Although the Barton Wing does not currently boast a totem pole, plans are underway to secure one for future exhibition.

Of outstanding interest in the Barton Collection is a rare blanket made by the Chilkat tribe of the Northwest Coast. Material used was mountain goat wool wound round a core of cedar bast (inner bark).

TWO OF THE MOST LAVISH and eagerly awaited social events of the year took place in the late Fall for two very worthy charities.

They were New York Society's outstanding Tenth Annual Knickerbocker Ball, which was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria to benefit the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation and the New York Journal-American Disabled War Veterans Fund, and the Eighth Annual Fan Ball held in the Grand Ballroom of the Plaza Hotel to benefit the Children's Cancer Fund.

The American Indian was the theme of this year's Knickerbocker Ball, which was held in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Three leading decorators and artists had been working for months in Phoenix, Arizona, to give the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria a southwestern Indian flavor. The decor was built around a fantastic Zuni rainbow of turquoise, copper and black. The sun shield of the harvest dances burst its rays along the balconies which were hung with beautiful hand made Indian rugs, and at each table there were authentic Katchina dolls.

About thirty Indian braves came to New York for the occasion and performed in their native dress the ritual dances and chants which are rarely seen except on the reservations. Adam Trujillo Luhan and his sons, who have won dance awards all over the West, performed their celebrated war dances. A special delegation of Hopi Indians performed their ritual dances.

A thirty-minute show had been especially written by and was directed by Paul Coze, the well-known painter of the Southwest, author of many books on Indian lore, chairman of the dance jury for the all-Indian Pow-Wow in Flagstaff, Arizona, director of Indian Ballets, and a foremost expert on the American Indian.

Dr. Grant Fletcher of Arizona State College had composed a special score for the occasion.

Mrs. C. V. Whitney and Mr. Oleg Cassini, who have spent much time among the Indians and are vitally interested in their welfare, were chairmen of the Ball, proceeds of which went to provide scholarships for talented Indians to continue their education in the liberal arts or professional training.

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower was General Chairman of the Ball, Mrs. Averell Harriman and Mrs. Robert F. Wagner, Honorary Vice Chairmen. Mrs. Perle Mesta was Chairman of the Washington Committee. The Honorable Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona was guest speaker. Also in attendance were Honorable Howard Pyle, executive assistant to President Eisenhower; Honorable Glenn E. Emmons, Commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington, D. C.; the Chairman and some twenty-five members of the Arizona Committee for the Knickerbocker Ball, which included various members of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, Merchants Association, and director and various assistants of the Phoenix area of the United States Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Among those enjoying the unusual entertainment and dancing till dawn to Tony Cabot's orchestra were: Mr. and Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Berlin, Mr. and Mrs. Giovanni Buitoni, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Igor Cassini, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah P. The Fan Ball, one of the most beautiful and glamorous balls we have ever attended, brought out the Who's Who in the Society and Theatre world.

The decor which in colors ran from pink to magenta with large birds eight feet long made out of cut and curled enameled aluminum festooned the ballroom and lent a beautiful air to the festivities.

Among the evening's highlights were a tableau depicting famous women in history, with the fan as the focal point throughout the ages; and a midnight waltz to choose the most beautiful fan at the ball.

Among the dazzling women participating in the tableau were: Marie McDonald as Madame Pompadour, Yoshiko Ishu as Cio Cio San, Constance Moore as Lady Windermere, Mrs. Francis T. Hunter as The Merry Widow, Mrs. John Randolph Hearst as Carmen and the Ziegfeld Girls portrayed by three lovelies — Gail Whitney, Virginia Kiser and Mary MacFadden. The climax was the appearance of Lena Horne, who has scored a personal success here in the musical "Jamaica," as Cleopatra in a clinging gold lame' dress.

Among the social elite present were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoving, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Lowell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Atwood, Mrs. Gordon Auchincloss, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Kuder, Mrs. George F. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lawson-Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Bemberg, Mr. and Mrs. George Carr Leib, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Prince and Princess Edward Lobkowicz, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Muir and many others dancing to Lester Lanin's music.

THE GOLDEN BALL

By Edward M. Seay

IN A LAVISH DECOR of autumn flowers and foliage the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of The Plaza was observed at a dinner and dance, the "Golden Ball," in the hotel's grand ballroom to benefit the Recreation Service for Children of Bellevue. The stage, where Lester Lanin's orchestra played for dancing, was decorated to simulate a garden, with yellow and golden-hued sian Room star, who represented Anna Held singing numbers popular in 1907. Ted Straeter, orchestra leader of the Persian Room, also sang songs of the period. Mr. Henry C. Alexander, the evening's master-of-ceremonies, paid tribute to The Plaza's golden anniversary as he introduced Mr. Conrad N. Hilton and members of the ball committee. Dr. Howard A. Rusk spoke briefly ceived by Mrs. William Barclay Harding, chairman of the ball; Mrs. Richard P. Prowell, president of the Bellevue recreation service; Mrs. Peter F. Fleischmann and Mrs. Lloyd B. Hatcher, vice-chairmen of the benefit, and Mrs. Henry C. Alexander and Mrs. Bruce A. Gimbel, former presidents of the women's organization aided by the fete.

Junior Welfare League

They Work and Children Benefit

THE JUNIOR WELFARE LEAGUE of the Palm Beaches, Inc., was organized in 1940. It had an original membership of thirteen young women and meetings were held in homes of members.

Purpose of the organization is to promote interest among its members in the social, cultural and civic conditions of this community by giving of volunteer service. This volunteer service is by no means spasmodic, but is a day to day occurrence with selected worthwhile projects in the community.

In order to maintain membership in the organization an active member must give a minimum of three hours weekly to these selected projects.

Since the beginning of the Junior Welfare League many worthwhile projects have been undertaken by the young women. During the early years some included a clothes closet, which gave clothing to those having a welfare agency recommendation; a baby clinic at the Health Department; serving as the first aids for what is now the Crippled Children's Society; and the Southridge Nursery school, which was re-staffed, re-decorated and new equipment purchased, as well as part of the salaries paid by the League.

As the city grew and these projects either were able to go on without League help or other interested groups stepped in to assist, new projects were taken on by the League.

One of the many projects with which the League had worked was the Palm Beach County Guidance Center. In 1955, when the Center was in its infancy, the League was asked to send eight of their young women to a three months' course, which was under the direction of Dr. Joanna Byers, director of the Guidance Center. After completion of this course, which included a basic working knowledge of mental health, the Leaguers embarked on an educational campaign to explain the importance of good mental health.

They gave skits and round-table discussions to PTA's, church associations, young peoples' groups and other interested organizations over a period of two years, averaging around two skits a week.

This group dissolved when it was felt that the original purpose had been accomplished.

The League contributed $1,000 toward the salary of a social psychiatric worker for the Guidance Center. In October, the League contributed another $1,000 to bring marriage counseling experts to the Center.

On December 14, the Junior Welfare League held its annual Charity Ball at the Breakers Hotel to further the services furnished to the exceptional child by Royal Palm School.

The League has given of their time and money to this school, a part of the Palm Beach County school system, for the past nine years. Children attending this school may be physically handicapped, have lowered vitality, limited vision, a hearing loss, or a speech difficulty. They may be emotionally disturbed or need remedial work.

Approximately $4,000 worth of equipment has been purchased by the League for the school. More will be purchased as the need arises. Included in the many pieces of equipment is a complete jungle gym set for the play yard, globes, games, blackboards, record players, typewriters, including a sight typewriter and a braille writer, rhythm sets, sand-table, and cots.

One of the school branches, which include the sight-saving and hard of hearing groups, were furnished with sight-saving desks and chromalizer, a complicated piece of equipment costing approximately $500. It is used to give hard of hearing children a visual image of speech.

Royal Palm School is one of the few in the country having such a piece of equipment, mainly because of its expense but also because of the difficulty in learning to use it. One of the League's professional members was sent by the League and the Public Health Department to summer school that she might be able to teach the hard of hearing child.

Actually, services given to the school are not limited to monetary donations. In fact this is only a small part of the overall picture. This year Royal Palm School has approximately twelve of the League's members giving thirty-six hours weekly to the school. The workers were basically teachers' aides, giving individual attention on lessons; supervise the lunch period and serve in the library.

In addition, League members assist with the Christmas program presented yearly by the children. They also arrange for transportation for field trips as well as assist teachers on these trips.

In the past few years the Junior Welfare League had begun to evaluate more carefully the cultural part of its program in the community. So this year attention became focused on the Norton Art Gallery.

As the League is composed mostly of mothers of young children, in thinking of new League projects members naturally incline toward doing those things which they feel can enrich the lives of the children of the community.

Yoakley, President; Mrs. Henry Herpel, parliamentarian; Mrs. Allan F. Brackett, corresponding secretary. Miss Virginia McVey, education chairman, was unable to be present for the photograph.

Mr. Willis Woods, director of the Gallery, felt that if enough League members could act as guides for the many individuals and groups who tour the Gallery, his time could be better utilized in the increasing activities at the Gallery. So Leaguers are taking a brief course in the history of art, and the historical background of the Norton collection.

Last May the League gave scholarships to three talented, deserving students selected by the Art Gallery personnel.

Another community project the Junior Welfare League can claim is the Hearing Conservation Program. Now in its seventh year, it was started because of the necessity of doing something about the hearing losses among elementary school children. No money was available at that time from the school board, so the League assumed the full responsibility of the project.

The program has been enlarged so that it now includes forty-six schools in Palm Beach County. The program is approved by the County Health Department with the County School nurses helping on the follow-ups. If financial arrangements must be made for treatments or for hearing aids, the League attempts to see that this is arranged. During the school year of 1955-56 a total of 3,218 individual audiograms were given, with a total of 246 children found to have a loss of hearing.

At the present time fifteen girls work three mornings a week individually testing Palm Beach County children. Two girls maintain the filing system and see that individual letters are sent to the parents of the children tested.

The Junior Welfare League has made itself completely self supporting. There is a constant financial burden connected with each of the League projects, as well as a need for extra money for the many causes which need League contributions. A permanent means of income for League supported projects was first established in 1955 in the Junior Welfare League Thrift Shop. It was to be operated by League members and merchandise was to be secured mainly from the membership as a whole. This undertaking became a reality in the Summer of 1956 when a small shop at 517½ Northwood Road was leased. It was opened in September of that year with the mayor of Palm Beach making the first purchase. On that first day the shop took in $90.

Each League member receives a rummage schedule twice yearly and each is expected to contribute rummage in the amount of $30 a year. Each member is asked to scour her neighborhood for rummage for the shop.

A year after its grand opening the Thrift Shop showed a profit of nearly $3,000 and had continued to grow at such a rapid pace that the original quarters became too crowded. So in November of 1957 the shop was moved to a larger building at 427 Northwood Road. From a staff of seven girls, it has now grown to twenty-six. The shop is open from 9:30 until 4:00 every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

It is plainly evident that the social part of the Junior Welfare League is not the primary part in any manner of speaking, but it is not neglected. The League meets monthly at the Norton Art Gallery in Pioneer Hall, and some of these meetings are preceded by morning coffee on the Gallery Terrace. The League entertains once a year at a luncheon honoring its past presidents, which number fifteen. Each Christmas the League entertains at a Charity Ball — an invitational affair for the benefit of Royal Palm School. Every spring they also entertain at a dinner-dance honoring the new provisional members.

The Junior Welfare League also sponsors a duplicate bridge tournament, held each Wednesday afternoon at the Palm Beach Towers.

This month the League is inaugurating dancing classes for children of League members, to be called "League Cotillion."

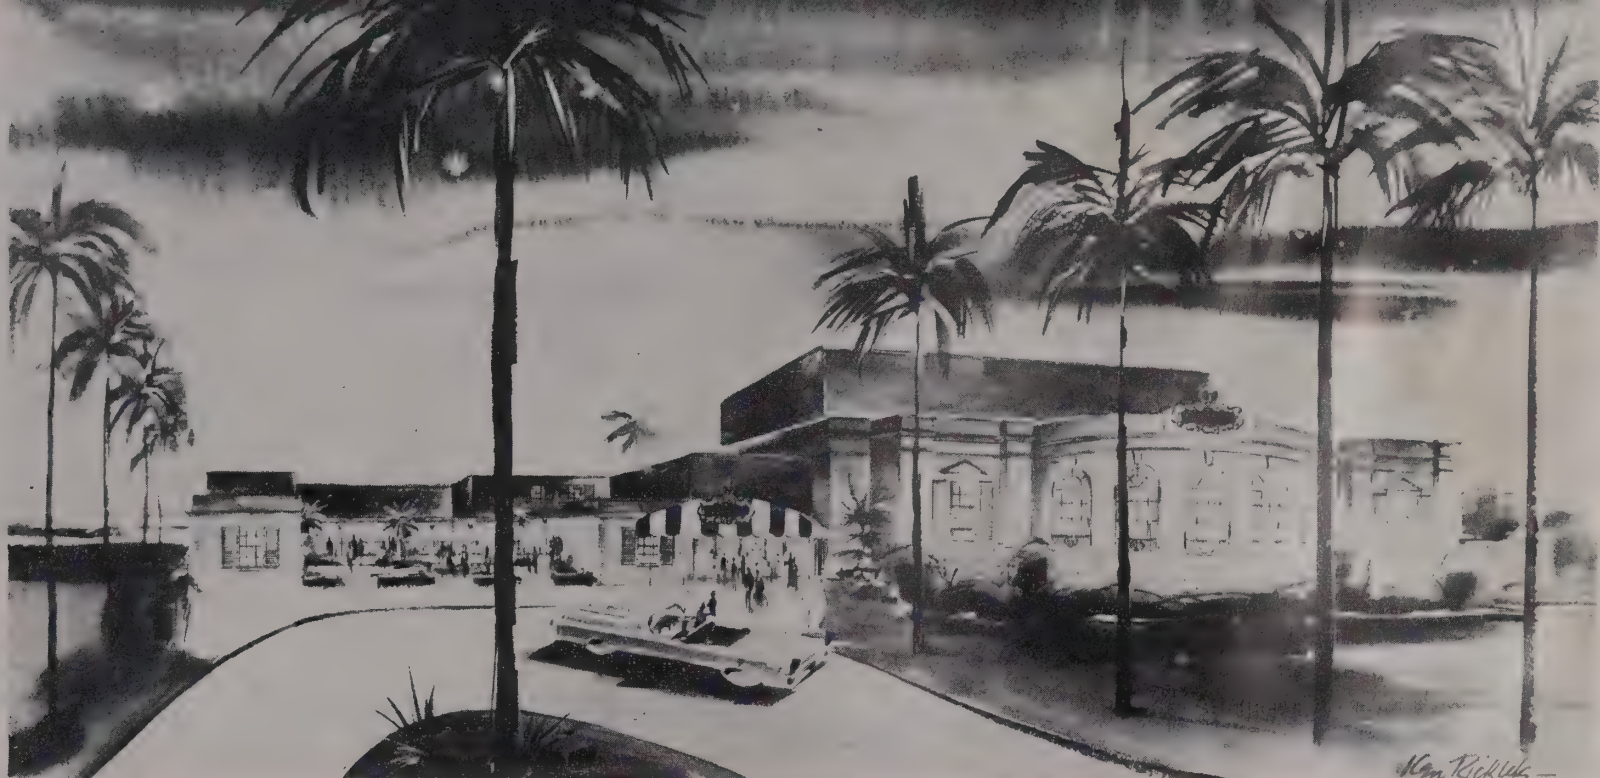

Such is the "story behind the story" of the Junior Welfare League of the Palm Beaches, who have taken care that their membership shall be comprised of those young women in the community who will obligate themselves to "go the second mile."

NEW TO THE PALM BEACH SCENE this season is the new 707-seat air-conditioned Royal Poinciana Playhouse (it is also heated), located at 70 Royal Poinciana Plaza, near the Flagler Memorial Bridge, in the heart of historically fashionable Palm Beach.

During the height of the social season, a series of ten new plays, musical comedies and current Broadway hits will be presented starring, in person, some of the greatest names of Broadway, Hollywood and television. Opening February 3rd, each play will run Monday through Saturday evenings, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Frank J. Hale, who is well-known throughout Florida for his philanthropic and civic endeavors, is the President of the Royal Poinciana Playhouse; Paul Crabtree is the Producing Director; James M. Riley is the art director.

The new million-and-a-half-dollar Playhouse has been designed by architect John L. Volk, and built by the contracting firm of Wiggs and Maale, and is a Bessemer Properties project, serving as a focal point for their new and fabulous Royal Poinciana Shopping Plaza. The Playhouse is designed in classic Regency architecture, surrounded by terraces and gardens. The interior is decorated in a smart red, white and gold color scheme. The stage, considered one of the finest and most modern-equipped in the world, has three sliding stages, mechanized apparatus, and a new $25,000 electronic lighting control board. Scenic shop and painting studios will have the very latest equipment, making it possible to design and build a production comparable to anything on Broadway.

The Celebrity Club, in conjunction with the Playhouse and joined to it by an attractive loggia, features a full vaulted ceiling mural done by the internationally famous artist, Robert Bushnell, well-known for his murals at the Everglades Club in Palm Beach and the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in Gotham.

Bob Cummings, star of TV's "The Bob Cummings Show," has the honor of opening the new Royal Poinciana Playhouse season, the week of February 3rd, in Ronald Alexander's gay, romantic comedy, "Holiday For Lovers," featuring the cast of the Bob Cummings television show: Julie Bishop, Ann B. Davis, Lyle Talbot, Lisa Gaye, Lisa Davis, and Dwayne Hickman. Eddie Rubin will stage the production.

Set for the third week of the Playhouse season, the week of February 17, is Vincent Price, who will star in the Gore Vidal comedy, "A Visit To A Small Planet," a current Broadway hit. The week of March 17, Miss Billie Burke, a great favorite with audiences in the Palm Beaches, where she once lived as Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld, will be at the Playhouse starring in "Lady of the House," a new comedy especially written for her by Paul Crabtree, which after its try-out in Palm Beach will make a bid for Broadway.

The week of March 24 will bring to the Playhouse, sultry Algerian songstress Fernanda Montel as one of the stars of "Roberta," one of the great musical comedies of all time.

Producing director Crabtree, busily engaged in contacting other Broadway, Hollywood and television stars to appear at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse during its premiere season, promises some delightful surprises for Playhouse subscribers and patrons, to be announced soon.

Plans for the Playhouse following the ten-week star season will include another ten-week season of prize-winning plays at popular prices. In July, August, September and October the Playhouse will produce industrial shows for conventions. In November and December a series of concerts, ballet attractions and the like will be presented. Messrs. Hale and Crabtree have stated that the Playhouse will also be available to civic and charitable organizations for their functions.

IF YOU THINK SPUTNIK is traveling at a terrific speed, you should leap into the dizzying Winter social whirl in Miami. The seasonal clubs, Indian Creek, the Surf and the Bath opened early; there are umpteen balls on the calendar, not to mention the private shindigs, plus parties for the debutantes.

Opening gun was Mary Jane and Lino Sertel's huge and beautiful cocktail dance at the Surf Club (before it opened its doors officially) for Alfred I. Barton's 65th birthday. Mr. Barton, as you may know, is the executive vice president of the club and its guiding genius. You'd never dream from looking at his youthful countenance and slim "figger" that he had put 65 years behind him.

Mary Jane's luscious pink bouffant cocktail dress set the pink and red theme of the party. A 15-foot tall "make believe" birthday

Mrs. Buswell entertained at a coffee at their home on North Bay Road for debutantes of this year and last and their mothers. The Buswells' home, Stillington Hall, in Gloucester, Mass., is one of the ten great houses in the cake centered the ballroom floor; a "for real" enormous cake was wheeled in lighted with 65 candles and Lino pulled down a huge placard which read, "Alfred is now eligible for Social Security." This brought roars of laughter from the 350 merry-makers.

More birthday celebrants were Mary Jane, herself, and Irma (Mrs. Floyd) Akers, who flew down from Washington for the party. Mrs. Walter Baker flew down from Pittsburgh and Mrs. Harry Brimer from Washington.

Guests of the Akers at the Surf Club, Sir Percy and Lady Jean Spender came to the party. Sir Percy, Ambassador from Australia to the U.S., recently was elected by the Security Council and General Assembly of the UN as Justice of the International Court at The Hague.

They are a delightful couple. Blonde Lady Jean said they would be sad at leaving Washington. They've been there seven years and made many friends. There are scads of farewell parties on the docket for them in Washington, the first a dinner party the Akers gave at the swank F Street Club.

After the Sertels' party, Olive (Mrs. John) Wofford entertained at a small dinner party for Mr. Barton. This party is a traditional one on his birthday and was held at her home on Pinetree Drive.

Next big private party was a gala cocktail affair at which Federal Judge Emmett Choate, his Margaret and the Rouse Smiths joined forces at the Choate home on Alton Road.

Colored lights were strung in the back garden which adjoins La Gorce Country Club's golf course, a "big back yard." John Astor made his first party appearance of the season after a summer in New York. He had his favorite "girl friend," small daughter, "M. J." with him for the Christmas holidays.

At that time Sir Percy and Lady Jean were plain Mr. and Mrs. Spender. "They haven't changed a whit," said Margaret, "they're still the same sweet people in spite of all the honors bestowed upon them."

Ivah and Neil Miller gathered some 90 friends for a home cooked Thanksgiving dinner at their home on Sunset Island II. Their chief factotum, "Katie," roasted 100 pounds of succulent turkey and prepared all the trimmin's, to the delight of the guests.

Ivah's aunt, Miss Eliza Moon, 85 years young and lively as a cricket, added to the party. She is here to spend the Winter with the Millers. Bernice and Harry Simone, down from Canada after a Summer in Europe, were saying hello to one and all, and Ruth and Rad Crane of La Gorce Island were also guesting friends after their jaunts to Europe and the Orient.

First big ball of the season was Beaux Arts "Noah's Beaux Ark Ball" at Miami Springs Villas. Two by two the couples came in fantastic costumes such as "Tea for Two." These were Betty Lou Merriam and Don Bates as giant cups and saucers with tea bags hanging over the sides. Betty Lou made the costumes.

First prize winners were Marcia Pawley, niece of former Ambassador to Brazil William Pawley, and date Bill Clark, as a "pair-o-keets" in a bamboo cage. Heaven only knows how many hours Marcia spent dyeing turkey feathers and sewing them on the costumes.

Her sister, Anita Pawley and date, Bruce Woodruff, were Mr. and Mrs. Noah in their Ark. And the Ark was really something. Made of paper over a wooden frame, it was 15 feet long and had all the animals peeping out the portholes.

Pam Johnson, president of Beaux Arts, which is a group of young women who support University of Miami's Lowe Art Gallery, and her husband, Frank, came as "Hearts and Flowers." Pam looked wonderful in bouffant white net with wreaths of flowers and she must have taken a week off to sew on the hearts on Frank's dinner clothes.

Marty Grafton, chairman of the ball, and husband Ed were "Buttons and Bows." Marty's needle had been worked overtime too, sewing myriads of bows and buttons.

Christmas lights outside made the house a fairy-tale picture. Their houseguest and long time friend, Klaus Neuman, entertainer at the piano, and billed as "Santa Klaus" in Germany, flew over from Europe for the party.

He played Santa Claus at the party and handed out presents for each and every "little girl" and also entertained with his songs and music, which he composes.

The party was bon voyage and farewell for Hilde's mother, youthful Mrs. Peter Berchtold, who left Dec. 13 to return to Munich. Gary and Nat Harrison, there with his pretty Elaine, went on safari last Summer in Africa while Hilde visited in Germany. Elaine is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Alto Adams.

The biggest crowd yet attended the Surf Club's opening dinner dance. Lola and Al Andreas had the largest private party of the evening with cocktails before dinner and dance time for 72 at their beautiful home on La Gorce Island.

Ann and Neil Vanderbilt had a table of

PALM BEACH'S LATEST

Park Place

By Paul Ilyinsky

EVERY YEAR sees many changes in Palm Beach, from private homes to new hotels. To some old-timers it spells the end of an era, to others, the start of a new one.

To me, progress is something that most people hate to see happen; and yet, almost to the last one, they are the ones who point with pride at the growth of their Town.

There is no use in saying that all that has been built here within the past five years is beautiful, because like other towns we too must accept the necessary sometimes, and the necessary is not always the edifice of our dreams.

To write and describe in detail all that has been occurring building-wise would take a small volume of fine print; however, now and then the skyline is altered by a new building that warrants a few lines of description. Such a one as this, right now, is in the process of being born.

Howard Chilton, the architect, was asked to create something new, something different, something that would not only be of value but also add immeasurably to Palm Beach's way of life. The result of this wish can be seen materializing between Australian and Chilean Avenues.

To be known as Park Place, these impressive cooperative apartments command a magnificent view of Lake Worth as well as the lovely Australian Docks.

Mr. David Swetland, well known real estate operator of Cleveland and long-time resident of Palm Beach, is the owner and original instigator of Park Place.

The accompanying photographs were taken of the "model apartment," furnished and decorated by Virginia Johnson. Her soft, relaxed and yet elegant styling is admirably well suited to the tropical way of life.

One of the things that most impressed me (and I may say one of the hardest to photograph) was the manner in which these apartments seem to be a part of the outdoors, yet, at the same time, give one the impression of a real home. Beautifully proportioned and having as their west wall great sliding windows that lead out onto a patio, or in this case a balcony, each room has a superb view of the outside.

One of the most unique things about this is the way the entire structure is constructed on a graceful curve, so that all the living spaces have unobstructed views. Even when sitting on the balcony, one is completely unaware that within thirty feet another tenant may be doing the identical thing.

The modern conveniences that are part and parcel of every unit are, of course, of the very finest taste from the almost noiseless purr of the built-in air conditioners to the ultra-modern efficiency of each kitchen. Besides the two main elevators there is a service elevator by itself. Nothing has been omitted to make Park Place the finest that one can see and live in, including such additional features as private maid's rooms and private pool cabanas.

A. Parker Bryant, senior partner of Wagstaff & Bryant, sales agent, has told me these features are attracting much comment.

Another factor is that all the apartments are reached from the rear or eastern side, thus permitting one to go from the swimming pool, which is also on the east side, to the rooms.

EDGEWATER GULF HOTEL

On the Mississippi Gulf Coast

By John and Jean Bosworth

A "BIT OF IRELAND" was brought to the Edgewater Gulf Hotel in early December with the showing by Mr. Edward Ball, the hotel's owner, of color film made on his recent trip to ancient Ballynahinch Castle on the banks of Ballynahinch River in County Galway, Ireland.

Friends of Mr. Ball at the Hotel in Edgewater Park on Mississippi's Gulf Coast — midway between Gulfport and Biloxi — saw the striking scenes caught in color motion by the camera. Sweeping views were shown of rolling acres about the castle and the purple mountain backdrop of the 12th Century structure built by the "Ferocious" O'Flahertys. The film shown by Mr. Ball, an owner of the castle, was for a group of his friends at the Edgewater Gulf to spotlight the enticing fishing in the blue, bubbling waters of the Ballynahinch. Angling from one of its many stone piers was a Frenchman who has been fishing annually in the Ballynahinch for more than 30 years.

With other American owners, Mr. Ball has turned the historic Ballynahinch Castle into a hotel retreat. He visited in Ireland in October and November, went to the Edgewater Gulf for several days upon his return to this country, thence to his Southwood Plantation near Tallahassee, and during the holiday season came back to the Edgewater, where he spends every Christmas.

At the Edgewater showing of the motion pictures of the Irish castle were General Manager A. P. Shoemaker Jr. of the Edgewater Gulf Hotel; Col. Carl Gohman, a Winter resident of the Edgewater Gulf, who is formerly of New Albany, Ind.; Robert Phelps of Chicago; B. L. Hopper of St. Louis, also an Edgewater Gulf permanent resident; Frank Fagan of Gulfport; and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Marmaduke, whose annual vacation at the Edgewater Gulf extended through the holidays. Their daughter, Virginia, a TV personality, came from Chicago to visit them in December. Mr. and Mrs. Marmaduke, of Chicago, have been guests for 16 seasons at the Edgewater. Mr. Marmaduke is a retired official of the Illinois Central Railroad Company.

Also guests of Mr. Ball at the preview of the Ballynahinch Castle film were Mr. and Mrs. F. D. "Hap" Reilly, New Orleans socialites who live at the Edgewater Gulf, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Kingston of New Orleans, December guests at the hotel. Mr. Kingston is the new president of the New Orleans Stock Exchange, a post he is holding for the second time. He formerly served on the board of the New Orleans Golf Association and is former president of the Audubon Golf Club. Mrs. Kingston is active in charity work in New Orleans with the Needlework Guild of America.

Launching of the 25 million dollar passenger liner, S.S. Brasil, December 16 at nearby Pascagoula by the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corporation for the owner, Moore-McCormack Lines, Inc., brought 225 officials and guests to the Edgewater Gulf after the ship was christened by Mrs. Emmet J. McCormack.

The Brasil and a sister ship, the new S.S. Argentina (also under construction) will ply between New York and East Coast South American ports, with stops at Trinidad and Barbados in the Caribbean. Ports of call in South America include Rio de Janeiro, Santos (Sao Paula), Bahia, Montevideo and Buenos Aires.

Officials and guests of the Moore-McCormack Lines were invited to the Edgewater Gulf Hotel for Southern breakfast — Virginia ham and grits — the morning of the launching and for a buffet luncheon following the ceremonies. The same night the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corporation of Pascagoula held a formal banquet at the hotel.

Distinguished guests at the hotel during the Fall season were Dr. Alton Ochsner, New Orleans, founder of the Ochsner Foundation Hospital and Ochsner Clinic, and Mrs. Ochsner; Mrs. Laura Chastain of Palm Beach, Fla.; B. J. Carter of Meridian, Miss., president of the Merchants and Farmers Bank; and Dr. and Mrs. George W. Calver, of Washington, D. C. The Calvers vacationed here after Dr. Calver attended a meeting of the Cooperative Atherosclerosis Group. He is a retired Admiral in the U.S. Navy and now is physician to Congress.

Guests also at the hotel in the Fall, when they came South to attend the sixth annual convention and free enterprise celebration of the Mississippi Manufacturers Association, Bruce, and Mrs. Henry O. Dumas, Shreveport, La., socialites, were at the Edgewater Gulf for a vacation during the Fall season. The Cowans (they are members of the Shreveport Country Club and Mrs. Cowan is active in the Junior League) and Mrs. Cowan's mother, Mrs. Dumas, went on from the Edgewater Gulf to finish their holiday with friends in Gulf Shores, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Meyers of New Orleans, La., recently returned from Bermuda, had a Fall holiday along with their sons, Jimmy and Dickie, at the Edgewater Gulf. Young Dickie, who with his parents has traveled extensively, remarked, "In all the world — and space, too — there's no Company; a member of the New Orleans Country Club; International House; Pickwick Club and Stratford Club. Mrs. Garic is a member of the Orleans Club.

Camelback Inn

at Phoenix, Arizona

By Margaret Thomas

Photos by Bowerman—Camelback Inn

A panorama from the upper patios of Camelback Inn shows the dramatic contrast between the verdure of the Inn's velvet lawns and color-splashed flower gardens and the rugged desert surrounding the oasis in the desert near Phoenix, Ariz. The mountain silhouetted in the background is famous Camelback Mountain, for which the desert Winter resort was named.

THE JANUARY SUN shines golden on smooth velvety lawns at Camelback Inn on the Arizona desert near Phoenix, Ariz., bringing flaming color to flower strewn gardens and adding enchantment to the resort inevitables for Winter sunlovers at the Inn, which was filled to overflow at the recent holiday season.

Open since mid-October for its longest season in history, the famous desert resort, owned and managed by Mr. Jack Stewart, has hosted many prominents to date who are drawn annually by the spectacular golfing on the adjoining Paradise Valley Country Club fairways, the brilliant blue skies, clear, dry air, and friendly informality at the Inn.

The full time social program provides activities for those who enjoy a busy, festive vacation. For those who come to sunlaze and relax completely, each casa has its private sundeck and privacy away from the hum of activity, and they soon come to understand the paradox of the famous Inn slogan "Where Time Stands Still."

Parents, too, can relax, for the Hopalong College program for tots 4 to 12 attracts dozens of families who wish to share vacation time and still be free to golf, ride, swim, or sunlaze. A full time children's director plans a daily routine of desert activities for the small fry.

Arizona vacationers on the desert at the Inn this season have included eminents from all parts of the nation, for the sun serves as its magnet.

From the Eastern Seaboard and the rush of the nation's capital—an annual group—Senator and Mrs. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire with the R. C. The last have purchased property near the Inn for Winter homes, overlooking the golf course. Hall Printing executive Vincent McMahon brought his family to the Inn for an annual holiday reunion.

Golfing and sunning from the Detroit areas to date were Mr. and Mrs. Simon Den Uyl, prominent in Detroit civic affairs and president of Bohn aluminum; the Ivan Wiles of Flint, executive vice-president of General Motors Corp.; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hufstader, also a vice-president of General Motors; and here from Shaker Heights, Ohio, were annual sunlazers the Wilson Moriaritys, president of National Malleable Steel, who will return in March.

Here from Ohio, too, Frank D. Johnson, chairman of the board of Trabon Engineering, with sons and daughters and grandchildren for a family reunion on the desert. The group included the N. Stewart Robsons of Shaker Heights, the Thornton Lakes of Cleveland Heights, both families with children, and Miss Elizabeth Lake of Cleveland Heights.

Coming West from Kentucky this season have been Mr. and Mrs. George Boomer of Louisville and two granddaughters; from Louisville, too, David Reynolds of the vast Reynolds aluminum manufacturing note. The W. G. "Rock" Kings were suntanning from nearby Virginia and will return later in the season for a second desert holiday.

Several distinguished personalities in the field of education have sojourned early season at Camelback Inn. Fleeing the snows were Dr. and Mrs. James Lewis Morrill of Minneapolis, president of the University of Minnesota, and his wife, and Dr. and Mrs. George W. Starcher, president of the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks.

From the West coast, Dr. Frederick Hard, president of Scripps College for Women, and Mrs. Hard relaxed at the Inn with their friends, Dr. and Mrs. Max Mason, former president of the University of Chicago, and his wife. Dr. Mason is the distinguished former president of the Rockefeller Foundation, also. All reside in Claremont, Calif.

From the West, too, this season was Mrs. George Vaughan, former president of the Los Angeles Junior League, and now a director of the national association.

The Watterson Rothackers, socially prominent in Los Angeles and New York, spent an annual holiday in the sunshine.

From the San Francisco Bay area were the Chester Sharps, widely known in international shipping circles, while their home near the Inn was readied for occupancy.

Bermuda: "A Little Island in the Middle of the Sea"

By Barbara Dubivsky

BERMUDA is two and a half hours and twenty degrees Fahrenheit away from Northeastern United States. Summer lingers on through the Fall in these islands, and Autumn never really gives in to Old Man Winter, which makes for a very pleasant climate and a delightful atmosphere in which to sightsee, shop, play tennis or golf, go fishing, or just plain loaf.

Pre-holiday visitors included a large number of socialites and world celebrities. Among these was America's former Ambassador to Italy, attractive and talented Clare Booth Luce, who came to Bermuda to learn skin-diving from Park and Jean Breck. Inspired by Cousteau's, "The Silent World," Mrs. Luce was utterly enchanted with the magnificent marine forest (roughly a hundred miles square) that runs all along Bermuda's North Shore. She returned several times this year, bringing a niece, Miss Clare Booth Carey, on one occasion.

On another, Mrs. Luce was the houseguest of British banker Henry Tiarks and Mrs. Tiarks at their Tucker's Town residence, "Out-of-the-Blue." The Tiarks' teenage daughter, Henrietta, was called "Debutante of the Year" by the English press. Lovely young Henrietta put aside her ball gowns for the more casual shorts and shirt attire of Bermuda. In addition to Mrs. Luce, the Tiarks entertained author-actor Noel Coward, who was then staying at his Bermuda home.

Mr. Coward, in turn, entertained Rex Harrison and his English film star wife, Kaye Kendall, at "Spithead Lodge," on the shores of Granway Deep. An attractive old Bermuda house, the Lodge was built by Exekiah Frfth, a Bermudian trader of another century.

It is said to be haunted by the ghost of a young girl.

Opera singer Patrice Munsel preferred the surface of the sea to its depths and busied herself perfecting the aquatic sport of water-skiing. After several lessons, she was proficient enough to manage on one ski, and delighted in skimming over the waters of Mangrove Bay. Miss Munsel, who in private life is Mrs. Robert Schuler, was accompanied by her husband, their daughter Heidi, and son, Rhett, who was born in Bermuda two years ago. They stayed at "Landmark," an impressive, rambling house on a hill overlooking Whale Bay.

Handsome movie star Farley Granger caused a flurry among the females whenever he pedaled through town enroute to one of the South Shore beaches. A frequent visitor to these islands, Mr. Granger is among those returning for the Christmas holidays.

This Fall Bermuda welcomed a new American Consul General, Mr. Sidney K. Lafoon, his wife and two daughters, Sydney Ann and Margaret Louise. "Donaghmore," the Consul's official residence, looks out over the Atlantic Ocean. Its private pink beach is a great favorite of Mr. John Foster Dulles, American Secretary of State, who enjoys swimming from it while his plane is being refueled enroute to and from international conferences.

An all-year-round sport, tennis took to the spotlight late in the year, with Bermuda's two big fall Invitation Tournaments — the Bermuda Lawn Tennis Club and Coral Beach & Tennis Club — attracting top players from the States. After strenuous sets played on the Coral Beach courts, everyone relaxed at cocktails and dinner parties given by the local tennis set. Reggie and Foxie Cooper entertained at their charming cottage, "Tally-Ho"; Mal and June Martin at "Beau Sejour"; and the Bill Brewers were joint hosts with the Bob Algers and John Riihiluomas at "Gay Shadows."

Lovely young Henrietta Tiarks, British Deb of the Year, recuperated from the rigors of the London social season at her family's Bermuda residence in Tucker's Town. Presented to the Queen last Spring, she is currently participating in debutante parties in the States, where she is a student at Briarcliff College.

A glimpse of the dining room wing of the Seigniory Club in the Province of Quebec. These windows face the frozen Ottawa River.

WHEN JANUARY COMES and snow lies softly on the hills and the fir trees wear sumptuous white mantles, when forests of dark pine become picture post card scenes, then the Seigniory Club here in Quebec Province faces the Winter with particular joy.

The season got off to a good start during the holidays with plenty of snow and many club members gathered from the four corners of the Continent. There was curling, skiing, sleighing, skating, riding, tobogganing and a hundred and one other pastimes that make Winter so enjoyable in this part of the world. Earlier, in mid-December, the 18th Annual International Curling Bonspiel was held with players from various parts of the United States competing against Canadian curlers. A home Seigniory rink skipped by W. H. A. Short won and the runners-up were A. B. Hastings' team from Ardsley, N. Y.

Among other week-end dates the January calendar at the Club has the twenty-seventh annual curling bonspiel for the Rankin trophies scheduled for the 24th to the 26th and from January 30th to February 2d the feminine curlers have their day or days with the twenty-seventh annual competition for the Sewell trophy. In mid-January the

Seigniory Club

Seigniory expects a visit from the touring Scottish team of women curlers who are visiting Canada this Winter; they will spend a day or two at the Seigniory, curling and having a glimpse of the fascinating Quebec countryside before proceeding on to Ottawa to be received by Canada's Governor General.

There are probably very few members and their guests who come to the Seigniory Club who have not been curious about the Manor House, that stately old house standing for more than a hundred years on the banks of the Ottawa River and now a favorite rendezvous among club members. The house's historical associations and the biography of its former owner, the Hon. Louis-Joseph Papineau, are always sources of interest to newcomers. Born on St. James Street, Montreal, in 1786, Papineau was the son of a notary who had become possessed of the old Seigneurie de la Petite Nation de la Paroisse de Bonsecours, on the Ottawa River. This tract had been granted the Bishop Laval in the early days of settlement of Canada and by him named the "Seigniory of the Little Nation" after the Little Nation Indians of the Algonquin tribe who roamed the vicinity. The Bishop then gave it to one of the brotherhoods of the Church and many years after it passed into the hands of the elder Papineau.

His son, Louis-Joseph, was a greatly gifted young man and even when a student at the Seminary at Quebec was conspicuous for eloquence. When only twenty-six he took his seat in the House of Assembly for Lower Canada, where for the next twenty-five years he was destined to play a notable part in Quebec history of the period and to loom large on the troubled horizon of politics in the rest of Canada of the day. Three years after he entered the House he was elected Speaker and for the next twenty-two years, with but one brief interval, he continued in that position.

The story of the Rebellion of 1837 is well-known. Papineau always declared he was no more responsible for the armed uprising than others of his colleagues. After the skirmish at St. Denis, where several lives were lost, including that of his closest friend, Papineau departed for the United States, later going to Paris, where he remained until 1845. All being forgiven then, he returned to Canada and the Seigniory of Montebello, where he settled down to the life of a country gentleman.

Within a year or two, Papineau was returned to the Canadian Parliament, remaining a member until 1854. But he was no longer in the forefront with reforms, for these had been accomplished and Responsible Government was in force.

The Manor House was built in 1850 when he was sixty-four. It is large and square and three stories in height with dormer windows in the third. Its squareness is masked by turrets, chateau style, on the corners facing the Ottawa River. A stone tower, which Papineau built for the safety of his library, is at the right of the main entrance. A large central hall without a staircase divides the house in two, French doors opening at each end. In the turrets, quaint, circular staircases lead to the stories. The Manor is beautifully decorated and furnished in Empire style, restored as nearly as possible to what it was in Papineau's lifetime.

Recent luncheon guests at The Colony, from the left, Mrs. John W. Salisbury, Mrs. Bernard H. Cooley, Mrs. John Van Boven, Mrs. Lamar Harmon, Mrs. Archibald McNeil, Mrs. John Witman, Mrs. John J. Dewey.

LONG A FAVORITE with vacationers who have learned that even in the Summer Palm Beach, with its off-shore breezes, can be more comfortable than many resort areas in the North, The Colony was receiving a record influx of guests for the Winter season as early as mid-November.

The popular year-round hostelry was operating at near capacity during the Christmas holidays and, according to Bernard Cooley, The Colony's president and general manager, every indication points towards a banner year at the resort.

With activities at the Everglades Club, the Bath and Tennis Club and many other Palm Beach organizations beginning in early December, many members of the cottage colony have been opening their homes in the early Fall and the Main Dining Room, the Terrace Room, the Charcoal Cafe and the cocktail lounge at The Colony have been, as usual, popular for dinner, luncheon and cocktail parties given by residents and hotel guests alike.

The Colony's metropolitan hotel facilities and its central location in regard to the beach, golf courses, Worth Avenue, art galleries, theatres and means of transportation have made it the chosen headquarters in Palm Beach for many.

The Colony Sun and Bath Club helps to create the air of informality and club-like atmosphere that so many of the guests enjoy. Guests who come to absorb Florida's most popular product can spend the entire day in the sunshine, swimming in the uniquely-shaped salt water pool, or sunbathing in a deck chair. Even meals can be served al fresco without necessitating a change of clothing. At night, the gaily-lighted pool and palm trees surrounding the patio make a charming background for frequent fashion shows held for the guests' entertainment.

Recent arrivals at The Colony include: William Holmes, New York; Mrs. George Peck, New York; Rear Admiral and Mrs. George M. Lowry, Carmel Valley, Calif.;

Palm Beach's Mayor Claude Reese and Town Manager J. M. Boyd at luncheon on The Colony patio.

Mrs. Benjamin H. Collings, Louisville, Ky.; Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Teachout, Nashville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. James McCahey, Chicago; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kemp Quigley of New York.

Other Colony guests in residence include: Ellsworth C. Alvord, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. P. Bouvet, Havana; Mrs. Robert E. Burns, Los Angeles; Howard C. Connor, Brookline, Mass.; Henry Chanin, Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Donovan, New York; Eugene S. Goebel, Chicago; Mrs. E. H. Sea Island, Georgia

By Rita Van Pelt

THE ANNUAL HALLOWEEN BALL is one of the brightest dates on The Cloister calendar and this year it was gayer than ever before, it seemed, with hotel guests and cottage residents knocking themselves out to vie for costume honors.

This year's theme, that of a Charles Addams' type hotel called, appropriately, "Cluster Inn of Spook Island," lent itself to some imaginative decorating and the hotel staff had gone all out to convert the lobby, Palm Corridor and five club rooms into various rooms of a haunted hotel. Most chilling of these was the "Cloisterphobia Room" where dim lights glowed weirdly under low hanging Spanish moss as Sea Island's Arthur Murray Dancers performed a grisly slow-motion exhibition upon a stage in the center of the room. White-sheeted ghosts sat about at tables grinning appreciatively while being served eyeball highballs and a beverage that strangely resembled catsup by a chalk-faced waitress in a Red Cross nurse's uniform!

There was, in addition, a "Martha Hurry" Dance Studio where a vampirish instructress with a long whip offered dance destruction in the infamous tragic step, Argentine tangle and so on . . . a Flower Shop where dead orchids, devils' tongue and cacti were "sold" by what appeared to be the reincarnation of Belle Watling . . . a Drug Shop where witches' brew and strange love potions were dispensed . . . a Transportation Desk where one could charter a boat to cross the River Styx or rent a broom to go most any place . . . and so on, ad infinitum.

It was great fun, as Sea Island costume balls invariably are.

Much building has been in progress on this Island during the past six months. The enlarged and newly decorated club rooms of The Cloister have created a great deal of favorable comment. They were rushed to completion in time for the aggregation of Southern governors who met here in September. An addition to the hotel dining rooms is in progress and is scheduled for completion this month. This will alleviate the somewhat congested conditions in our present dining rooms due to the rapid growth of the Sea Island cottage colony.

A number of handsome new homes have been built on the Island during the past year, the most outstanding of which, perhaps, is that of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Fulton of Lancaster, Ohio. This house merited, and got, a four or five page feature story in Town and Country, October issue. Other homes completed during the year are those of the John Duncans of West Charlton, N. Y.; the George W. Vanderhoofs of New York City; the Elbert G. Bakers of Bronxville, N. Y., and the R. L. Doyals of Atlanta. A large home on the beach is now under construction for the George Guckenberger family of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The National Landscape Design Award given each year by the American Society of Nurserymen for outstanding achievement in industrial landscaping and beautification was awarded this year to T. Miesse Baumgardner and George Betsill, Landscape Architects of the Sea Island Company. Mr. Baumgardner and Mr. Betsill went to Miami to receive the award, which was presented at the keynote luncheon of the association's 82nd annual convention at the Fontainebleau Hotel.

The Sea Island landscape architects are directly responsible for the planning and upkeep of all grounds on Sea Island, including The Cloister lawns and those of the Island's privately owned homes, as well as our 18-hole golf course, which is said to be one of the most beautiful in the world.

Dates have been announced for Sea Island's two big Winter golf tournaments. The Sea Island Ladies' Invitation Open was held on January 10, 11 and 12, with a clinic on the 9th which was conducted by one of the professionals.

This was the fifth annual Ladies' Tournament played at Sea Island. Always a big splash publicity wise, it made larger headlines than ever before since each year it attracts more widespread attention and a more enthusiastic gathering. The women play under the sponsorship of the Ladies' Professional Golf Association and the Sea Island tournament annually kicks off their Winter season tour. All the top pros of America and several foreign countries participate. Last year's tournament was won by Mickey Wright of California.

Dates set for the Sea Island Annual Seniors' Invitation Tournament are a little later this year, the reason being that the gentlemen prefer it that way. Instead of following on the heels of the Ladies' Open as in the past, it will be played on January 29, 30, 31 and February 1. Last year's champion, J. Wolcott Brown of Sea Girt, N. J., won in a playoff with W. Freeman Darby of St. Simons Island.

The Sea Breeze

THE SEA BREEZE HOTEL is an oasis found by celebrities seeking solitude, honeymooners seeking informality, and those who want a change.

Located a few miles south of the heart of Palm Beach, it is one of the few hotels in the area on the ocean. It is managed by Edward Nash, who is well-known in the area, having previously operated his own hotel.

Celebrities have been numerous, the latest being the Ambassador from Saudi Arabia, A. L. Karyal, who stayed through the holidays to get a much needed rest. Congressman and Mrs. Sterling Eaton from Plymouth, Mich., spent some time at the Sea Breeze. Mr. Eaton was formerly a newspaper publisher.

Gen. and Mrs. Rafael Trujillo visited there late in the Fall with a party of friends from

The Beach Club Hotel

NAPLES-ON-THE-GULF, FLORIDA

By Nance B. Greenfield

All photos by Thomas McGrath

"ON OUR FREQUENT TRIPS through Southwest Florida we have made it a firm practice to always headquarter at The Beach Club Hotel, not only because of its inviting surroundings and splendid cuisine, but because in our book, it holds more attraction than any other hotel in Florida," was written recently to Beach Club Manager, Mr. Philip D. Harris, by a prominent real estate authority.

Perhaps these words reflect the happy, holiday atmosphere, delicious food delightfully served, luxurious appointments, and complete recreational facilities which are the renowned trademarks of the exclusive Beach Club Hotel located in the charming resort city of Naples, Florida. The idyllic location, directly on the Gulf of Mexico with 1,000 feet of private beach frontage, the 18-hole championship calibre golf course on the premises, and the three all weather tennis courts give sports enthusiasts ample opportunity to select their own special field of endeavor. Bowling-on-the-green, shuffleboard, safe surf bathing, excellent shelling, and water skiing are also major parts of the recreational program.

Early in October the fairways of the Beach Club's links were in their customary top condition in anticipation of the Third Annual P.G.A. Golf Tournament. Over a hundred of Florida's top professional and amateur golfers were registered at the Club to compete in this outstanding tourney. Pete Cooper of Orlando, veteran pro, captured the crown by taking first prize, and Lee Raymond, University of Miami student from Columbus, Ohio, led the field in the amateur division. A large group of avid golf fans viewed this exciting fast-moving tournament.

The Third Annual Southern Seniors Invitational Golf Tournament takes place this month and promises to draw many entries both from the entire southern region of the country. Special activities have been planned for the contestants and their wives, including cocktail parties, shelling and fishing expeditions, outdoor steak roasts, and a sumptuous banquet at which time the awarding of tournament prizes will take place.

Sixty high-ranking Civil Air Patrol officers from regional, wing, group and squadron commands were also present at The Beach Club in October to make plans for their Southern regional meeting to be held at The Beach Club and Naples Hotel in April with an anticipated attendance of 1,000 persons.

Plans have been formulated for another cooperative apartment in addition to the plush Bahama Club. The new cooperative apartment, "Coquina Apartments," will be the ultimate in luxury and may rightfully claim the title of being the most beautiful in Florida. It will take its place on the shores of the Gulf of Mexico midway between The Beach Club and the Bahama Club. Construction will begin in April with completion expected for the 1958-59 season.

The Honorable William C. Cramer, Florida's Republican member of Congress, was guest of honor recently at a dinner in the Reef Room. The dinner was given by the Naples Women's Republican Club and the newly formed Men's Republican Group.

Admiral and Mrs. Francis McCorkel were among outstanding guests recently at The Beach Club, arriving from Key West, where the Admiral is Commandant of the Naval Air Base. The McCorkels resided in Washington, D. C., prior to the Key West assignment. Mrs. McCorkel, a descendant of one of Massachusetts' oldest families, finds Florida a delightful place to live and especially enjoyed Naples' white, sandy beach and all the outdoor activities the Club offers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Plakias were seen on the golf course often during their Fall holiday. Mr. Plakias is the First Secretary of the American Embassy in The Hague, Holland. Mrs. Plakias is the former Miss Jane F. Plimton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Plimton of Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Bonnie Randolph, among the leading women pros on the tournament circuit this summer, has returned recently to join professionals Paul Bell and Dick Roberts of the Beach Club golfing staff.

All indications point to a very busy season with The Beach Club booked to capacity for the Winter months, with long waiting lists for reservations. The Naples Hotel, reputed to be the oldest resort hotel in Florida, is also heavily booked and opening earlier than usual to accommodate the many reservation requests coming in daily. Mr. J. Parke O'Connor, the newly appointed manager, arrived early in the Fall to make plans for the coming season.

Yachting in Palm Beach Waters

By Charles Wieland

THE FLEET OF YACHTS that make Palm Beach their home during the season started to return to the world-famed docks in November as a prelude to an enthusiastic blue water yachting season. Boat slips at both the Australian and Brazilian Avenue docks have been completely reserved for the season. In addition to several new craft, the Biltmore Hotel dock is expected to have its perennial visitors back this year. Avid fishermen at the Sailfish Club will notice several new boats moored at the dock. The Palm Beach Yacht Club dock have reservations for an impressive fleet in anticipation for a record season.

One of the highlights will be the arrival of D. C. Ellwood's new Curlew III. The Curlew III, scheduled to arrive at the Australian Avenue Dock sometime in January, is the first power sail of its size to be built in this country in the last two decades. Built by the Burger Boat Co. in Manitowoc, Wisconsin, the Curlew is expected to create unusual interest in the yachting colony when she makes her premiere arrival here.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynde Seldon arrived December 7 to spend the season aboard their 95-foot houseboat, All Alone, berthed at the Australian dock. One of the first active cruisers, the Seldons made a short trip to the Key Largo Angler's Club, returning here December 17.

The arrival of the Seafarer, Mr. and Mrs. Houghton Metcalf's new 77-foot off-shore cruiser with steadying sails, highlighted the bustling activity at the Australian dock during December.

The Seafarer was built in Germany last year and its proud owners have logged thousands with her while cruising waters in Europe, Central America, the British West Indies and the U. S.

After spending the Summer in California and Evanston, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Dreiske arrived in Palm Beach to spend the season aboard their 48-foot cruiser, Vicaries II, berthed at the Brazilian Avenue dock.

The brightest arrival at the Sailfish Club was Allison Fleitas' new 55-foot Trumpy cruiser, Vael. Built last June by the Trumpy Boat Company in Annapolis, Md., the sleek lined Vael is equipped with twin GM turbo diesel engines, each with 300 hp. each. The handsome craft sleeps four and included as part of the latest designs in yachting instruments are a radar, automatic pilot control and a depth recorder.

second annual Miami to Palm Beach Sail Race. Sponsored by the Cruising Club of America and the Sailfish Club, the race proved a tedious test for the mariners in the 61-mile event. Though Chance, Horace Binney's 44-foot cutter, was first to cross the finish line. Dr. William Piper's 36-foot yawl, Spray, was officially announced the winner on corrected time.

Joho-So IV, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mellon's 110-foot cruiser, returned to the Biltmore Hotel Dock in December. During the Summer the Joho-So cruised the Great Lakes and Canadian waters, a popular Summer cruising area for many Palm Beach yachts. The Mellons arrived in the resort December 29.

Returning to take its berth beside the Joho-So was Dan Taylor's Sea Level. To complete the big three at the Biltmore dock, the Carola, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mandel's 121-foot houseboat, was scheduled to be here during the holidays.

Huns-Buddy III, Mr. G. Whitfield Richards' 48-foot power cruiser, returned to the Brazilian Avenue dock November 18 after spending the Summer in Bayhead, N. J. Tied nearby is the completely overhauled Clare H IV, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Heerman's 55-foot sleek Trumpy houseboat. Long time yachting visitors, the Heermans arrived after the holidays.

Also at the Brazilian Avenue dock is the Salar IV, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Wilson's 62-foot power cruiser. Formerly of Hobe Sound, the Wilsons are spending their first season aboard the Salar.

"It is a commodious and comfortable home," reported Mr. Wilson, who is a former president of United Air Lines.

The Alimar, Mr. Karl J. Eisenhardt's 75-foot houseboat, was one of the early arrivals at the Australian dock. During the Summer the Alimar cruised the Chesapeake Bay area, New York and Northeast Harbor, Maine.

Also cruising the Great Lakes and Canadian waters was the popular Makaira, Lester and Ruth Sears' 70-foot Trumpy cruiser, a familiar visitor to the Australian dock.

Another early arrival at the Australian Dock was Benson Ford's 60-foot steel hulled Onika. The Onika cruised the Great Lakes and Canadian waters during the Summer. While cruising the Georgian Bay area, the Onika passed the Makaira.

Two neighboring yachts at the Australian Avenue Dock, the Osceola, 112-foot cruiser owned by Mrs. Frank Norris of Chicago, and the Captiva, Mr. J. A. Martino's 111-foot luxury houseboat. During the Summer the Osceola was berthed at Toronto, Ontario, Canada. The Captiva spent the Summer in New York.

Versatile, Harold S. Vanderbilt's 88-foot trim-lined ketch, returned to the Palm Beach Yacht Club dock during December. Another arrival at the dock was the Slick Chick, owned by Eugene A. Smith of Accomac, Va. The Slick Chick has recently been featured in national yachting magazines. The 61-foot Florence VI, owned by William J. McCahan 3d, is expected to be cruising the southern waters in January.

Mr. Daniel H. Braham of Port O'Connor, Texas, will be represented at the Palm Beach Yacht Club dock, with his 112-foot cruiser, the Cosa Grande, and the Cosa, a 40-foot sleek Rybovich fishing boat.

THE AMBASSADOR HOTEL AND VILLAS/THE SEA BREEZE MOTOR HOTEL.

There has been great response among members of the Palm Beach Cottage Colony, who have shown their enthusiasm by forming committees for special activities in conjunction with the polo, including half-time attractions as well as entertainment for visiting teams.

Emilio Tagle is President and Manager and Porfirio Rubirosa is Chairman of the International Polo Committee.

Mrs. Emilio Tagle is Chairman of the Special Events Committee, whose members are Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas, Mrs. William Benjamin II, Mrs. Bedford Davie, Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer Jr., Mrs. Holmson Brainard, and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sanford are Co-Chairmen of the Benefits Committee assisted by Alexis Obolensky, Mrs. John M. Rutherford, and Mrs. Porfirio Rubirosa.

Mrs. Walter Brooks III is Chairman of the Box Committee. Other committees are being formed.

Mr. Tagle and Mr. Rubirosa have been successful in lining up top players for their games, including ten-goal player (there are only eight in the world), Julio Menditeguay, who leads the Argentine team. Making arrangements for the Argentine and Venezuelan teams, Gustavo Rotundo, President of the Sartenejas Polo Club of Caracas, Venezuela, and Vicente Clyne of Argentina and Venezuela, flew to Palm Beach in December.

General Rafael Trujillo, polo-playing son of the President of the Dominican Republic, was also in Palm Beach in December to arrange for the Dominican team to compete with the Palm Beach International Polo Club.

Many of the favorites of the area will play with the new club, including Lester Armour, Jules (Tiger) Romph, George Kent, Del Carroll, Lyle Phillips, Len Bernard, George Oliver, Bob Wickser, Don Swerdlin, Bill Hudson, and Col. Tom Matlack, to name a few.

Mrs. Tagle and Mrs. Sanford are working with their committees on outstanding half-time events which add to the color of an afternoon at the Polo Club.

There will be a grand Concours d'Elegance for the Heart Fund on Sunday, February 9, just before the Heart Ball at the Palm Beach Towers. The Concours is patterned after the famed Concours d'Elegance held annually on the French Riviera. It will consist of fifty lovely women of the Palm Beach Cottage Colony, wearing clothes to complete an ensemble of beauty and elegance with latest model automobiles which will be chauffeured by gentlemen of the Palm Beaches.

Mrs. Sanford has not announced her plans yet for the game to be held before her Gala Polo Ball, which she organizes for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. However, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will be sponsors for the event.

Classic elegance in motorcars: The Lincoln Premiere Landau.

THE NEW LINCOLN . . . inspired by the Continental

The one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic

The New Lincoln is a fresh, distinctively new personality in the fine car field.

Immediately, you will see it is the one car that deserves to be called a modern classic . . . styled and crafted in the Continental tradition.

Perhaps—by simply assuming that the fine car you judged best three, four, or even ten years ago still rates top choice—you've been depriving yourself of a great deal of pleasure.

To be sure, we suggest you inspect The New Lincoln—with an open mind and a critical eye.

On the road, The New Lincoln lets you re-discover the rare pleasures of fine car motoring.

It has a new, 375-hp. engine that barely whispers, because it is built to a whole new standard of precision tolerances. And thanks to a new single unit body and frame, it has a quietness of ride formerly achieved only through hand-crafting.

Clearly, The New Lincoln is the one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic.

The San Marcos at Chandler, Arizona

By Sally Sloane

A daily round of golf over the lush green San Marcos Country Club course, finest in the Southwest, is the order of the day for Marion, Indiana, vacationists, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond P. Fishburne, shown figuring out their scores.

WHEN YOU SPEAK of playing golf during an Arizona holiday, its but natural to conjure up visions of making the beautiful San Marcos Hotel down Chandler way your golfing headquarters. Rated by the "experts" as the finest in the Southwest, the 6600-yard, 18-hole San Marcos Country Club course is adjacent to the resort's exotic landscaped grounds.

Tournaments play an important part in the lives of San Marcos guests and nine are booked for the month of February, with the all important annual President's Cup match scheduled for March 14 this year. The tournament is unique in that a contestant must be a past or present president of a company in order to be eligible.

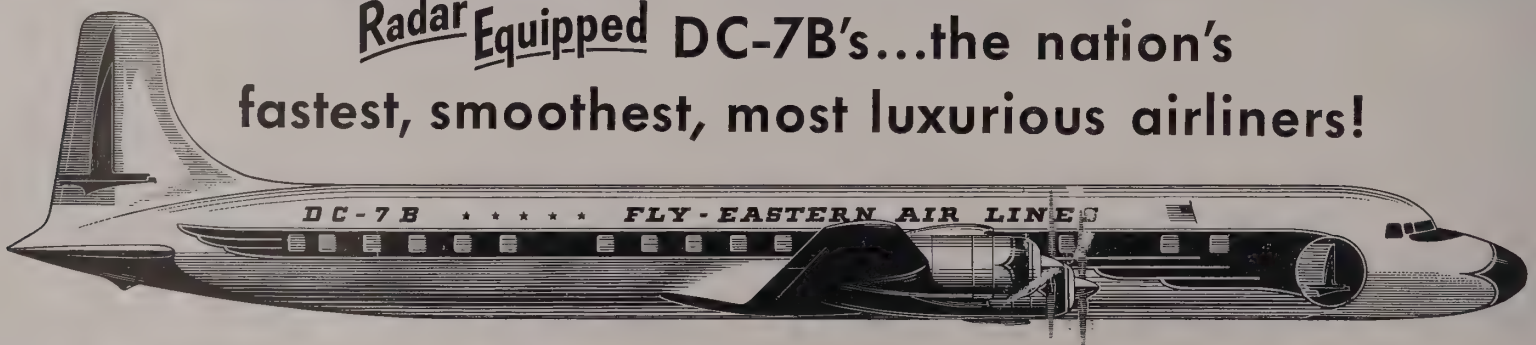

Mr. Russell Stern of Chicago, president of the R. T. Stern Company, was the 1957 champion.

Golf played a prominent part with members of the Executive Committee of the Governor's Conference who met at the San Marcos for the second year. Attending the Conference were such well known State Governors and their wives as Governor and Mrs. Ernest McFarland of Arizona, Governor and Mrs. Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire, Governor and Mrs. Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia, Governor and Mrs. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota and Governor and Mrs. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho. Also Governors Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland and Charles H. Russell of Nevada.

An intimate charm has always prevailed at the San Marcos which is reflected in the weekly cocktail parties for new arrivals. Mr. John H. Quarty, personable president of the resort and his attractive wife, gracious hosts at these parties, inaugurated the idea of holding them in the privacy of their own beautiful home, which overlooks the broad expanse of the San Marcos Country Club course. Personal invitations are extended to the guests and with the touch of genius that has marked his successful resort operation, Mr. Quarty refers to the locale of his parties as "Quarty's Quarters."

One of the most colorful of parties dotting the social season was that given in honor of La Jolla friends from the West Coast who planned their Arizona holiday all at the same time and among the residents of this seaport town were Dr. and Mrs. John Younie, Miss Genevieve Ferguson, Mrs. B. A. Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Clay MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Three generations from Kansas City, Mo., all joined hands for a gala holiday at the San Marcos which marked their fourth year here together and included were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin B. Marsh, their sons Donald and Alan and grandmothers, Mrs. Lela Reid and Mrs. Myrtle Marsh.

The Round Table

EACH MONDAY AFTERNOON during January, February and March, the Palm Beach Round table is presenting a distinguished speaker at the Everglades Club.

Speakers during the remainder of the series will be General William H. Wilbur, "World Struggle for Freedom," February 3; Daniel Schorr, "A Reporter's View of the Soviet Union," February 10; Norman Cousins, "The Making of Tomorrow," February 17; Willy Ley, "The Missile and the Future," February 24; Dr. Philip Cummings, "Hopping Behind the Head Lines," March 3; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, "What Price Freedom Now," March 10; and General Frank L. Howley, "From Hong-Kong to the Upper Congo," March 17.

Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden, President of the Round Table, says that in addition to providing speakers for Palm Beach, the Round Table awards scholarships to outstanding students to attend the Institute of World Affairs, Twin Lakes, Salisbury, Connecticut.

"Last Summer sixty-five scholarships were given, thirty-five to students in the Seminar under Dr. Arthur Smithies of Harvard University, on "Building Free World Security," and thirty to Hungarian refugee students, who had faced the tanks in Budapest and escaped to freedom. Twenty-seven of these are now in universities and technical schools in the United States. Among the speakers who addressed the students were Robert Moody McKinney, United States representative to the International Atomic Energy Agency; Dr. Max Millikan, Professor of Economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Dr. William Y. Elliott, Professor of Government at Harvard University and member of the National Security Board.

"The Institute of World Affairs trains youth for leadership and enables college students of many nations, races and religious, to experience an international life in a living center, where all work for the same great goal of peace through understanding," continued Mrs. Hadden. "Through developing more mature minds, they help to build a world community. Returning to their own lands, they interpret the moral and spiritual values on which our American government is based."

WHERE DISTINCTION HAS MEANING

With the Audubon Key section of Point Manalapan rapidly approaching completion, the fabled beauty of old Hypoluxo Island soon will be enhanced by a group of distinctive waterfront homes built for some of America's finest families.

Because homesite availability in the Point Manalapan community, requires acceptance in the very desirable Manalapan Club, residents are assured neighbors of taste, culture and accomplishment. Practical, too, is the Point Manalapan community, for its plans include just about everything you consider necessary for Florida living with distinction.

Extremely wide waterways are your tree-lined avenues to the Ocean Inlet less than a mile away. The shops, clubs and restaurants of Palm Beach and Delray Beach are pleasantly convenient, as are six fine golf courses. Architectural control and rigid restrictions guarantee the value of your investment, as does the superbly engineered quality of our land improvements.

You will enjoy the short drive on A1A from Palm Beach, and you are cordially invited to visit Point Manalapan during its development stage as well as enjoy the charming Clubhouse grounds.

Yachting in Palm Beach Waters

By Charles Wieland

THE NEW YEAR officially launched the blue water yachting season in the Palm Beach area. Owner's flags have replaced the traditional blue absent pennant on the majority of yachts berthed at the local docks, signifying the return of the yachting population and the beginning of an active season.

Making its debut here, the Barunita, owned by Mr. Henry C. Taylor of Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y., arrived for the season in December. Berthed at the Biltmore Hotel Dock, the 59-foot Barunita replaced Mr. Taylor's famous ocean racing yacht, the Baruna, two-time winner of the Bermuda Race. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, who are expected to join the Barunita in January, took possession of the new Sparkman and Stephens craft last Summer.

The Mystic, familiar 64-foot power Mathias cruiser, owned by Mr. Robert Glendinning of Philadelphia, arrived at the Brazilian Avenue Dock for the holidays. As is their customary practice, the Glendinnings will retain the famed dock at its homeport while cruising Southern waters during the season.

The Adventurer, owned by Mr. A. Atwater Kent Jr., returned to the Brazilian Avenue Dock from Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Kent joined the 48-foot power yacht at Daytona Beach for the remaining part of the trip to Palm Beach. He was joined by Mr. Hugh Whitehouse, Mr. Edward Roberts and Mr. Townsend Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mellon arrived January 29 to join the Joho-So IV, their 110-foot cruiser berthed at the Biltmore Hotel Dock. The Joho-So IV returned for the Winter via the popular Inland Waterway after spending the Summer cruising the Great Lakes and Canadian waters.

Another yacht making its initial appearance at the Brazilian Avenue Dock is the Salar IV, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Wilson, from West Hartford, Conn. Formerly long-time residents of Hobe Sound, Florida, the Wilsons acquired the Salar IV, a 62-foot Chris Craft, last year. They plan to make the commodious cruiser their year-round home, returning to Connecticut for the Summer. The Salar IV was one of the many yachts at the dock that departed for the Florida Keys after the holidays. Mr. Wilson formerly was a president of United Airlines.

Activity got off to a hectic pace with the departure of local yachts for the annual Key Largo Angler's Club New Year's Eve celebration. Among the yachtsmen representing Palm Beach at the annual affair were Mr. and Mrs. Benson Ford, who sailed from the Australian Avenue Dock aboard the Onika, their 58-foot Burger power cruiser. Mr. Dan Taylor attended the celebration aboard the Sea-Level, which is seasonally berthed at the Biltmore Hotel Dock.

Dr. Armand Hammer from New York City, returned to the Australian Avenue Dock in December for the twelfth consecutive year.

Joining the Shadow Isle at the active dock in December were the Sybarita, owned by Mrs. H. T. Dickinson, from Locust Valley, N. Y., and the Topsal, owned by Mr. A. O. Wellman from Boston, Mass.

Mr. Oscar M. Seebass, long-time yachting visitor to Palm Beach, arrived at the Everglades Avenue Dock aboard his yacht, Sea-Rest. During the season, the Sea-Rest will commute back and forth to Montego Bay, Jamaica, where Mr. Seebass recently built a new home.

The Osceola, one of the many active cruisers last year, started the new season off with a cruise to Nassau with guests from Canada aboard. Mrs. James Norris, owner of the 110-foot cruiser, was expected in the resort in late January.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Heerman of Philadelphia, Pa., arrived for the holidays to join the newly overhauled Clare H. IV, their 55-foot Trumpy cruiser berthed at the Brazilian Avenue Dock.

In a nearby slip, the Silver Mist, owned by Mrs. H. W. Stone of York, Pa., departed for a short cruise to Fort Lauderdale and Southern waters.

New arrivals for the season at the Biltmore Hotel Dock included Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thompson from Toronto, Ontario, Canada, aboard the Maryan, and Mr. and Mrs. O. Roy Chalk from Washington, D. C., aboard their 83-foot power cruiser, New Horizon.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor C. P. Dreiske, popular yachting enthusiasts at the Brazilian Avenue Dock, sailed to Marathon, paradise for yachtsmen in the Florida Keys, over the New Year holiday, aboard the Vicaries II. They were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Dreiske, their son and daughter-in-law, from New York City.

The Ba-Boy II, berthed at the Brazilian Avenue Dock, began its fishing season with the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Fetterolf from Philadelphia, Pa., during the latter part of December.

Activity at the Sailfish Club continues at a fast pace.

Mr. Allison Fleitas was an active cruiser during December on his new Vael. Yachtsmen at the club are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Mr. Fred Engelhorn's new Epcu, a Rybovich sport fishing boat. Other boats at the dock include: Front Page, owned by Mr. T. W. Duvall, and the famed Eugene VIII, owned by Mr. Lou Marron of Brielle, N. J.

Old Horse Eye II, owned by Mr. Jules Von Rebhan of Palm Beach, is making its debut at the Club this season.

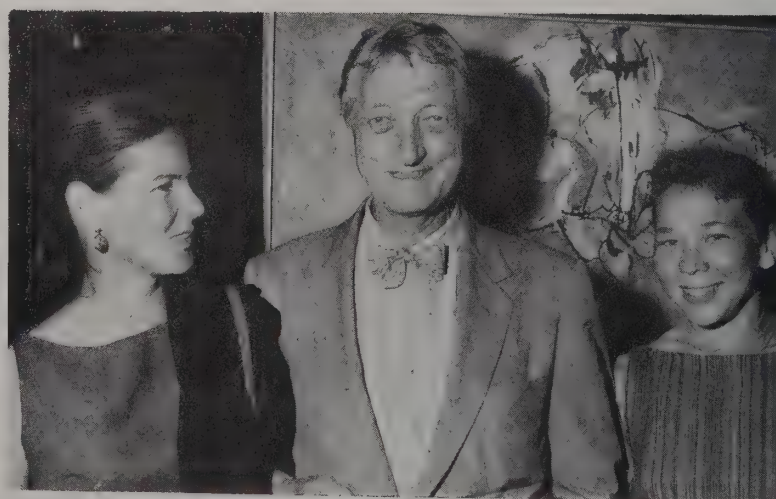

Additional yachts that have returned to the Australian Avenue Dock for the season include: All Alone, owned by Mr. Lynde Selden; Electon, Radio Corporation of America; Eedd-B, Mr. C. H. Bliss Jr.; Commander, Mr. Jacob Meyerhoff; Full Moon, Mr. Edward Bates; Taurus, Mr. J. C. Miller, and the Captiva III, Mr. J. A. Martino.

Mr. G. Whitfield Richards from Philadelphia was an active cruiser during December aboard his power yacht, Huns-Suddy II, popular long-time visitor to the Brazilian Avenue Dock. At a neighboring slip is the Willet, 50-foot Consolidated cruiser owned by Mr. Lamont duPont, Jr.

Yachts continue to return to the Palm Beach Yacht Club Dock for the season. A partial listing of the yachts that have already arrived include: Versatile, Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt; Cosa Grande and Cosa, Mr. Daniel H. Braman; Country Cousin and the new Slick Chick, Mr. Eugene A. Smith; Loafer, Mr. W. T. Goldberg; Florence VI, Mr. William J. McCahan 3d; Charmian, Mr. Lionel Levy, and Sunbeam, Mr. W. T. Grant.

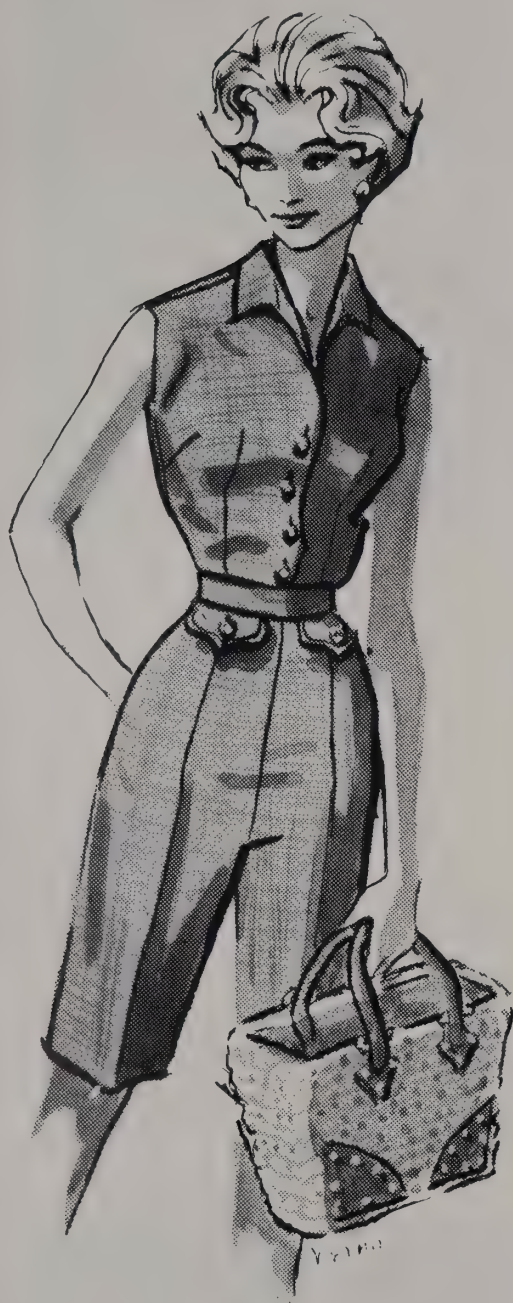

Mrs. Ben Olsen of Chicago and Miami Beach previewed Moliere's "School for Wives" at the University of Miami's Ring Theatre with Ring Member Madelon (Mrs. John B.) Reid.

Marian Muller, University of Miami Editor Malcolm Ross and Ursula Bitter at the Ring Theatre production of "School for Wives." Miss Muller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Muller, is a University student. Miss Bitter is the daughter of John Bitter, conductor of the UM Symphony Orchestra and dean of the School of Music.

Peggy Ayers of South Miami is all smiles about previewing "School for Wives."

Miami's Ring Theater

By Betsy Buffington

CLASSIC DRAMA is drawing record crowds this year at the University of Miami's Ring Theatre.

Opening play, Thornton Wilder's "Skin of Our Teeth," boasted capacity audiences during its entire two-week run.

Moliere's "School for Wives," second production of the season, promised to follow suit when it previewed December 3 to some 300 first nighters.

University students William Stewart and Grace Klein played leading roles in "School for Wives."

The 295-year-old French farce was first UM directing stint for Jack D. Clay, who joined the faculty as assistant professor in September, 1957. A former Broadway and television actor, Clay holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Northwestern and is currently working toward a doctorate.

Another new faculty member, Roberta H. Baker, designed the dashing costumes, colorful facsimiles of 17th century attire, complete with high heels, knee breeches and elaborate wigs.

Plaudits for the elegant set went to designer Gordon Bennett, who previewed "School for Wives" with his wife Eloise and Dr. and Mrs. Delmar E. Solem.

Dr. Solem, named drama department chairman two years ago, is a firm believer in the educational function of a university theatre. Says he, "The only way a young actor can learn dramatic range is through the classics." The new Ring policy of classics only has confounded skeptics by proving as good for the box office as it is for the drama students.

UM student Grace Klein, delightful as "Agnes," whose schooling is subject of the play, didn't know it but there was another "Agnes" in the audience. Madelon (Mrs. John B.) Reid of Miami Beach played the same role while she was a student at the University of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Reid previewed the play with Mrs. Ben Olsen of Chicago and Miami Beach.

First nighters included many of the Ring's 37 members, contributors to the fund which helped build the theatre, dedicated in 1950. Time was when drama department offerings were produced in a tent. The tent leaked and Miami building contractor Jack Stanton didn't like his drama wet. Spurred on by the elements, he built the arena type theatre, designed by architects Robert M. Little and Marion I. Manley, with funds contributed by other Miami drama enthusiasts. Miss Manley and Mr. and Mrs. Stanton were at the "School for Wives" opening.

Other Ring members who were there included: Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brenner, Mr. Walter Jacobs, Dr. and Mrs. George I. Keffer and their daughter Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Knowles, Mrs. Albert Pick, Mr. and Mrs. Martin W. Spector, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Strain, Mr. David J. Vogt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burak, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Welsh, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lewis.

Dr. May A. Brunson, University of Miami dean of women, attended with Betty Ann Harding, new counselor for coeds and daughter of Jack Harding, UM director of athletics. Another first nighter was Dr. Mary B. Merritt, dean of women emeritus.

UM'ers at the preview were: Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Muller and their daughter Marion, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ross, Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Dismukes, Dean and Mrs. John Bitter and their daughter Ursula, Dr. and Mrs. Sidney Head, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Hochberger, Mrs. W. F. Knoche, Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Philhour, and Mrs. Thomas R. Reese.

Next Ring Theatre play will be Eugene O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape," February 13-22. Other dramas scheduled are: Aristophanes' "The Birds," March 13-22; T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral," April 17-26; Chekhov's "The Sea Gull," May 8-17.

In addition to Ring Theatre productions, the UM drama department sponsors experimental plays at the Box Theatre on North Campus, as well as Summer stock at the Parkway Playhouse in Burnsville, N. C.

PALM BEACH WINTER COLONY

By Wilma Spencer

THE EARLY SEASON picked up momentum as the Winter progressed, and during the holidays there was much social activity.

Young people home from boarding school and college for their vacations were feted at a number of parties. Several were given at the Everglades Club. Among them was one given by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blabon 2d of Island Road for their daughter, Miss Diana Blabon, home from Foxcroft. Another given at the Everglades Club was that of Orator Woodward, who entertained about thirty members of the college set for dinner and dancing on the Golf Terrace.

The Bath and Tennis Club was the setting for the Junior Assembly's annual supper-dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Olof Nelson Tevander gave a supper-party at their home on Barton Avenue for their two granddaughters, Vivi Tevander and Susan Drake.

Another party was given jointly by Miss Susan Cord, daughter of Senator and Mrs. E. L. Cord of 20 Middle Road, and Miss Michele Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulton Clarke of Clarke Avenue. Miss Cord is a student at Stanford University and Miss Clarke attends Vassar.

Miss Mary Beth Turner gave a luncheon at Petite Marmite for Miss Shelby dePeyster and Miss Suzanne Crocker.

Mrs. Granville Fortescue entertained with a small cocktail party at her home on Island Drive for her granddaughter, Miss Vikki Viskniskki and her houseguest, Miss Marta Nagy of Budapest, Hungary, both of whom are students at the University of Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron Collier Jr. gave a dinner-dance at their oceanfront home for Mrs. Collier's daughter, Frances Gable, and her son, Lamar Gable.

Among the adults there was also a great deal of social activity.

One of the largest parties given during the holidays was given in the Tahitian Room at Ta-Boo on New Year's Eve by the Cocoanuts.

Years ago a group of bachelors who called themselves the Cocoanuts gave a ball near the end of the season to the hosts and hostesses who entertained them during the season. It became famous, and was held annually at the old Country Club. Of the present Cocoanuts, Christopher Dunphy and Charles A. Munn were members of the original group. The additional 1957-58 group includes Beverly Bogert Jr., William Harmonay, Joseph P. Kennedy, John Randolph McLean, Edward Beale McLean, Frederick Lewisohn, Thomas H. Shevlin, Robert Sweeny and Walter T. Shirley. The party was attended by about 135 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Gubelmann were also hosts to a group of their friends for dinner and dancing on New Year's Eve at their home on Via Del Lago.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Church Paull entertained with their annual New Year's eggnog party at their oceanfront villa.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedford Davie were hosts at a small dinner party on New Year's Eve at the home of Mr. Davie's mother, Mrs. Paulding Fosdick and Mr. Fosdick, on Jungle Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Sherwood entertained with a reception at "Petit Point," their home in Lantana, for Mrs. Sherwood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall of Sea Spray Avenue, in observance of their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Members of Mr. and Mrs. Hall's family came from different parts of the country for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rich were hosts at a large cocktail-buffet and dance at the Bath and Tennis Club on the occasion of Mr. Rich's birthday anniversary. Joe Bonni played for the party.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Koehne entertained with their annual Christmas Eve party at their home on Chilean Avenue for a large group of their friends. The party celebrated Mr. Koehne's eighty-eighth birthday anniversary, as well as Christmas.

Mrs. John H. Perry entertained with a family Christmas dinner at her home on Sea View Avenue.

There were many other family gatherings on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Among them the Roscoe Tate Anthonys of South Lake Trail; the Russell P. Kelleys of Island Drive; Mrs. McAlpin Bell of Via Del Lago; Mr. and Mrs. Willaford Ransom Leach of South Ocean Boulevard; Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bliss of Pendleton Lane; the Norman C. Ehingers of Arabian Road; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth T. Philips of El Dorado Lane; the Gerald H. Dempseys of Sea Spray Avenue; Col. Robert H. Morse of Dunbar Road; the Olof Nelson Tevanders of Barton Avenue; the Norman T. Fields of Jungle Road.

Among others entertaining during the holidays were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson of Island Drive; Mr. and Mrs. George

An engagement of interest in Palm Beach and in Washington was that of Miss Alexandra Page Hufty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Page Hufty of Washington and Island Road, Palm Beach, and Mr. Michael Alfred Reynal of Buenos Aires, Argentina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Jose Reynal of Buenos Aires and San Francisco, Calif., which was announced by Mr. and Mrs. Hufty at a small dinner party at their home on Friday evening, January 3. The following afternoon, the Huftys gave a tea-dance at their home for the Reynal family.

A wedding which took place in late December was that of Mrs. Anne Hamilton Hunt of North Ocean Boulevard and Mr. Jesse Spalding 3d, son of Mrs. Elliott Maxwell of Palm Beach and East Hampton, L. I.

Another wedding was that of Miss Janet Miller Wynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman D. Wynn of Tangier Avenue and Knoxville, Tenn., and Mr. William Boone Dougherty, son of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Dougherty of Knoxville.

Fifth Father and Son Golf Tournament in Palm Beach

By Bill Saul

MARSHALL AND STEPHEN SMITH of Delray Beach won the fifth annual Father and Son Championship title, December 28, at the Palm Beach Golf Club course with a low gross 149 over 36 holes in the two-day golf tournament.

The Smiths were in a tie for third place following the opening round with a 78, but finished strong on the last day with a 71 — the best 18-hole card posted during the event.

Two strokes off the winning pace set by the new champs were Dexter Daniels Sr. and Jr., the defending champions from Winter Haven, Florida, who returned a 78-73—151 score in the gross division of the tourney. The Daniels won the Father-Son championship in 1954 and 1956.

Fred Lazard Jr. and Fred III, Garden City, L. I., placed third at 77-75—152.

Two teams tied for fourth low gross, but the prize went to Pat Brady Sr. and Jr., Reidsville, N. C., for their 79-74—153.

The other father-son team at that figure, Fritz Leffingwell Sr. and Jr., Miami Shores, was a prize winner in the low net scoring.

The Leffingwells were first day gross leaders with a 76. They had a two-day net of 141 under handicap which was good for second place in that division, two strokes behind net winners Paul Maddock and his son James of Palm Beach.

The Maddocks had an actual score of 165, but their 13-handicap gave them a 139 net.

It marked the first time that a Palm Beach entry has received a top prize in the Father and Son Championship.

John and Paul Cushman, Palm Beach, finished ninth in the gross tally at 160. Three other Palm Beach dad and son teams — Leon Sikes Sr. and Jr., J. Y. Arnold Sr. and Jr. and Chester and Bruce Williams — also engaged in the tourney.

Donn and Jimmy McCoy, Lake Worth, tied the Leffingwell duo at 141 net, but got third prize on a draw, while another draw gave Richard Brown Sr. and Jr., Gettysburg, Pa., fourth prize at 143. Dr. Leo Vollmer and John, Ft. Lauderdale, and the Brady team, winners in the gross scoring, also carded 143 nets.

1955 champions, Hugh Hayes Sr. and Jr., Tampa, finished in a tie for seventh place in the gross division with a 159 tally.

Prizes were awarded the leaders — first four finishers, gross and net — at a cocktail party following the final round of play in the Starlight Room of The Breakers Hotel.

Out of the 62 teams originally entered in the event, 50 teams completed both rounds.

Final results in the gross division which determines the tourney championship were as follows, with fathers listed first:

Marshall and Stephen Smith, Delray Beach, 149; Dexter Daniels Sr. and Jr., Winter Haven, 151; Fred Lazard Jr. and Fred III, 152; Fritz Leffingwell Sr. and Jr., Miami Shores, 153; Pat Brady Sr. and Jr., Reidsville, N. The annual Debutante Cotillion and Thanksgiving Ball, which was held at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, presented thirty-four debutantes representing fifteen cities throughout the Eastern Seaboard to Capital society. From the left, first row: Lynn Harrison Adams, Joan Ankenbrandt, Roberta Barnes, Barbara Belic, Noreen Galvin, Jeremy Hardy. Second row: Mary Anne Horner, Edith Boyer Hottel, Andrea Lynnhe Lewis, Berlye Powers and Diane Scharfeld. Third row: Patricia Vade Coryell, Betsy Scrivener, Cynthia Smith, Valeria Weeks and Helen

Mrs. Eisenhower headed the sponsor list for the event, which included the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon, the Chief Justice and Mrs. Warren and a number of Cabinet members. Miss Mary-Stuart Montague Price was chairman of the Ball.

WASHINGTON'S WINTER WHIRL was highlighted by weddings and debuts with the usual round of colorful receptions, dinners and dances.

An impressive holiday wedding united some of the Capital's best-known families. Miss Suzanne Walker, blond beauteous granddaughter of former U.S. Ambassador to Moscow Joseph E. Davies and daughter of Mrs. E. Fontaine Broun and Mr. Aldace Walker, became the bride of Second Lieutenant Charles Bowler King, U.S.A., son of Mrs. Eugene Harrison of Clearwater, Florida, and the late Colonel Charles Bowler King.

Ceremonies took place at St. Alban's Church in Washington followed by a large reception at the home of the bride's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. E. Fontaine Broun. The bride, in glamorous white peau de soie and Alencon lace, was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Aldace Walker. Attendants wore accordion pleated white chiffon gowns sashed in green satin. They carried sprays of holly.

Miss Jennifer Fitch was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. W. Warrington Gillett, Mrs. Benjamin C. Evans Jr., sister of the bridegroom; Miss Alice Birney Robert, Miss Sandra Dickely, Miss Sheila Raybold, and Mrs. Joseph Davies Tydings.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Donald Christian Heurich King. Ushers included Mr. Benjamin C. Davis Jr., Mr. Joseph Davies Tydings, Second Lieutenant Thomas Kehoe, Second Lieutenant Leon Bieri, Ensign Theodore Wilkinson and Lieutenant (j.g.) Lee Merritt Folger.

At the big Broun home, the wedding celebration took place on three floors—the romantic first waltz in the downstairs recreation room, cutting of the beautiful big cake

Around the rooms were many of Washington's well-knowns — Mrs. Harold Walker and Mrs. Emlen Davies, grandmothers of the bride; Lady Lewis, grandmother of the tall, handsome bridegroom; former Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings and Mrs. Lawrence Wood "Chip" Robert, uncle and aunts of the bride.

The popular mother of the bride, Rahael Davies Broun, wearing rich blue satin and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Eugene Harrison, received with the newlyweds in the second floor drawing room. Among guests: Italy's Ambassador and Signora Brosio, General and Mrs. Omar Bradley, Mrs. Perle Mesta, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman (Duchess of Windsor's "Aunt Bessie"), Major General and Mrs. Conger Pratt, Brigadier General and Mrs. William Ritchie, Major General and Mrs. William Rose, Mrs. Eldridge Jordon, former Austrian Ambassador and Madame Prochnik, Mrs. Walter Bedell Smith, wife of the famed general; Colonel and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Miss Carolyn Nash, Mr. Fred Roy, Mrs. Alfons Landa (former Consuela Morgan), Spain's Senora de Alba, Mr. Richard Howland, Deputy Assistant State Secretary Newbold Walmsley and Mrs. Pearsons Rust. Also in the company were Captain and Mrs. John Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Horton Schoellkopf, Mr. and Mrs. John Eakin, Col. and Mrs. Carlyle Allen, Mrs. Wiley Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Williams, Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphy, Mr. John F. Simmons, Miss Bertha Joseph and many, many more. Lieutenant and Mrs. King, after a Southern honeymoon, will live at Ft. Benning, Georgia, where Lieutenant King is stationed.

GLITTERING CLIMAX of Washington's holiday season on Diplomatic Row was the New Year's Eve dance at the Spanish Embassy, co-hosted by the Spanish Ambassador and the Countess of Motrico and their handsome dark-haired son, Enrique, and blond daughter, Mercedes de Areilza.

The ballroom and patio, where huge portraits of Charles III of Spain, staunch American ally in the War for Independence, the late King Alfonso and Generalissimo Franco looked down on the dancers, was decorated in orange-trimmed magnolia trees and orange-studded garlands of laurel. A gleaming Christmas tree centered the patio pool. Gayety was doubled with the young Areilzas' own set sharing the festivities with guests of their parents.

The Ambassador and his family received at the entrance to the ballroom, the Countess of Motrico in a red velvet Dior gown topped by a diamond bib necklace with seven pendant emeralds, a 25th wedding anniversary gift of her husband.

Daughter Mercedes wore a gay Mediterranean blue gown done in harem skirt mode by Balenciaga highlighted by a dainty necklace of diamonds and pearls.

From residential Washington came former Ambassador and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Robert Lowe Bacon, Mrs. Perle Mesta, HISTORIC TINGEY HOUSE was the impressive scene of the Potomac River Naval Commandant Rear Admiral Harold Davies Baker and Mrs. Baker's large, gold-braid reception honoring the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Thomas Gates. The beautiful old house, which served as quarters for the First Commandant, was aglow with holiday lights and greens and a Navy stringed orchestra added to the festivity. Well-stocked buffets and refreshment bars and a rare roast beef table proved popular spots.

The Bakers and their honor guests received in the gold and white drawing room. Virginia Baker wore chic black with white orchids.

Many top military personalities were among guests: General and Mrs. Albert C. Wedemeyer, Admiral and Mrs. Robert Carney, Admiral and Mrs. William Fechteler, Admiral and Mrs. Louis Denfeld, Marine Commandant and Mrs. Randolph McC. AUSTRALIA AND PANAMA's popular Ambassadors were the reason for one of the season's gayest embassy dinner dances. The hosts, Brazilian Ambassador and Madame Ernani do Amaral Peixoto, decorated Panama's Don Ricardo Arias and said farewell to Australia's Sir Percy Spender who is a new member of the International Court.

First order of the brilliant evening was cocktails in the flower-decked main floor dining room followed by the awarding to Ambassador Arias of Brazil's highest decoration, the Grand Cross Al Merito of the Southern Cross. Then the 150 guests repaired to the second floor salon and ballroom for dinner followed by dancing till the wee hours. Tables were festive, some in gold lame' covers and gilt candles, others with red covers centered by masses of white flowers.

The petite hostess, Alzira Peixoto, daughter of Brazil's late President Getulio Vargas, keyed her gown to the glittering evening. She wore golden chiffon richly encrusted in golden sequins.

Seated with Ambassador Peixoto was beautiful, brunette Senora de Arias. With Madame Peixoto was Sir Percy Spender. Petite, blond Lady Spender and Ambassador Arias were hosts at other tables.

Enjoying Latin dances to the tunes of Howard Devron's orchestra were the Belgian Ambassador Baron Silvercruys and his beautiful Baroness; the Countess of Motrico wearing one of her fabulous diamond necklaces. Her pretty daughter Mercedes and son Enrique were in the company. Bolivia's envoy and Senora de Andrade were there, Chile's envoy and Senora de Puga, Venezuelan envoy and Senora de Gonjales, Costa Rican Ambassador and Senora de Facio, Iran's Dr. Amini, Pruguav's envoy and Senora de Lacarte, and Chilean envoy and Senora de Puoa. Cuban Minister and Senora de Averhoff, Spain's Minister and Senora de Alba, Peruvian First Secretary and Senora de Laroza and others.

Also twirling we saw Assistant State Secretary and dark-eyed Mrs. Roy Rubottom, the White House's Max Rabbs, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt Jr., Major General and Mrs. Leigh Wade, Dottie and Randolph Kidder, Mr. Ralph Becker, the Meade Patricks, the Edgar Morris, the Drew Pearsons, the Peter Spenders, Rear Admiral Thomas Kelly and Miss Tomajean Akers.

Washington's all-important bachelor contingent was represented by Mr. Clarence Hewes, Mr. Richard Howland, Mr. George Williams, Mr. Roy Leiffen, Colonel George Doole and Colonel Fred Roy, who squired Mrs. Clarence Mackay of Manhattan.

Anna Case Mackay wore one of the handsomest gowns of the evening — heavy, luxurious white peau de soie done in intricate lampshade drapery and topped by her world-famous emerald pendant on a waist length rope of diamonds. Other bediamond ladies included Mrs. Morris Cafritz in Dior's glamorous mauve velvet gown worn with a diamond and sapphire necklace, Mrs. Perle Mesta wearing her fabulous diamond "set" — necklace, earrings and bracelets, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim wearing an exquisite, perfectly matched diamond necklace, and Mrs. Jorje Zalles with glistening pendant diamond earrings.

Down from New York were the good-looking, long-time friends of the Peixotos, young Moore-McCormick Steamship Executive and Mrs. A. J. Kernan.

THE CHRISTMAS PARTY on the Washington social front is the annual carol sing and buffet supper at palatial Firenze House hosted by former Ambassador and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim. This year the spacious rooms were decked with holiday greenery and special lights. Mr. Kurt Hetzel provided organ music; high above the great hall on the mezzanine balcony, pretty Mary Jane Kemp and William Graham sang, and former opera star John Rockwood led the carol singing.

Evening-garbed guests, coming and going from 7 to 10 o'clock, enjoyed champagne refreshments and an elaborate candle-lit supper in the big dining salon. Countess Cassini, the President of U.N.'s General Assembly Sir Leslie Munro and Vice Admiral and Mrs. John Gingrich were down from Manhattan. Mrs. Robert McCormick (widow of the Chicago publisher), wearing blue with diamonds and sapphires, was in the company. Peru's Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coolidge, U.S. Senator and Mrs. George Malone, the famous Katie in dashing red; former Senate Secretary and Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Judge and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Representative and Mrs. Albert Thomas of Texas. The Palm Beach International Polo Club

By Tanya Brooks

THE NEW PALM BEACH INTERNATIONAL POLO CLUB got off to a good start despite the accident of Emilio Tagle in the club opener. Mr. Tagle was in a cast for six weeks but was able to get around and expects to play again shortly.

One of the first of the colorful halftime events was put on by a group of Palm Beach debutantes in conjunction with a group of visiting lacrosse players. Organized by Mrs.

Carter Carnegie, the girls were escorted by the visitors and presented to the polo fans as a promotion for the Heart Ball which will be held at the Poinciana Room of the Palm Beach Towers on February 14 to benefit the Heart Fund. The lacrosse game on December 31 at Cooley Memorial Stadium was also held as a benefit for the Heart Fund.

The girls taking part in the polo half-time show were the Misses Anne Obolensky, Danielle Freimann (her mother, Mrs. Gallagher Freimann is co-chairman of the Heart Ball with Mr. Christopher Dunphy), Vicki Young men who acted as escorts were Mr. Courtland Ferguson Jr., Mr. Terry Fuller and Mr. Bruno Di Julian. The lacrosse players present were Mr. Tom Biddison, Mr. Bob Edwards, Mr. Bill Thayer, Mr. Jack Leckie, Mr. Fred Keller and Mr. John Mercer.

All of the top polo players of the area have been playing at the new club. At one time or another, playing there, have been Mr. Emilio Tagle, Mr. Lester Armour, Mr. Bill Hudson (he comes to Palm Beach on week-ends from Dallas, Texas), Mr. Jules Rompf, Mr. Porfirio Rubirosa, Mr. George Oliver, Mr. Bert Beveridge, Mr. Don Beveridge, Mr. Leon Hulsman, Mr. Ray Harrington, Mr. Lyle Phillips, Col. Tom Matlack, Mr. Pedro Silvero, Mr. Del Carroll, Mr. Juan Rodriguez and others.

The first international game was scheduled for January 5 against the Argentine polo team, La Concepcion. Arriving for the series of three games were Senor and Senora Julio Gomez, Senor and Senora Luis Garrahan, Mathias (Totito) Casares, who is president of the Argentine Polo Association, and Carlos Prates.

Earlier in the season, Gustavo Rotundo, president of the Sartenejas Polo Club of Caracas, Venezuela, flew to Palm Beach to arrange for the Venezuelan Polo Team to play against the Palm Beach International Polo Club later this Winter. While here, Senor Rotundo participated in two games.

The Chilean polo team will arrive on February 12 to play a series of three games, starting Sunday, February 16. Players who will arrive for those games will be Eduardo Zegers, a 5-goal player, Julio Zegers, a 6-goal player, Ivan Mihanovich, a 5-goal player, and Jorge Lyon, also a 6-goal player.

The Foolish Virgins and Estate Carlton

By Marquerite Allen

LORD BEACONSFIELD, better known as Benjamin Disraeli, former Prime Minister of England, when asked in the course of a debate on the Virgin Islands if he had any idea as to where they might be, is reported to have replied that while he could not quite from memory give their exact latitude and longitude, he assured his opponent that of one thing he was certain, namely they were sufficiently removed from the Isle of Mann.

These foolish Virgins, as they are oft fondly called, are no longer far removed from the visitations of man in our era of flying luxury liners. In fact, the travel trend of social resorters to the Virgin Islands is on the increase.

Latest hotel built to keep pace with the present tense time's demand for the club-type resort is Estate Carlton at Frederiksted in St. Croix, Virgin Islands, sparked by Easthamptonite Richard Draper Richards and Westchesterite Hugh C. Leighton. It opened in December, 1956 and became the rage overnight.

St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John, which compose the three American Islands in the Virgin Islands group, and which between them have alternately flown the Spanish, Dutch, English, French and Danish flags before being purchased by the U.S. in 1917 to protect our sea lanes to the Panama Canal, are just about sixty miles due east of Puerto Rico. The exception is St. Croix, which stands by itself southeast of Puerto Rico, and sixty miles south of its sister islands, and is reached non-stop from New York via Pan American World Airways or from Miami via San Juan.

As St. Croix stands by itself, so it also has the most distinct personality among the Virgin Islands. For years Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard have lured travelers to their vast open reaches of dunes and wonder strands of beaches. Today St. Croix, with the addition of a delightful chain of low lying sugar loaf mountains stretching twenty miles along its length, possesses the same sorcery of these wide open spaces, but is as unspoiled as these "down east" spots were seventy-five years ago. It also has the added plusses of a divine year 'round climate, and the picturesque allure of a Danish heritage.

This heritage produced what might be referred to as the Golden Age of St. Croix, for the aristocracy at least. The Danes who held the island from 1733 to 1917 colonized it under the romantic banner of the Danish West India and Guinea Company for a three-fold purpose — to capture slaves in Africa and sell them in St. Croix, to deal in smuggling, and to engage in commerce with the kings of the sea, the pirates who roamed waters 'neath the Southern Cross.

Sugar plantations were birthed with great expectations in this early period, and lived up to them until the slave rebellion in 1848. A prosperity and opulent way of life existed, founded on slave labor and production of rum, which was as rich and perhaps even more fabulous than anything in our own ante bellum southland.

Even the plantation names, still used today, had a bewitching quality, such as Sweet Bottom, Upper Love, Judith's Pancy (where Columbus first landed on his second voyage to the new world on November 14, 1493), Northside (where the slave insurrection started and now home of Richard Draper Richards), and Estate Carlton, largest and wealthiest of them all.

It was at Estate Northside that the slave rebellion of 1848 started and all of the buildings with the exception of the sugar mill were destroyed. It is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Draper Richards, formerly of Easthampton, Long Island, and co-owners of Estate Carlton. The sugar mill has been restored to become the Crucian version of "The Teahouse of the August Moon" and the outlines of the foundations of some of the original buildings were followed when the Richards built their home a hundred years after the rebellion, in 1948.

In its heyday in the late eighteenth century, Estate Carlton had 89 slaves working on the plantation to produce 315,000 pounds of sugar annually. The Great House at Carlton was the scene of lavish entertainment for the visitor arriving by sloop, which usually dropped anchor in the estate's private cove, bordered by a crescent-shaped sandy beach. Within the limits of the twenty-mile long island, the owners achieved a cache in their own set by moving into their town house in Christiansted, seven miles distant, for Christmas activities. This routine was an established fact long before Charlestonians ever thought of moving, in reverse of course, to Newport for the Summer.

This way of life came to an abrupt end on July 2, 1848, when the slaves rebelled the evening of the Governor's Ball, and burned the sugar mills and great houses to the ground. They were freed the following day by an edict delivered by Governor Von Scholten from the Fort at Frederiksted. Without slave labor, and with the ever widening competition from other sugar markets in the world, it was impossible for the Danes to recapture the prosperity they had enjoyed up to that fatal day.

Now over a century later, Estate Carlton has taken on a new life as the first luxury resort on the island, starting a new and fashionable travel trend to St. Croix.

Fifty-six rambling decentralized guest units have been built under the tamarind trees where the great house once stood. Carlton's crescent shaped beach has been combed to make its white sands gleam for resorters bent on sun roasting and bathing, and a beach casino with cabanas and swimming pool, around which a buffet luncheon is served daily, adds to the easy-going atmosphere demanded by the fashionable traveler of today.

The cane fields at Estate Carlton have been turned into the only nine-hole golf course not only in St. Croix, but in the entire Virgin Islands. A special grass seed was developed at the Georgia Agricultural Experimentation Station, especially for Estate Carlton and remains green the year 'round. The ruins of the sugar mill have been turned into a smart shop by Bermuda's Polly Hornburg.

In addition to the hotel's guest units, over twenty-five shareholders have built cottages on the estate, which are rented as hotel units in their owners' absence. Among the group are Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill of Pride's Crossing, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Judson Morris of North Tarrytown, N. Y.; Mrs. Courtney Letts Espil of Rio de Janeiro; Mr. and Mrs.

Benson B. Sloan of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Wardwell Howell of Darien, Conn.; Mrs. Edith Thompson Montgomery of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Oliphant of Stratford, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Scott Jr. of Greenville, Del.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Bolling Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Reese III of Wilmington, Del.; Mr. and Mrs. Winston Wheeler of Wichita, Kan.; and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wall of Portland, Ore., to name a few.

Bone-fishing is another sport available at Estate Carlton, and guides and boats are on hand for enthusiasts of this sport, which has become so popular among salt-water sportsmen in recent years.

There is an air of deliberate simplicity at Estate Carlton which makes it possible moments after arrival for you to tune in on the Crucian's quiet, leisurely pace of knowing how to take life easy without any effort at all.

Florida's New Governor's Mansion

*T*ALLAHASSEANS who watched with mixed emotions as the familiar Ionic columns of the old wooden Governor's Mansion came down in 1955 were reassured by the Corinthian columns of the new brick mansion in 1957. This uneasiness when the familiar is cast off for the new was particularly strong in the tradition-steeped capital city. After a whole year now, Tallahasseans are gradually becoming more accustomed to seeing the brick and white edifice on the old setting and the Collins family has become thoroughly at home there.

Palm Beach architect Marion Sims Wyeth of Wyeth, King and Florida's First Family poses on the circular stairway of the new mansion that leads to upstairs living quarters. From the left, Governor Collins, Mary Call (a student at Leon High School in Tallahassee), Jane (a college student in Virginia), Darby (Mrs. Collins maiden surname), and the gracious First Lady who has contributed so much to the successful execution of the mansion project.

Florida's new Governor's Mansion, completed a little over a year ago, was designed by Palm Beach architect Marion Sims Wyeth, following the general exterior of Andrew Jackson's home, The Hermitage.

Old brick for the circular drive was removed from the streets of Tampa when trolley tracks were taken up. The City of Tampa sent a special fifteen-man crew to lay the brick.

The Governor's office-at-home and den is located in the basement and has a private entrance. A very masculine room, it has blue stone floors, cypress paneling, leather furnishings, and plenty of storage space for trophies and guns. Portraits of famous leaders of the Seminoles during their two wars with the United States government are hung on two sides of the 17 by 24 foot study. A small office for the Governor's secretary adjoins this one to facilitate the handling of official business at the mansion during pressed moments.

Johnson, designed the new mansion which resembles Andrew Jackson's famous Tennessee home, The Hermitage. Styled in the Classical Revival period of the early eighteenth century, the gubernatorial residence has a calm dignity and purity of line found in the homes of our nation's founding fathers. The State rooms are furnished with excellent antiques of the same period collected for the mansion by James L. Cogar, who was active in the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg and served 17 years as curator of that American shrine.

It is more than coincidence that Jackson's home served as a general guide for the brick mansion. The choice of plan, exterior decor, and furnishings followed several years of contemplation and study by various committees and commissions. Jackson was Florida's first territorial governor. His home is one of the finest examples of traditional architecture in the country. Time has proven the enduring charm of this style which is so deeply interwoven with the formative days of the United States. As a background for state occasions, no decor is more suitable than the Classical Revival. The new mansion blends well with the other state buildings in the capital center as well as with the Old South atmosphere of Tallahassee.

It is coincidence, however, that Mary Call Collins should be the first mistress of the new mansion. Her great-grandfather, Richard Keith Call, was a territorial governor of Florida and a close personal friend of General Jackson. In fact, Call was married in The Hermitage. During the construction of the present mansion, Governor

An elegant white marble floor in the foyer prepares visitors for the rich dignity of the mansion's 18th century interior. Antique red brocade satin draperies contrast with the light gray walls. Mr. Cogar, decorator of the $360,000 state building, is particularly proud of the fine grandfather clock which still runs and bears the signature of the New England clockmaker who fashioned it. Wall sconces, repeated in the State Dining Room, are electric. The door right center opens into the State Reception Room. The one left into the State Banquet Hall. Both openings have double mahogany doors hung with old fashioned brass knuckle hinges.

The State Reception Room features rugs specially woven in India, Chippendale sofas and secretaries, and a black Italian marble mantelpiece flecked with gold. Large enough for official entertaining (42 by 22), the room extends the entire depth of the mansion. Drapery is gold brocade, a color repeated in the 18th century occasional chairs imported from Ireland. Portrait over the mantle is an 18th century painting on loan from the Ringling Museum. The lady in the painting holds orange blossoms, the state flower, in her hand.

At last Mrs. Collins feels she has a table and a dining room large enough to entertain all the Supreme Court and their wives at one time. The State Banquet Room is 32 x 26 feet. Featured in the room is the silver from the decommissioned Battleship Florida which was originally purchased with the pennies of Florida school children in 1911. Pelicans, alligators, egrets and other Florida fauna were incorporated in the design of the ornate hollowware. The decorator has not found the right chandelier as yet so the room is lighted by electric wall sconces matching those in the foyer. The kitchen is beyond the door on the right, foyer behind door on left.

Collins and his family lived close by the mansion site in their own home which was built by Call in 1825.

Convenience has not been sacrificed for design in the new building, however. There is a sharp demarcation between State rooms and family rooms that did not exist in the old white building erected during Napoleon Broward's administration in 1907. Of the family living quarters, only the sitting room and dining room are on the main floor and connect by an adjacent circular stairway with the bedrooms on the second floor. A modern kitchen with adequate facilities for mass preparation of foods and refreshments separates the family and state dining rooms. The State Reception Room extends the entire depth of the building on the north end. A bedroom, bath and dressingroom for official guests connects with the reception room through a small alcove.

The foyer has an elegant white marble floor. With the exception of baths and kitchen area, the other floors are oak. In the state rooms they are parquet.

Unlike its predecessor, the present mansion is completely furnished. The mansion commission, composed of permanent Tallahassee residents, hopes that the days of major moving with the change of governors is over. Time was when each new first family had to supplement the mansion furniture with its own. Even such dignified citizens as governors and their ladies became embroiled in such mundane worries in the overnight shift of administrations. The commission feels additional worry midst all the dashing and tight schedules of inaugural celebrations has been eliminated. The LeRoy Collins family moved only their clothes, a minimum of personal belongings, one pedigreed collie, one "yeller" cat of undetermined parentage, and their famous smiles.

The family sitting room has warmth and comfort. Various earth tones predominate ranging from the paneled walls to carpet and two over-stuffed chairs. Accent colors are taken from the large floral pattern on a neutral background in the drapery. A particularly interesting note is the two lamps made from old Chinese tea canisters with Chinese characters naming the kind of leaves in the brew.

If future first ladies of the state find being official hostess and manager of the official mansion a lighter chore than past first ladies did, Mrs. Collins should receive a large part of their gratitude. As a life long Tallahassee and gracious wife during Governor Collins extensive political career, she is an authority on state protocol. Her

In contrast to the dignity and spaciousness of the state rooms, the family sitting room is cosy, warm, and very comfortable. Cypress paneling, rosy beige carpet, deeper beige chairs and dark woods of the furniture are restful. Floral pattern of the sofa upholstery is repeated in the draperies. Pattern has splashes of orange red, blue and green that liven the monotone color scheme of the other furnishings. Lamps of black antique jugs on end tables match. Other lamps in the room were made from Chinese canisters and bear Chinese characters as well as Arabic numbers.

The dining room of the First Family is done in soft blues and grays and has a fine view of the south lawn of the mansion. A spot of bright color is the portrait of the two older Collins girls, Jane and Mary Call, which has rich reds and greens. The corner china cabinets of lustrous dark wood are a pair and considered very fine pieces by the interior decorator.

thinking and knowledge gained from experience are embodied in the detailed planning and operations. The elimination of major moving turmoil is but one example.

Mrs. Collins and other planners hope that the mansion will assume a permanent personality which will not change with the first family, at least not in the rooms designed for state functions. The architect and contractor designed and built the new mansion to last 300 years. Even with this long span in front of them, it will probably be a long time before Tallahasseans stop referring to the "new" mansion.

Just off the State Reception Room is the official guest suite consisting of bath, dressing room, and boudoir. Governor Collins admired the tall canopied beds but asked that no such decor be used in his own master bedroom. The magnolia floral design of the canopies is repeated in the draperies.

SHIPPEN-MASSIE SHOW

at Worth Avenue Gallery

By Emilie Keyes

WIDELY DIVERSE in manner and technique, the duo-exhibition of recent works by Zoe Shippen and Patricia Massie, which held the center of interest recently at the Worth Avenue Gallery, was tied together by the common denominator of Palm Beach interest in the two artists.

Both are well-known here, each has been presented to Palm Beach art circles largely through work shown at the Worth Avenue Gallery.

For Miss Shippen, this was one of a long series of exhibitions at the Gallery, dating back over a 14-year association in days when the Gallery was new here.

For Miss Massie, it was a first show of her own, though she has been included in many group exhibitions over the past few years.

The show was ushered in with a preview cocktail party January 20, at which Mrs. Duggett Benson, director, received with the two artists. The guests included personal friends, a number of figures from Palm Beach's art world, and most of the parents of the attractive array of youngsters, whose portraits hung on Miss Shippen's wall space in the Gallery.

For these 1957 pastel portraits represented the latest in a long succession of studies in which Miss Shippen has captured the childhood charm of a large percentage of Palm Beach's youngest set.

Many of the Lilliputian belles and beaux she has portrayed are now debutantes or collegians . . . one or two even very young marrieds. Some she did with all the curves and ringlets and twinkles of early childhood, reappeared later as junior misses or growing boys.

The artist has the rare gift of capturing with her skilled pencils and deft colors the spirit and charm of the age portrayed, an art that has definitely established her place as a pictorial chronicler of childhood.

Leslie Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Parker Bryant, made a reappearance in this recent show after a lapse of several years since she first appeared in a Shippen exhibition. In this study she is holding her dog, it being the only portrait in which more than the head and shoulders is shown.

Other portraits attracting much interest from the crowd at the preview and from spectators who dropped in during the week's showing were of the following:

Peter Pulitzer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer Jr.; Abigail Crabtree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Crabtree; Billy Benjamin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E.

Benjamin 2d; Paula Ilyinski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Ilyinski; Kent Ramsing and Hope Ramsing, children of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Ramsing; Mary Reed, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson Sweatt; Walter Brooks 4th, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Brooks 3d; Lane Peterson and Padgett Peterson, grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Padgett; Lorena Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney King Russell; Brenda Cooley and Carol Cooley, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Cooley; George Patterson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson; Johnny Laine, son of Mrs. William Q. Cain; Linda Montgomery, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Morrison Montgomery; Jimmy Murdock, son of Mrs. Brooks Murdock; Michael Beesch and Hilary Beesch, children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Beesch; Nancy Benson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Benson.

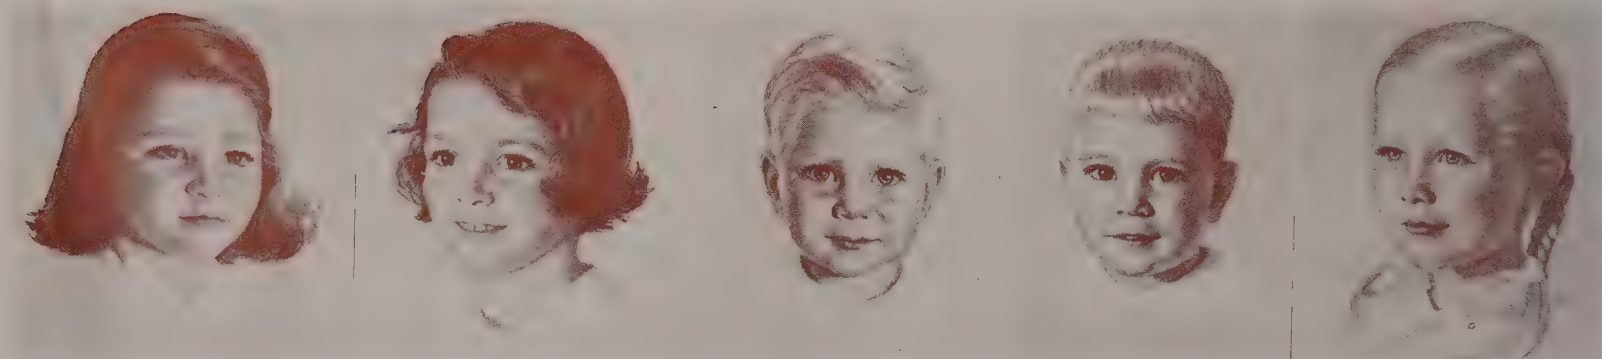

Though Miss Shippen's portraiture work extends into many other parts of the country, keeping her especially busy in the North each Summer, this exhibition was made up entirely of Palm Beach youth.

In the other half of the Gallery the recent collected work of Miss Massie, known in private life as Mrs. Patricia Massie Tevander, attracted much interest, both from those viewing her painting for the first time, or for friends who have been following it since she was a student at the Norton School of Art.

It has been about seven years since Miss Massie first began wielding a paint brush. Since then, she has studied with Eric Lungren at the Norton School, painted with both Orville Bulman and the late Riccardo Magni, both of whom have exhibited through the Worth Avenue Gallery.

Though the young artist has developed an individual style, her unerring color sense and fine brush work undoubtedly owe much to the artists with whom she studied and painted. The decorative quality of work quite likely had its unconscious inception in the imaginative Magni murals on which she worked.

In this exhibition Miss Massie demonstrated her unusual skill in imparting ornamental beauty to the most commonplace subjects, such as "Scallions" and "Italian Onions," or such usually grotesque ones as "Lizards" and "Octopus."

In describing the unusual painting technique that give many of her paintings an effective almost enameled quality, the artist said: "I try to keep the color and yet at the same time keep the form."

Miss Massie's paintings have been seen at both student and members' shows at the Norton Gallery, at the Society of the Four Arts, and Worth Avenue Gallery. This past Summer she had several paintings at Mrs. Charles Payson's Country Club Gallery at Westbury, L. I.

Miami

B RILLIANCE AND BEAUTY spotlighted three fabulous balls to start Miami's social season zooming. The Opera Ball at the Surf Club, Symphony Club's Soiree Symphonique at the new Cafe de Paris and the Debutante Ball at the Surf Club were the epitome of what a beautiful ball should be.

This season's twelve debutantes, Sandra Balfe, daughter of the Alex Balfes; Marjorie Crane, daughter of Mrs. Luanna Eyler Crane and David Crane; Bitty Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William LeGrand Hunter; Kate Cowles, daughter of publisher Gardner (Mike) Cowles; Kitty Pafford, daughter of the Marion Paffords; Tina Hawley, daughter of the A. M. Seabers; Terry Anne and Cathie Merriman, daughters of the Jack Dennis Merrimans; Nancy White, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. Ward White; Lynn Hood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Hood Jr.; Marilyn Wood, daughter of the Philip Woods; Maymar Watters, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Preston H. Watters were as pretty a group of young things as you'd ever want to see.

Their bouffant ball downs of traditional white were highlighted with bouquets of pink camellias as they tripped down the main ballroom at the Surf Club to make their curtsies.

Four members of the board of governors of the Debutante Committee stood on a dais before a replica of a Greek temple to receive the girls' bows. They were Mrs. Ray Dodge, Mrs. F. Rouse Smith, Mrs. Edwin Wiegand and Mrs. Stefan Zachar. They wore handsome ball gowns and long white gloves, as did the debs. Fathers and escorts were in white ties and tails plus white gloves.

Mary Jane and Lino Sertel hosted a table of guests in the Fountain Room which lived up to its name literally. A few drops of rain splashed in through the open ceiling before it was closed. Mary Jane is a life member of the Debutante Committee and was wearing a heavy off white satin embroidered in sequins.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Floyd Bryant and his good looking Mrs., who were vacationing at the Surf in the Floyd Akers apartment, were at a table with Mr. Alfred I. Barton, executive v.p. of the Surf, and Mrs. Robert Butler, among others. Margaret Butler's late husband was the first U.S. Ambassador to Australia and also Ambassador to Cuba.

Capt. and Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker joined Celeste and Charlie Moon at their table. Mrs. Rickenbacker was in deep violet taffeta. With Mary and Col. Leslie Buswell were Col. Frank Barnes, deputy commander of the Army in Florida, and Imre Partos, fashion expert on furs who was formerly with Dior.

Up from Duck Key were Lucile and Bryan Newkirk, who were guests of Nina and Spratt Mangus, as were Ivah and Neil Miller and Mr. Joe Bettendorf. Ivah was in pale pink bouffant lace and taffeta; Nina

More than 650 guests attended this glamorous ball.

"Loveliest ball yet . . ." said members of the Opera Guild when they attended their annual ball at the Surf. More than 500 elegantly gowned women, with long white gloves, orchids, furs and dazzling jewelry and their formally dressed escorts came to dine, dance and hear Met star Nell Rankin sing.

Mrs. George Kennedy, chairman of the Ball, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Robert Z. Greene, headed the receiving line with their husbands, and Arturo di Filippi, head of the Opera Guild.

Ethel Kennedy's gorgeous white satin ball gown, embroidered in brilliants, was designed in Paris. With it she wore her exquisite diamond jewelry and white mink wrap. Beautiful Nancy Greene's wide black tulle and taffeta shimmered with brilliants. Its name is the Milky Way but it outshone the heavenly galaxy.

Also in the receiving line were the two former chairmen of the Ball, Mrs. William Stubblefield and Mrs. Charles Moon with their mates. They are responsible for bringing the Ball from a small gathering to the glittering social event it is today.

Elsa Stubblefield was in white satin embroidered in intricate bead word design. Celeste Moon's pale blue and silver lame was elegant and beautiful.

Madelon Reid in pale blue taffeta with pink and red roses at the waistline hosted a table. Other hosts included Horace Cordes, president of the Opera Guild, and Mrs. Cordes; Mr. John Astor; Laura and Fred Hooper; the William Pawleys; Mrs. Nelson Swift Morris; Hilde and Gary Kullack; Dorsey and Tom Raffington.

This year's Soiree Symphonique had a change of pace. Instead of the usual formal ball, and dinner dance, the Ball was held at Lou Walters' new Cafe de Paris, where guests saw the eye popping floor show straight from the Lido in Paris. Wow . . . what a show!

Chairmen of this Ball were Mrs. Philip Wylie, wife of the author; Mrs. William Pawley, whose husband is a former Ambassador to Brazil; Mrs. Howard Cumming. Mr. Cumming is an official with Howard Johnson restaurant chain.

Mrs. Mitchell Wolfson, president of the Symphony Club, in a white satin blouse and long black taffeta skirt, greeted guests at the door of the plush night club.

Mrs. Warren Freeman and Mrs. Fred Rank were buzzing about in the foyer. The Dale Shaffers, the Albert Clarks were taking note of the "French" girls in their tu-tus who strolled about for Parisian atmosphere.

The accent was on youth at Committee of 100's first Ladies' Night at the clubhouse on Belle Isle. Mr. Leonard Roy, executive vice president of the Committee, arranged for the Dixie Star Lift youngsters to entertain.

These are talented young people from all over Florida who sing, dance and play musical instruments.

Mr. Lowry Wall, one of the founder members of the Committee, and Mrs. Wall were with the H. B. Hoopers before "curtain time." From the Gables were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Race, who are building a new home there.

Dr. J. Holden Beckwith and Dr. Howard Snyder greeted guests as they entered. Handsome Dr. Beckwith showed colored photographs of himself and wife, Deo, in their skiing togs, taken in deep snow at their ranch near Flagstaff, Arizona. They are just back from the snowy ranch.

Charles Sorensen, tycoon and wizard of Ford, and a founder member of the Committee, came to see the fun.

Dowager Queen of party-givers, Elsa Maxwell, came to Miami to be honorary host at the Bonds for Israel Ball at the Fontainebleau Hotel. At 74, the ebullient Miss M. has lost none of her joie de vivre or drive.

On the night before the Ball, Nancy and Bob Greene entertained for her with cocktails at their home and dinner and dancing at the swank L'Aiglon Club in Surfside.

Miss Maxwell, in red lace, sat in a chair in the patio at the Greenes' beautiful home, and received her "subjects" in queenly manner. By her side was Mr. Alfred Barton, of the Surf Club.

At L'Aiglon her table companions included Dorothy and Dean Murphy (he formerly worked with Miss M.); Marianne Rey-

Nancy had attempted to have a small party, but it snowballed . . . everyone wanted to meet Miss Maxwell. Champagne flowed like the proverbial water, dinner was delicious and Elsa pronounced that Nancy and Bob know "How To Do It," title of her latest book on party-giving.

The Open House circuit on Christmas night was busier than a switchboard at the White House. There were the annual reception at the Surf Club; open house at Mary Ann and Jimmy Knight's Indian Creek Island home; ditto at Snoozie and Bill MacDonald's Bal Harbour residence and more than 300 to see Santa Claus at Sally and Bill Kappel's Collins Avenue home.

The outside decorations at the MacDonalds' home enthral their guests and all who see them. Bill is a trailer king and on their roof each year is Santa waving from his sleigh, his reindeer prancing; and Mrs. Santa waving from a trailer behind the sleigh! A life size group of carolers sings in one corner of the yard while in the other is an elaborate creche.

Under the big tent at the Knights, their two post deb daughters, Barbara and Marilyn and their friends danced the night away. Ada and Dan Rice, owners of thoroughbred racers, were accompanied by their son and his wife, the junior Rices, visiting from California over the holidays.

At the Surf Club Billie Sanchez showed her combination Christmas and 30th anniversary present from Julio. It was two strands of magnificent pearls, a wide pearl and diamond bracelet and matching ring. Pretty nice to find those in your stocking, eh?

At the Kappels, Mr. John Astor was escorting Claire (Mrs. William), just down

Tony and H. B. (Mac) MacDonald warmed their vast new home on Brickell Avenue with a cocktail party. It is an old house which they have completely remodeled and the grounds are a block in depth.

ENCHANTING, ROMANTIC, MYSTERIOUS WAKULLA SPRINGS murmurs the legend of the long-sought Fountain of Youth. Punctuated by the weird wails of the limpkin, the moss-hung cypress trees in Ponce de Leon's paradise whisper how the Spanish explorer and his men in 1513 sailed from the Gulf of Mexico up the St. Marks River to discover the crystal-clear water of Wakulla and to find it so invigorating they returned to bathe in it again in 1521.

Just fifteen miles south of Florida's capital — Tallahassee — the Spanish-styled, Moorish-decorated Wakulla Springs Hotel, built by Mr. Edward Ball, stands near the cypress trees behind which Indians lurked to sling their arrows at Ponce and his men, one of which wounded the explorer. The blood-stained arrow, with which he was supposedly shot, has been a part of the permanent collection at the hotel.

Since that day — when Ponce was taken down the Wakulla River to the Gulf and thence to a hospital in Cuba to be treated for the fatal wound — visitors to the Springs have found, as did the Spaniards, the water rejuvenating and the climate ideal for rest and relaxation.

Here the beautiful Indian princess, Malee, daughter of a Seminole Chief, saved the handsome young Georgia soldier, Duncan McCrimmen, from burning at the stake. He wooed but lost her, and Malee became the bride of an Indian brave.

It was a happy marriage, and so from it sprang the legend that marriages proposed at Wakulla go on through life as smoothly as Wakulla's water flows to the sea.

A fine antebellum cotton and tobacco aristocracy flourished here — when the rest of Florida was howling wilderness — and gallant young men riding high-stepping horses brought their pretty girls, dressed in sprigged muslin, to the Springs to speak their vows beside the Wakulla, promises made to be kept.

Yet centuries before Ponce de Leon found the Fountain of Youth at Wakulla Springs, Mexican Tolecs and Aztecs were here marveling at the flocks of gold dancing in the clear limestone water. To them — and to the Indians who followed — here was the home of a great and powerful spirit, for under the water they saw bones of ancient animals, undoubtedly sacrificed before the god.

Then DeSoto passed here going to the Mississippi. Cabeza de Vaca — whose horses later escaped to found the wild horse bands of the plains — camped here; and Panfile de Narvaez, with 300 men, including five priests and "forty officers and soldiers in armor, on armored horses," stopped here in June of 1528.

Here Narvaez and his men built ships —

Breath-taking scenes are viewed from an open boat on the Jungle Cruise at Wakulla Springs. Many romantic legends had their origin in this primeval paradise where natural beauty is carefully preserved by owner Edward Ball.

Vacationers find at Wakulla Springs the finest fresh water swimming in the world. Here are views of the swimming area where the clear, crystal spring is 185 feet deep.

the first sea-going craft to be launched on the North American continent—and here Missions were built by the early friars.

Wakulla—"Water of Mystery"—is a spring of 185 feet in depth, flowing at the rate of 617,000 gallons a minute from under a 30-foot cap of Florida limestone, sufficient to supply each New York City water customer 280 gallons every day.

Glass-bottomed boats glide over the underwater fairyland and open boats cruise the Jungle Route, where Tarzan stories have been filmed. Under moss-hung cypress trees—one known to be at least 2,000 years old—turtles lie on logs beside 200-year-old alligators; water turkeys spread their wings to dry their furry bodies before they fish or fly again; and espreys, fish eagles of the Gulf, herons, gallinules, coots, the wood ducks, rice birds and rare limpkins make their home here.

Once known in almost all the Gulf states, the limpkin now lives only at Wakulla Springs. A large snipe-like bird, it does not migrate. Its weird, ghostly wailing cry is typical of Wakulla nights heard beyond the Moorish archways and grilled doors, resounding through the rafters of the hotel's lobby aglow with old Toltec and Aztec designs.

Surrounded by a game preserve of some 6,000 acres, Wakulla—largest spring in the world—was developed by Mr. Ball and now annually attracts thousands of people. It is open the year around and during the four seasons many famous people visit here. Lord Edward Halifax, former British Ambassador to the United States, and Lady Halifax, and former President Truman's daughter, Margaret, are among those who found the bird lore, the jungle atmosphere, the constancy of the sunshine, all fascinating, and the hotel engaging and restful.

Here where the mastodon once roamed, where many of the animal's skeletons have been found, members of the National Geographic Society visit, and members of the American Ornithological Association, the Audubon Society, and bird watchers frequent the hotel from January to May, for here is found the most varied and rarest species of birds known in the Western Hemisphere.

The hotel—managed by Mr. H. McQuirter—is beside the big spring which is so clear it affords innumerable striking camera color shots for the underwater photographer in water which has 17 varieties of fish, although its temperature of 70 to 72 degrees stays the same the year around.

Here famed Henry, member of the great Black Bass family, known as the pole-vaulting fish, jumps an underwater pole as often as 200 times a day for the thousands of persons who come to see the amazing feat. Negro guides in glass-bottomed boats talk coaxingly to him until he circles, rises swiftly, makes a silvery lunge and falls away on the other side in a long graceful glide.

Youthful guests at Wakulla Springs enjoy a game of checkers on one of the world's largest marble checker tables. Diversions at the resort—in addition to the finest fresh water swimming—include sun bathing, a fine solarium, boating, water bicycles for the very ambitious, romantic moonlight jungle cruises, bicycles, trails for hiking, badminton, shuffleboard, ping-pong, tennis and dancing.

fordville, in charge of the sight-seeing boats and an ardent ornithologist, numbers among her many acquaintances, who come to study the rare birds, such nationally known ornithologists as Allen Cruickshank of Jacksonville, Florida; Dr. Robert P. Allen of Cornell University, and Roger T. Peterson, all of whom spend much time at Wakulla taking pictures and recording bird sounds.

But other hotel guests find goose and duck hunting not far distant from Wakulla's game preserve and deep sea fishing in the Gulf only a few miles away.

And at Wakulla the visitor will find the finest fresh water swimming in the world, with high-diving boards from which the expert or the amateur may do his stuff; and yet there is sun bathing, and boating, romantic moonlit jungle cruises, trails for hiking, and hotel games to keep the guest entertained.

Here Gulf breezes cool the Summer nights and rid the air of insect pests.

Here where the pre-historic animals roamed, the visitor can view the catfish kitchen, the Indian bee tree, the Indian staircase, the petrified log, the Indian profile, the beautiful American egret, the Florida Galineau, the mud hen, and the long-legged limpkin living on snails and snail eggs.

Here a 2,000-year-old cypress still standing served as a lookout post for the Spaniards and the Indians; here famous sports writer Grantland Rice filmed water ballet; and here much of a motion picture — "Creature of the Black Lagoon" — was made showing scenes down the river as the Gill man came from underground.

The Wakulla empties into the St. Marks — site of the second permanent Spanish town in Florida — and runs to the Gulf.

As the guide skillfully pilots the open boat on the river jungle cruise, through water foliage and water lilies and over fresh-water grass waving on the bottom of the limestone spring, skirting the logs where alligators lie, the visitor can watch eagles dropping into nests in cypress tops or try to distinguish the plumes of the egret from jungle growth.

But wherever he chooses to go, whatever he chooses to do, he will hear — if he listens — beautiful, mysterious, romantic Wakulla's crystal-clear water merrily murmuring the age-old legend of the Fountain of Youth.

In a setting of moss-hung virgin forests of live-oak, magnolia and pine, a stone's throw from the sapphire waters of the world's largest and deepest spring, the Wakulla Springs Hotel offers Southern hospitality at its best. A favorite vacationland the year around for thousands of sun worshippers, the resort hotel also is visited by members of the American Ornithological Society and the Audubon Society who come to study the rare birds in their natural habitat. Special boats, with guides, are provided for the bird watchers.

A number of the many figures Celebrity Room patrons are going to have fun trying to identify (though many are composites of notable personalities of the entertainment world) are noted in the above segment of the gigantic ceiling mural that features this popular spot at the new Royal Poinciana Playhouse.

CELEBRITY ROOM

at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse

FRANK J. HALE, President of the new Royal Poinciana Playhouse, and Paul Crabtree, its Producing Director, have announced that plans are completed for the "Celebrity Room," in connection with the opening of the new Playhouse on Royal Poinciana Plaza on Monday, February 3.

The Celebrity Room will be located just off the loggia in the new Playhouse building.

This magnificent room, with a panoramic view of the lake, will feature a full dome ceiling mural by the internationally famous artist, Robert Bushnell. Mr. Bushnell's work, designed especially for this room, will also contain portraits of one hundred of the greatest stars of the entertainment world; and its Venetian architectural background establishes the motif for the decor of the entire room. A circular refreshment bar, lounge banquettes, as well as attractive table seating, have been designed for fast service and comfort.

Because even a room of this size and beauty could not accommodate the entire audience that will attend the plays, the Playhouse management has limited membership to the Celebrity Room to season subscribers only. Service for the general public will be in the loggia itself.

The Playhouse Celebrity Room will be open to members for cocktails and dinner in the late afternoon before the show, during intermissions, and after the theatre. It will also be open for luncheon on Wednesday and Saturday matinee days. All Playhouse-sponsored social events will take place there and the room will be available to members who wish to give private parties honoring the Playhouse stars. Members will be permitted to bring houseguests.

Two from the world of entertainment who head the cast of one of the Royal Poinciana Playhouse's early productions. Fernanda Montel, Algerian songstress, co-stars with Marion Marlowe in "Roberta," one of three musicals to be presented this season at the Playhouse.

Frank J. Hale, Royal Poinciana Playhouse's President, poses in front of a segment of the huge mural that is to feature the theatre's Celebrity Room with Ginger Rogers and the mural's artist, Robert Bushnell. Though the figures in the mural, in many cases, are composites of celebrities in the world of the theatre, there's a suspicion Mr. Hale may have inspired the face behind him, and it's fairly certain Miss Rogers was one of the glamorous women whose charm the artist captured in the figure over her head.

Meticulous details of costumes and background, the result of much research on the part of artist Robert Bushnell, are noted especially in this segment of the Celebrity Room mural, showing a Venetian festival scene.

Robert Cummings, who will open the Playhouse this season in "Holiday for Lovers."

One of the gayest carnival scenes in the Venetian fete Robert Bushnell has chosen to depict in his huge mural topping the Celebrity Room of the Playhouse. Approximately 100 figures, some taken from life, many composites of theatrical figures are shown in authentic costumes of the period.

EUROPE is traditionally the favored Summer playground of Americans. Summer 1957 found extra numbers making the crossing drawn by the meeting of the International Bar Association in London.

U.S. Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren traveled to the British Capital for the IBA and a round of top social events climaxed by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth's big garden party. The Warrens journeyed on to Scotland for a private visit to the Queen's Palace in Edinburgh. From there they crossed into Ireland for Dublin's colorful Spring Horse Show. Mrs. Warren's postcard from Erin: "I love Ireland — so peaceful and relaxing."

U.S. Military Appeals Judge and Mrs. Homer Ferguson were another couple who went first to London for the International Bar then on to the Continent for a six weeks' tour. There Judge Ferguson, combining business with pleasure, visited Military Courts in Germany, France, Italy and Spain. In England, the Fergusons were week-end houseguests of Sir Hugh Lucas-Tooth, M.P. and Lady Lucas-Tooth in Hampshire on the Avon River. In the Netherlands, U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. Philip Young were Ferguson hosts at The Hague. In Brussels, they visited U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. Clifford Folger. Before sailing for home, Judge and Mrs. Ferguson spent a week at the romantic old Castle of Sintra in Portugal.

Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton sailed on the S.S. Noordam in mid-July, visiting Amsterdam, Paris and Madrid and touring the charming old Andalusian cities of Spain. August found the Burtons in Switzerland, where they were joined by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Burton, for a top-to-bottom visit of that Summer wonderland — Geneva, Zurich, Lucerne and Interlaken, where they attended the famous pastoral play, "William Tell." Berne, fashionable St. Moritz and Basle were all on the Burton tour.

met Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Thomas Clark. After attending the International Bar in London, they had traveled on to Belgium, Germany, Spain and France. Holidaying on the French Riviera, the Clarks visited Princess Grace Kelly's Palais de Monaco. From Paris they were off to Lisbon and from there back to the U.S.A.

Mrs. George Maurice Morris, whose late husband was the well-known international lawyer, says she "collects islands." This year she added Madeira and Las Palmas and Tenerife of the Canaries to her collection. And she traveled this historic itinerary in a ship called the Santa Maria. In Spain, Miriam Morris visited the prehistoric Caves of Alta Mira with their incredible murals done in Stygian darkness some 20,000 years ago. Among adventures in England, Mrs. Morris took a three-weeks' course in architecture at the British National Trust, while living at "Attingham Park," Lady Berwick's famous 18th century house in Shropshire. U.S. Independence Day found Mrs. Morris at the U.S. Embassy garden party as guest of Ambassador and Mrs. Whitney. In deference to her late husband's offices as President of the American, Inter-American and International Bar Associations, Mrs. Morris was a special guest at IBA festivities in London. She attended Lord and Lady Denning's garden party, took tea with the Lord Chancellor and Lady Kilmuir (sister of Rex "My Fair Lady" Harrison), and went to the Royal Garden Party at Buckingham Palace. At the Bar's final dinner, Mrs. Morris sat at head table next to Mr. Selwyn Lloyd with Sir Winston Churchill as guest speaker. In Germany, Mrs. Morris visited the Baroness van Schoen. In Austria, she was a guest of the Dowager Princess Lichtenstein.

Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Sinclair Weeks enjoyed Europe's late Summer sunshine on a flying trip which took them to England, Sweden, Austria and Yugoslavia. Mission was the Secretary's visit to U.S. Trade Fairs. In Stockholm, for St. Erick's Fair, the Cabinet couple's week-end host was Enskilka Bank President Marcus Wallenberg, at his villa near the Swedish capital. In Vienna, U.S. Ambassador Freeman Matthews gave the Weeks a large reception at the U.S. Pavilion. The Secretary spoke at "America Day" ceremonies in Zagreb where the Weeks were dinner guests at picturesque Mokrica Castle and in Belgrade they enjoyed luncheon with Marshal Tito.

Miss Carolyn Nash, sailing aboard the S.S. United States, spent a glamorous August and September on the Continent. First to lush, green Normandy and the once-Vanderbilt-owned Chateau de Quesnay as guest of the Kingsley Macomber. There she spent three weeks with almost daily visits to fashionable Deauville for parties and the races. Paris was her next stop to board a helicopter to Belgium. To quote Miss Nash: "I tottered out at Brussels, deafened, feeling as if I had arrived in a mixmaster!" A guest of the American Embassy, Carolyn attended the dinner given by Ambassador and Mrs. Folger for visiting U.S. Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. Maxwell Taylor. After Belgium, there were three weeks "in my beloved Paris," including the Ballet, Fireworks at Versailles, the Lehman art collection at the Orangerie and the Fall fashion showings.

On the great staircase of Madrid's magnificent Royal Palace, your reporter ran into former Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper of Miami and Washington, who were on an extensive study tour of Europe. The Peppers were headquartering at the swank new Castelana Hilton. Earlier, while visiting Italy, they had been received in special audience by Pope Pius XII at Castel Gandolfo.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mass and son Leonard of Palm Beach also were enjoying the wonders of the Spanish Capital as a climax to their extended European holiday.

Mainly music inspired the three-month European trek of Gerson Nordlinger Jr. To Paris first where he was houseguest for ten days of well-known Washington music patron, Mrs. Robert Dunlap, at her 14th century chateau near Sarthe, France. Vienna was Mr. Nordlinger's next stop for the last week of the Opera season. In Salzburg, he joined Mrs. Jouett Shouse of Washington, another touring music devotee, along with Princess Katchoubey de Beauharnais and Mr. Carl Halvorsen. The foursome spent a musical month in Yugoslavia highlighted by their visit to beautiful old Dubrovnik and its celebrated music festival.

Later, Mr. Nordlinger visited Padua, Italy, attended the Opera Festival in Munich, where he houseguested with Baroness von Schoen, and holidayed in Paris and London.

Summer visitors to Italy included U.S. Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. David Bruce as guests of the elegant Charles Bestegui at his Palazzo Labia. Much traveled and best-dressed Mrs. Bruce had never seen the famous palace with its fabulous Tiepolo ceilings. "Wish I could stay a month instead of two days," said the beautiful Evangeline.

Mrs. Lawrence Wood ("Chip") Robert of Washington and Atlanta journeyed to London via the Ile de France for a late Summer holiday and to meet Mr. Robert and debutante daughter Birney returning from a round-the-world Summer jaunt.

Washington's well-known VIP greeter and his bride Mrs. Edgar Morris (nee Mary Slater of Los Angeles) honeymooned in Europe. Flying directly from their San Antonio, Texas, wedding they spent a romantic week at Madrid's world-famous Palace Hotel, sunbasked on the Riviera, visited in sunny Majorca with former Spanish Ambassador Juan Francisco Cardenas. In Naples, the newlyweds were houseguests of Allied Forces Southern Europe Chief Admiral Robert Briscoe and Mrs. Briscoe, where they met Italian Prince and Princess Sanseverino di Bisignana, who had just arrived from his former U.S. post proudly showing friends his key to the City of Washington. Switzerland was the scene of a round of festivities for the Morris and Paris completed the honeymoon holiday where one of the Morris hosts was ESSO executive Charles Van der Burg.

Major General and Mrs. William D. Connor's European Summer included a visit to the sunny Canary Islands as well as Spain, France, Italy, Germany, and Switzerland.

Mrs. Jorje Zalles (Rose Saul) not only toured Europe this year, she twice circled the globe. August found her in Ireland with handsome, young nephew Frank Saul, indulging her love of horses at the Royal Dublin Society Horse Show, attending the famous Irish hunt balls, visiting Prince Ali Khan's horse farm and applauding "Finian's Rainbow" at the Abbey Theatre. Rose's hosts in Dublin included U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. Scott McLeod. In London, Mrs. Zalles guested with Sir John and Lady Hacking. The International Music and Drama Festival in Edinburgh was a highlight. Paris came next with a visit to the France salon of Rose Zalles' longtime friend, Madame Jacques Bousquet. Then to Rome before departing Eastward, still with nephew Frank, on a fabulous tour of such far-away places as Afghanistan, Nepal, Australia, the Fijis, Tahiti and Samoa.

Mrs. Franklin Hart, wife of the distinguished Marine General, was another Continental visitor. From Paris, she motored with friends through the Provence to the French Riviera. At Cannes, Mrs. Hart joined actress Dorothy Gish and Laura McCullough, dined at Cap Martin with the Frank Hechts of Honolulu, Chicago and Washington and with Lady Leslie Macklin. Florence and Venice were on the Hart itinerary enroute back to Paris where she was a tea guest of our U.S. Ambadress Mrs. Amory Houghton. General Hart joined his wife in the French Capital and they were off to Zurich and then Naples where they visited Admiral and Mrs. Robert P. Briscoe. In Madrid, the Victor Oswalds were their hosts and they reunited with Count and Countess Valmasada, who made many Washington friends when they accompanied Franco's daughter and her husband to the U.S. A fitting climax to the Hart holiday came in Lisbon, where they were guests of the Ellis Goodwins. There they attended the U.S. Marine Corps Birthday with General Hart cutting the big birthday cake.

Mrs. Katherine Byron traveled to the Land of the Midnight Sun on the North Cape cruise. She made trips to Copenhagen, Stockholm, Oslo, Bruges and Ostend. In Frankfurt, she visited her son and daughter-in-law, Captain and Mrs. Goodloe E. Byron, and their small sons, Kim and Jeb. There was a jaunt to the beautiful Bavarian country. Lake Como was starred on the former Congresswoman's itinerary which also included France, Ireland and England. In London, Mrs. Byron was entertained by former Washingtonians Dr. Donald Honeywell and Colonel Jones-Davis. Highlight of her trip to France, accompanied by the Goodloe Byrons, was a visit to the site of the signing of the World War II treaty. There on the walls among pictures of the great generals, young Mrs. Goodloe found not only General Dwight D. Eisenhower's, but her father, Captain Harry Butcher's.

First persons we saw in Rome's famed Excelsior Hotel were former New York Senator and Mrs. Herbert Lehman, CIA Director and Mrs. Allen Dulles, Britain's Hugh Gaitskell, and the French Foreign Minister's son, handsome Claude Pineau. Actress Joan Crawford and husband Alfred Steele were in the hotel, a group of well-known Washington bachelors, Barney Kennedy, Colonel Douglas Gillette, Jack Logan (an oft-time Marjorie Post escort), who was enroute to Yugoslavia, and Marvin Soles returning home from sunning on the Cote d'Azur. Former GOP National Chairman and Mrs. Leonard Hall were Summer visitors to the Eternal City. Congressional wives, Mrs. Richard Simpson, Mrs. Tom Steed and Mrs. Fred Bradley were enjoying a Roman visit. Cocktailing at the ancient Orsini Palace of Prince de Beaumont, we saw such beauties as Countess Consuelo Crespi (American-born Consuelo O'Connor), Princess del Drago and actress Merle Oberon. Beauteous Washington and New York model, Lark Curtis, touring European fashion capitals, did a turn on the runway of designer Miglioni Guggenheim in Rome. Signora Gabriele Paresce of Washington was ensconced at her Roman home deep in a book of her late, great father Marconi.

Assistant Commerce Secretary and Mrs. George Thomas Moore were in Italy to attend the Trade Fair at Bari.

In Paris, at the Georges Cinq, we found Jack Benny and his wife Mary surrounded by autographers. Kentucky's Senator and best-dressed Mrs. John Sherman Cooper were in the French Capital and Mrs. Charles Miller was hostess at her roof top apartment to American college girls, including Rosalie Reynolds of North Carolina, Barbara Schoeppl of Florida and New Jersey's Priscilla Watts.

At the Captain's table on the S.S. Queen Mary were Under Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Louis Rothschild returning to the U.S. from a journey to Greece and Turkey.

ALL ROADS ON New Providence Island in the Bahamas led away from Nassau proper to the exclusive Coral Harbour Club on the southern shore for the seasonal opening for members and their guests.

Located on the south shore of New Providence Island, five minutes from Nassau's new International Airport, the club was decorated to the hilt for its second season opening.

The elegantly jeweled and furred opening nighters stepped from low slung sports cars (some left over from Speed Weeks), miniature English models, and enormous American imports. Managing director Frank McHugh and Mrs. McHugh greeted them in the sparkling, glassed-front lobby of the modern Bahamian structure.

His Excellency The Governor, Sir Raynor Arthur, K.C.M.G., C.V.O., and Lady Arthur arrived unceremoniously in the Governor's official, stately Rolls Royce. As guests of the club's Rear Commodore Harry P. Sands and Mrs. Sands, they joined their table and a large group for cocktails in the luxurious lounge.

Chatting at the official table were Nassau's Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Sands (he's Harry P's son), and Sir Francis and Lady Peek with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Miller of Miami. The club's co-owner, Mr. Lindsey Hopkins Jr. of Miami maneuvered between tables stopping to greet the Bethlehem Steel Co. executives and their wives, who originally hail from Bethlehem, Pa., but now reside in Nassau.

Spearheaded by Bennet C. Macgregor, President of Bethlehem Steel Co. (Canada) Ltd. and Mrs. Macgregor, they gathered on the breeze-swept terrace for a family and friendly get-together. In town for several weeks was Mrs. Macgregor's sister, Madame Leon Robart of Fontainebleau, France, and Mr. Macgregor's sister, Mrs. Frank Bonebrake and her husband of Shaker Heights, Ohio.

The Macgregors were full of enthusiasm about their ten week trip through Central and South America. Mr. E. James Kenney joined Congetta and William Humphries, all of Bethlehem, while Mrs. Clayton Wolfe of St. Louis, Mo., compared notes with Mr. Frank Raboid, Bethlehem, Pa., and Mr. Carroll Lovering of Nassau and New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Andreae's party included his mother, Mrs. D. M. Homewood (all of London and Nassau), Miss Sonja Hunter of Kenilworth, Ill., and Nassau, and Mr. Gordon Moritz of London and Nassau.

Also in the travel department were two other globe-trotters, Major and Mrs. Raymond Eleuthera, one of the most adventure-struck and historic islands in the archipelago of the Bahamas, is giving everyone a chance to revel in 17th century atmosphere with 20th century conveniences.

The plush Rock Sound Club, owned by Florida's multi-millionaire Mr. Arthur Vining Davis, on the southern end of Eleuthera, opened its gaily decorated doors to the fun-loving visitors who were there for a spectacular Christmas holiday.

Managed by Mr. Kenneth Bourke, the club offered the Bahamian Junkanoo Parade as a Christmas Day celebration, followed by a week of gala dinners with gifts to the guests, cocktail and eggnog parties, charcoal and broiled steak barbecue with calypso dancing to the club's band, deep sea fishing, pirates treasure hunt, yacht trip, water skiing, and ended with a champagne dinner party.

In one of the most glamorous formal openings, the new French Leave Hotel made its Winter season debut at Governor's Harbour, a 300-year-old settlement on the island of Eleuthera.

French Leave has an interesting history as a private home on a beautiful stretch of tropical beach. It has now been rebuilt as a resort to reflect "a way of life" according to owner Craig Kelly, a former Broadway and Hollywood actor. More than 200 guests were invited to the opening of his fabulous structure of native wood and stone. Among those on hand for the day long cocktail party were Eleuthera residents Col. and Mrs. Arthur McGrath (she is the famous author-lecturer Rosita Forbes), co-authors Mr. and Mrs. K. Helwig-Larsen, Lord and Lady Trefgarne and Dr. and Mrs. Norman Kerr.

Many made the half hour flight from Nassau including Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKinney, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Symonette, Mr. and Mrs. Asa H. Pritchard, American Consul Temple Wanamaker and Mrs. Wanamaker, Capt. and Mrs. Peter Fair, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McKinney, Mr. Harold G. Christie and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Maura.

On Andros Island, the Lighthouse Club at Andros Town has had its share of guests — specialists in fishing, swimming and boating.

Associated Press columnist Hal Boyle with Mrs. Boyle and their daughter and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Don Whitehead, were early December arrivals. Mr. Whitehead is the author of "The F.B.I. Story" and is currently planning a round-the-world trip to do research for a new book.

The Lighthouse Club was a popular place for Floridians. On the spot were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Landefeld and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rex Judy of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keiser and Mr. George Loehr of Fort Lauderdale and, aboard his yacht Stranger V, Fort Lauderdale's Mr. Edward Strang, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Yarrington from Naples, Mr. Kenneth Keyes of Coral Gables aboard his yacht Caprice, and Dr. and Mrs. C. W. O'Brien of Miami aboard their Bandia II.

Peter Donald, radio and television entertainer, who spends all of his spare time in Nassau, took time out from his schedule to relax for a few days at the club. All the way from Los Angeles, Calif., came Mr. and Mrs. George D. Shepherd and their son, Philip.

Enthusiastic sportsman and deep-sea fisherman, Mr. Ralph D. Webb and his wife of Wheaton, Ill., were club guests. Mr. Webb is an executive with the U.S. Steel Corporation of America. Flying in their own plane to the air strip at Andros Town were Mr. N. E. Mendenhall and Mr. Richard Thackray of Johnstown, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Windle of Millbury, Mass., also flew their plane into Andros.

IT SEEMS that old man Winter is frowning on some sections of the country at present, but we must admit that he is more than smiling on this Florida resort. Instead of dark dreary days, the sun is sending down golden rays — not on glistening snow but on a bright sandy beach. Spring blossoms bid welcome to arriving vacationers.

A favorite pastime for many guests are shell hunts along the white sandy beach. Naturally, they are always pleased to find a handsome piece of driftwood to display back

At this season it seems that anglers have a field day fishing in the fresh water lagoon. Great numbers of bass, bream and perch are brought to shore daily. And the surf casters always get a thrill out of landing a big channel bass. This resort is truly becoming a fisherman's paradise.

Tennis enthusiasts will be pleased to learn that work has begun on three new courts and before too much longer these will be put into play right along with the present ones that are being resurfaced.

PALM BEACH is enjoying a peak season, according to Bernard H. Cooley, president and general manager of The Colony, and board chairman of the Palm Beach Hotel Association.

Composer Irving Berlin was once again among the Colony guests launching the new season earlier than used to be the custom. Mr. Berlin enjoyed his white Christmas at the Colony Bath Club's swimming pool and remained for the New Year's festivities.

The luxurious penthouse apartments at The Colony were re-engaged for the season by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Nichols of West Orange, N. J., and by Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Lilly (Lilly Pharmaceuticals) of Indianapolis. Rear Admiral and Mrs. George M. Lowry of Carmel Valley, Calif., are the new occupants of the third penthouse.

The Colony, one of the few Palm Beach hotels to remain open the year round, is one of the few hotels in the ocean block adjacent to the beaches. Guests can take their sunbathing and swimming at the Sun and Bath Club.

In addition to its main dining room, whose

THREE EVENTS HIGHLIGHTED this month's social calendar. They were the Bachelor Ball, the Christmas Ball for the Benefit of the Silver Cross Day Nursery, and the benefit performance of Tosca at the Metropolitan Opera to aid the Bagby Music Lover's Foundation Inc. Pension Fund.

The Bachelor Ball, which is always a brilliant party, was held in the grand ballroom and the adjoining Trianon Room of the Ambassador Hotel. White ties and tiaras were requested on the invitations by a group of New York's most popular bachelors headed by Milton (Doc) Holden, and Colonel Serge Obolensky, co-chairmen. The other members of the committee, who every year join in giving a ball honoring their hosts of the year, were the Messrs. Peter Salm, Beverly Bogert Jr., Cole Porter, Charles G. Cushing, Harry Evans, Ivan Obolensky, Gerald Gordon, Oleg Cassini, Harry Brooks, Edward M. McIlvain, Lauder Greenway, Constantine Aljalov, Harry O. King, Grover Loening, Ivan Patcevetch, Denny Slater and Samuel H. Vallance.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bancroft Jr. entertained in the Gold and Crystal Suites of the Ambassador at one of the largest of the many dinners given before the ball. Included among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. W. Douglas Burden, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Mortimer, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Farr,

A large fashionable audience of persons notable in society, international diplomacy, finance, and music attended the benefit performance of "Tosca" at the Metropolitan Opera to aid the Bagby Music Lover's Foundation, Inc., Pension Fund for needy opera and concert artists. Many subscribers are descendants of old New York society families whose members have attended many Bagby events since the first "Musical Morning" concert was arranged by the late Albert Morris Bagby in 1892. "Tosca" marked the group's first benefit at the Met, and replaced the annual daytime concert at the Waldorf.

Zinka Milanov, acclaimed Met soprano, graciously agreed to sing the leading role in the opera instead of Renata Tebaldi, who was unable to appear because of the sudden death of her mother. Leonard Warren and Carlo Bergonzi sang the principal male roles.

An excellent dinner party in Sherry's was given by Lucrezia Bori, chairman of the benefit committee, who had as her guests His Excellency, the Spanish Ambassador to the United States, Count Jose Maria de Arielza de Motrico and Countess Motrico, Mr. Edward Johnson, new president of the Bagby Foundation; Countess de Covadonga; Countess Revella de Camargo; Mr. and Mrs. Jose-Mena, and Colonel Sousa of the well-known musical family.

Among those present at the Opera were Mrs. William C. Breed, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Burden, Mrs. David W. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. The Christmas Ball, with proceeds going to the Silver Cross Day Nursery, one of New York's long-established havens for children of pre-school age, brought out a very gay social audience. Many of the younger set were present; among them were Miss Marguerita Beer, Miss Elizabeth C. Cowles, Miss Anita Loehmann, Miss Leslie F. French Impressionist at the Society of the Four Arts

Mr. Nathan Cummings, noted art collector, looks at his Monet painting, "Jean Monet on Mechanical Horse," which he lent to the Claude Monet exhibit.

AS THE CLIMAX of what might be termed a "Monet year" in art circles, the Society of the Four Arts had a loan exhibition of works by the great French Impressionist for its second major show of the year, opening January 3 for a month.

Simultaneously, with the Monet works in the Society's larger galleries, there has been an exhibition of 24 small oil paintings by other artists of the same era in the North Gallery.

The fact that these latter paintings were lent by Mrs. Mellon Bruce from the collection she bought at the Molyneux sale, gave special interest to the show in Palm Beach. Mrs. Bruce formerly had a home here and she has many Palm Beach friends, including members of the Four Arts Art Committee.

Christened in a torrential rainstorm, the dual show proved so popular that the opening preview tea drew an unusually large crowd despite the unseasonable early January weather.

The exhibition proved exceptionally popular both with members at the preview and with the crowds that have continued to visit it during the past few weeks. Seldom have the walls of the Four Arts galleries presented paintings of such rare delight and appeal both to the art intelligentsia and to the casual gallery visitor.

Presentation of the Monet collection was the result of long planning that really had its inception when Russell Plimpton, now in his second year as Four Arts director, was director at the Minneapolis Art Institute.

Many of the 23 works shown here came directly from the Minneapolis Institute, which in October had the same Monet show that was held in September at the St. Louis City Art Museum, as the result of a joint endeavor.

In the Spring of 1957 there was a Monet show at the Museum of the Arts in Boston and in April one in the Chicago Art Institute who visit his family here at times. These were "In the Garden" and "The Barges at Argenteuil."

Mr. Sam Salz, a New York visitor, dropped in to see the magnificent and typically Impressionistic painting that he lent from his collection, "Coast of Brittany."

Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Hartford were not in Palm Beach for the opening but sent one of the largest canvases, "The Jetty at LeHavre," 1868, one of the finest examples of the artist's early period, when subdued low key colors and atmospheric effects had not yet given way to his absorption with light and color, so admirably portrayed in such paintings as "Gladioli," "The Poplars," "Water Lilies," 1899, from the Lasker collection.

The Monet collection, though comparatively small in number, proves a representative cross-section of his various periods, ranging from the very subdued and foggy paintings of the 1860's to one of his last "Water Lilies," circa 1916-26, lent by Larry L. Aldrich of New York.

The paintings sent by Mrs. Bruce turned the small North Gallery into a capsule exhibition of work by some of the titans of the Impressionist and Post-Impressionist era. Culled from the Molyneux collection, of which they formed about one-third, they have rarely been shown so that their presence for this show afforded art lovers a most unusual opportunity.

Exquisite small works by some of the giants of the era proved as entrancing as any of the larger, better known paintings by the same. Represented were Renoir, Manet, Bonnard, Vuillard, Utrillo, Sisley, Rouault, Lepine, Gauguin, Daumier, Corot and Picasso, with a self-portrait that once was owned by Hugh Walpole.

Despite their size, all bore the unmistakable hand of the masters that did them.

to celebrate the acquisition of a large painting in the "Water Lily" series. In August there was a showing of about 100 at the Edinburgh Festival and in the Fall an exhibition at the Tate Gallery in London.

Several individual owners who lent paintings for the show attended the Palm Beach opening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh N. Kirkland arrived early to view the hanging of the beautiful Manet-esque painting, "Argenteuil: River with Figures."

Nathan Cummings was there. He had two paintings, which previously he had lent the Tate Gallery, flying over to London to see them in the show there. These were the delightful "Jean Monet on a Mechanical Horse" and the cool, misty "Snow on the Mountains: Norway," the two representing respectively the early Monet period in 1872 and the later era in 1895.

Two fine and widely different paintings of the 1870's were lent by Mr. and Mrs. H. O. H. Frelinghuysen of Far Hills, N. J.,

This dual show appeared just as the Four Arts was plunging into its crowded schedule of seasonal activities, with lectures on Tuesdays, motion pictures on Fridays and musical affairs twice a month on Wednesday evenings.

Mr. Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the Senate Racketeering Investigation, opened the lecture series. Ruth Slencznska, pianist, was the first of the musical program to appear. (Emilie Keyes.)

The Beach Club Hotel

Naples-on-the-Gulf, Florida

A large gallery of interested golf fans watches Patty Berg demonstrate the art of fine golfing techniques on the championship links at The Beach Club Hotel.

JANUARY is one of the most delightful months of the year in Naples. It has been aptly written that "Naples is as romantic and unspoiled as a South Sea Island, the little city is a land of golden sunshine, of soft breezes wafting through the swaying palms, of exotic flowers and contentment. It is a city of snowy white beaches, marvelous fishing, and tropical homes bordering quiet palm lined streets. Life is simple, comfortable, revitalizing."

This description must be the general consensus of opinion as so many of our Winter guests return to The Beach Club Hotel and Naples Hotel year after year. Mr. Cooper Wood, retired Detroit industrialist, is Naples' most enthusiastic and faithful Winter visitor. He is considered the official harbinger of the season and his arrival is looked forward to with great anticipation by both fellow guests and Neapolitans. Mr. Wood has been coming to Naples each Winter for over thirty years, staying at both The Beach Club and Naples Hotel.

Social events have been foremost on the calendar recently. The Reef Room was the scene of a delightful cocktail and buffet dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. John Becker for over one hundred guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Nystrom of Naples also were host and hostess for a lovely cocktail and dinner party. They entertained their many friends in the Sea Sprite and Jewel Box, private dining rooms at The Beach Club.

The Quarterback Club of Naples enjoyed dinner in the Reef Room and had as their guest speaker, Mr. George Trogdan, Line Coach at the University of Miami. A film was shown after dinner which was of great interest to the young football stars. Eighty members and their guests were present for this highly successful dinner meeting.

Mrs. Stephen F. Briggs of Naples and Milwaukee was unanimously elected the outstanding citizen of the year at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet held in the Poinciana Room. Mrs. Briggs was awarded a handsome silver trophy for her untiring efforts in community affairs. She is the wife of Mr. Stephen F. Briggs, Chairman of the Board of the Outboard Marine Corporation of Waukegan, Illinois. Mr. Clyde Ayds, Vice President and General Manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, was the speaker of the evening. Mr. Henry B. Watkins, President of the Naples Golf and Beach Club, was the first Neapolitan to receive this honor last year.

A gallery of avid golf enthusiasts watched famous Patty Berg, top money winner on the women's professional tournament trail, conduct a clinic and play a nine-hole exhibition match. The nine-hole foursome included Bonnie Randolph and Paul Bell, Beach Club professionals, and Henry B. Watkins. This foursome is a yearly tradition and once again the women pros were victorious. Patty Berg is a frequent visitors on the Beach Club's championship links.

Among the many entrants for the Southern Seniors Invitational Golf Tournament this month are: Horace D. Steadman, Rockingham, N. C.; W. E. Norvell Jr., Signal Mountain, Tenn.; William H. Darden, Virginia Beach, Va.; Floyd E. Lasher, Crystal Bay, Minn.; Joseph P. Gallagher, Wellston, Ohio; Charles W. Williams, Montclair, N. J.; Howard E. Hawk, Columbus, Ohio; Dr. A. B. Crites, Kansas City, Mo.; Dr. E. S. Edgerton, Wichita, Kan.; Colonel Edward L. Story, Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. R. M. Anderson, Hackensack, N. J. Mr. J. Wolcott Brown of Manasquan, N. J., is defending champion.

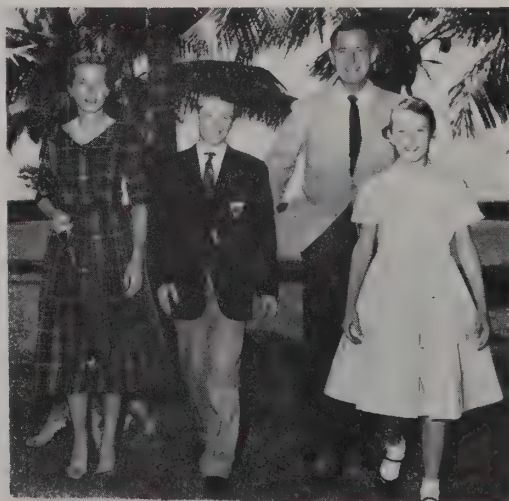

Mr. Richard L. Simon, of the Simon and Schuster publishing family, has been a frequent guest at the Beach Club, and is returning to Riverdale, N. Y., shortly with the promise of returning for the Winter season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Jordan of Pittsburgh, Pa., spent a holiday here recently. Mr. Jordan is an executive with the United States Steel Corporation.

and Mrs. J. W. Bates, who arrived on their yacht and spent a week's holiday at the Beach Club before departing on another cruise to the West Indies.

Invitations have been mailed out this month for the Second Annual Shrine Golf Tournament which takes place in the early Spring. Many special events have been planned for the Shiners and their wives in order to assure everyone of an especially festive time. Special putting tournaments and driving contests are in store for the women, shelling and fishing expeditions into the Ten Thousand Islands, a tour of Naples' beautiful gulf front homes, fascinating Caribbean Gardens, and cocktail and buffet dinner parties.

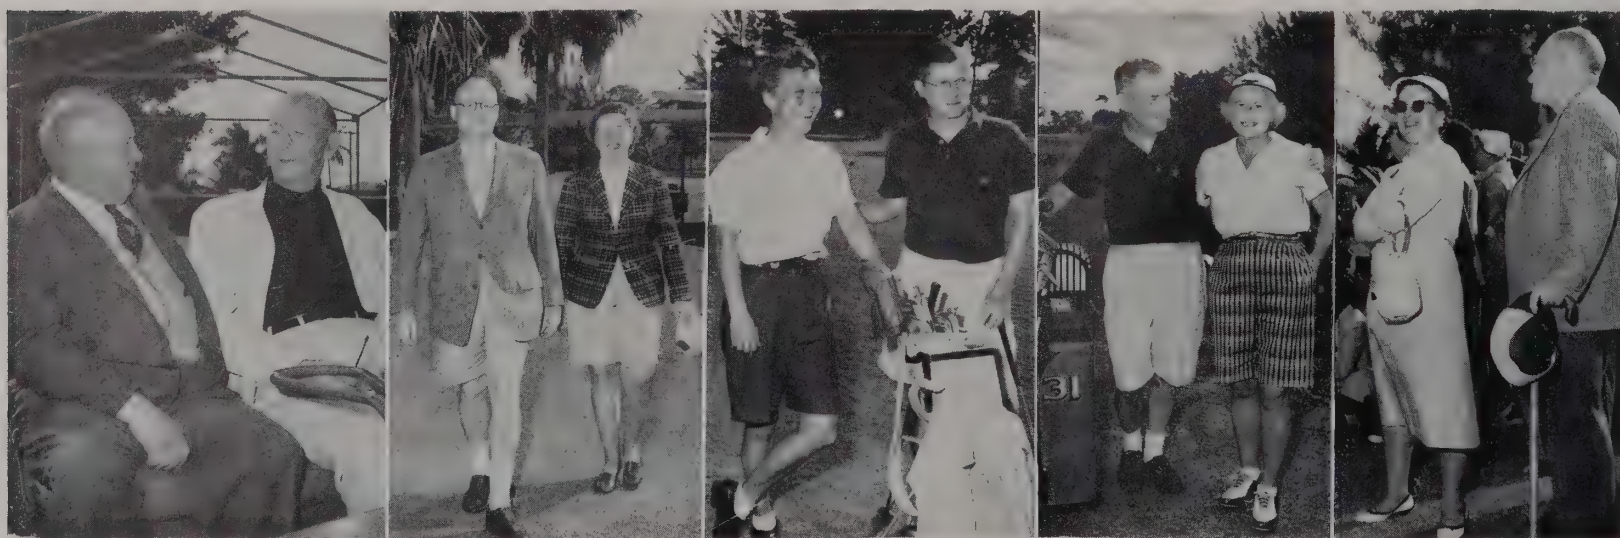

January guests at the Beach Club include: Mr. and Mrs. B. Merrill and family, Henderson, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Seaton and son, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Holmes of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen F. Briggs photographed with the Collier County News' Outstanding Citizen Award she received at the Chamber of Commerce Banquet at The Beach Club Hotel. Mrs. Briggs was selected by an overwhelming majority for her outstanding citizenship in church, welfare, and civic activities by the Chamber of Commerce in balloting. Mrs. Briggs is the wife of Stephen F. Briggs, Chairman of the Board of the Outboard Marine Corporation, Waukegan, Illinois.

Goodwill and Golf in Bermuda

By Barbara Dubivsky

Gene Ray

The Springdale Country Club team failed to win a prize in the fifth annual Bermuda Goodwill Golf Tournament, but one of the team member's wives, Mrs. John Cullen, is shown above with His Excellency, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Woodall, Governor of Bermuda, after receiving low gross honors in a special tournament at the Castle Harbour Golf Club. Making up the Springdale team in the Goodwill tourney were club pro Harry Kinnell and amateurs John B. Grover, Thomas S. Dignan and John Cullen, all of Princeton. Mrs. James Lindsay of Hillendale Country Club won the low net prize and is being congratulated by His Excellency.

From the left, the wives of the men competing in Bermuda's annual Goodwill Golf Tournament had a competition of their own. Participating from the Riverton Country Club, Riverton, N. J., were Mrs. Alexander Storer of Collingswood, N. J.; Mrs. Howard S. Coe of The Elms, Riverton; Mrs. William Shirley of Haddonfield, N. J., and Mrs. John Hayes, Haddonfield. Mrs. Hayes was low net runner-up. They played on the Castle Harbour Hotel's Golf Course. Two, Connecticut golfers from the Ridgewood Country Club of Danbury, Conn., were Mrs. Robert Tarrant, Danbury; Mrs. Jack Thompson, Danbury, also of Columbus.

and Mrs. George McLachlan of Newton. The ladies and their husbands are guests of the McLachlans at their Bermuda residence, "Caliban," in Tucker's Town. Three, from the Spring Lake Country Club, Spring Lake, N. J., were Mrs. John Reardon, Spring Lake; Mrs. Walter Russell, Paterson, N. J., and Mrs. James W. Cleary, Wilmington Del. Mrs. Cleary was a low net runner-up. Four, from the Scioto Country Club of Columbus, Ohio, were Mrs. James Saeger (third low gross scorer), Columbus; Mrs. James Amento (low gross runner-up), Columbus; Mrs. Charles Eichhorn, Columbus, and Mrs. Jack Grout,

From the left, John Hall, professional Jim Gantz, His Excellency, Jack Warden and R. W. Gregory. Harrisburg team posted 54-hole net bestball total of 183, the identically same tally they carded in winning the tourney in 1955.

While on a sightseeing tour of historic town of St. George's, these wives of golfers competing in Bermuda's annual Goodwill Golf Tournament came across the pillory erected on its original site in King's Square and couldn't resist posing with it. From the left: Mrs. Harold Evans, Mrs. Stan Dudas, Mrs. Ted Harp and Mrs. Jess Mair. Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Mair are from the Bucknell Country Club of Lewisburg, Pa., Mrs. Dudas and Mrs. Harp from North Hills Country Club of Philadelphia, Pa.

BERMUDA'S GOODWILL GOLF TOURNAMENT has so successfully lived up to its name in its five years of existence that this year the number of teams competing (60) was half again as many as those participating in 1956. Necessarily, play on the three days of the tourment in December was simultaneous with teams changing courses each day.

Arriving by ship and plane from the United States and Canada, the men and their wives quickly shed several layers of clothing; doffing heavy Winter overcoats and woolen jackets in favor of shorts and shirts. A goodly number of the competitors were out on the fairways within an hour after landing, happily practicing their drives. Their wives, with equal rapidity, headed for Hamilton and its smart shops; there to browse and buy in complete comfort, and at great savings.

The Bermuda tournament is a sort of bonus to golfers whose own courses are forced to shut down during the Winter months due to inclement weather. It enables them to get in some play on such world-famous courses as the Mid-Ocean Club (where President Eisenhower played while here for last March's Big Two Talks with Prime Minister Macmillan); Belmont Manor, and the course at the Riddell's Bay Golf and Country Club. All three are extremely scenic courses with palm trees, exotic flowers and shrubs edging them on one side, and the sea on the other.

More than eighty wives accompanied their golf-playing husbands this year, lending their grace and charm both to on-and-off-course activities. Galleries of loyal spouses were on hand each day to silently cheer on their men-folk. They displayed great stamina and devotion, trudging after that low-flying, hard, white ball. Some carried shooting sticks and put them to good use resting whenever play permitted.

Forty-five of the wives entered a nine-hole Medal competition arranged especially for them, and played over the Castle Harbour Hotel's course in Tucker's Town. Proving the wisdom of the old adage, "If you can't beat 'em; join 'em," the ladies first learned to play the game in self-defense, but soon found they liked it nearly as much as their husbands.

Once again the winners were women whose husbands did not figure in the Goodwill prizes. Mrs. John Cullen of the Springdale Golf Club, Princeton, N. J., turned in a low gross of 48; while Mrs. James Lindsay of the Hillendale Country Club of Phoenix, Md., scored a low net of 31. They received their rewards from Bermuda's Governor, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Woodall at the prize-giving dinner.

The lady golfers gathered for a post-tournament luncheon on an enclosed terrace at the Castle Harbour Hotel. In typically feminine fashion, the talk soon turned from golf to clothes, shopping, and the news of the past year.

A Welcoming Cocktail Party, hosted by the Bermuda Golf Association, was held at the Belmont Manor Hotel in Warwick Parish. Officially opening the social side of the tournament, it also served as a reunion for veterans of previous tournaments, and a pleasant introduction to first-timers.

entertained golfers and their wives at a Government House cocktail party. Gold-crested invitations summoned the visitors to the official residence of Her Majesty's personal representative to this tiny British colony. Elegantly clad women were escorted by a uniformed Bermuda Rifles officer to the Governor's Aide-de-Camp, Capt. Allan S. Rat-tray, who announced them to Governor and Lady Woodall. The receiving line was a veritable fashion show, featuring the latest and smartest evening fashions. Custom requires that ladies wear hats to Government House parties. Happily, this gave the wives an opportunity to show-off cunning little creations of satin, feathers and sequins.

At both official and unofficial Goodwill functions, John Powers' clarinet was very much in evidence. The popular Prentice-Hall Publishing Company executive from Greenwich, Conn., is a member of an amateur Dixieland band. He toted his instrument in a neat leather case from party to party, obligingly serenading on request, and sometimes just because he felt like giving out with a few hot licks.

Naturally enough, the hotels and clubs accommodating the golfers were scenes of much gaiety, particularly the Elbow Beach

1, Roger Smith; 3, Len Mocklow From the left, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Urry of the Deepdale Golf Club, Long Island, N. Surf Club, Belmont Manor Hotel, and the Mid-Ocean and Coral Beach Clubs. Yet with all the partying, the golfers somehow managed to be on the first tee at the required time each morning.

The Berkshire Country Club's foursome maintained their reputation for sartorial splendor by appearing in different outfits on each day of play, and at each party. They got a tiny bit of competition from the ladies of the Hillendale Club, who sported identical white blazers bearing their club insignia.

Personally conducted sightseeing tours were arranged for visiting wives by the women of the Bermuda Golf Association, who donated their time and transportation so that their guests might see the points of interest in Bermuda — all the way from Somerset to St. George's. The perfume factory at Bailey's Bay intrigued the ladies, who followed the various stages of processing passion flowers, jonquils, lilies and jasmine into the delicate fragrances that are captured in bottles.

The ancient town of St. George's, first capital of these islands, attracted many who admired the handsome cedar interior of St. Peter's Church, oldest Anglican church in the Western Hemisphere. They gazed with awe on the famous silver communion service presented to the town's original settlers by William III. And they added their signatures to a distinguished roster that includes such famous personages as Queen Elizabeth II, Sir Anthony Eden and the Duke of Edinburgh.

A few yards away, in King's Square, the stocks and pillory proved a source of great delight to a group of ladies from Philadelphia, who had great fun locking each other in the contraptions, while friends recorded the amusing incident on film.

All sightseeing tours ended at the Riddell's Bay Golf and Country Club, where the visiting ladies were honored guests at a high tea. Tempting fruit tarts, scones, shortcakes, banana breads and several varieties of layer cakes and cookies lured many a woman away from her dieting. Silver coffee and tea services gleamed in the soft light of candles set amongst table decorations of tropical flowers and ferns.

A final cocktail party, held outdoors under the stars at the Elbow Beach Surf Club, preceded the prize-giving dinner at which the victorious Country Club of Harrisburg, Pa., team, and others, received their trophies from the Governor. British, American, Bermudian and Canadian flags formed a symbolic backdrop. A mass of silver bowls, vases and cups, all prizes, were nested on tables decorated with papier mache golf clubs and balls. Glittery holiday decorations added a touch of glamour to the setting.

Amusing speeches followed a gourmet's delight of a dinner. And then, at last, smokers were able to light up after the Queen was toasted by Mr. George Holmes, President of the Bermuda Golf Association. His Excellency, the Governor, offered a toast to the President of the United States. Sir Bayard Dill, Chairman of Bermuda's Trade Development Board, followed with one to "Our Visitors"; replied to by Mr. John Powers for the United States and Mr. Richard Borthwick for Canada.

And so another year of Goodwill and Golf passed on into history; happily to be remembered by all participants. Next year's tournament is eagerly awaited, and competition is keen among the visiting clubs for the coveted invitations.

Representatives of the Hillendale Country Club of Phoenix, Md., proved their loyalty by sporting white blazers with pocket insignias of their club. From the left, Mrs. William Clarke; Mrs. Wilkerson; Mrs. James Lindsay (she was low net in a special tournament for wives); and Mrs. Oscar Camp. Center, from the Springdale Country Club, Prince-

Mr. Douglas Lorie of Palm Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Lorie of London, England, were guests at a recent cocktail party at The Ambassador. Douglas and Julius Lorie are brothers.

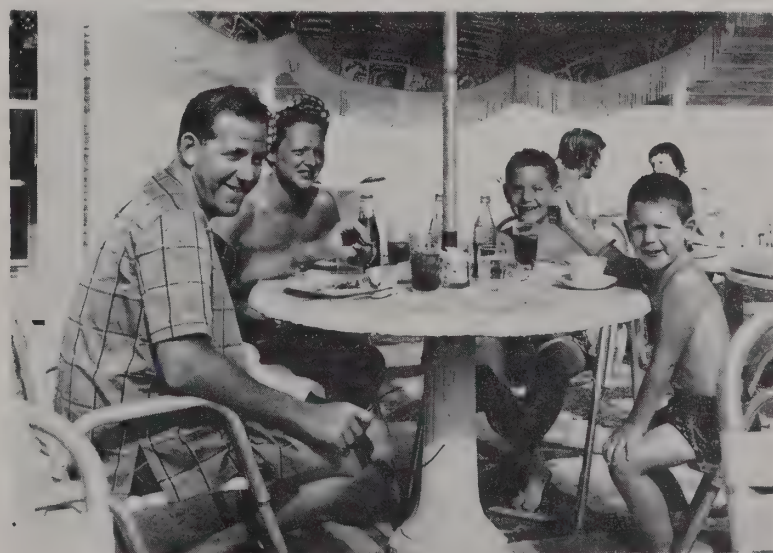

THE AMBASSADOR HOTEL AND VILLAS opened this season with a new face. A new drive-in lobby has been added with a luxurious lounge and several very smart shops adjoining it. The former lobby has been converted into an informal lounge to be used for afternoon tea and other social events.

Sander "Sandy" Weinstock, who was President of the Ambassador for six years until it was purchased last Spring by Helmsley-Spear, Incorporated, was recently appointed Managing Director, which was received with delight by the many residents who have been Winter visitors there since the Ambassador opened.

Among the first to arrive were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Volen of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Levy of Chicago, who have had a penthouse since the Ambassador opened; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Berliss from New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grad of Deal, N. J., Dr. and Mrs. Leon Hermann of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Katz of Scarsdale, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Mendelsohn of Montreal, Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Nachman of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rubinger of Rye, N. Y., who are all season guests.

A group of Baltimore people arrived for the holidays, a custom they have followed for several years. They were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Jacobs and Mr. Simon Benson Offit 3d. Other recent visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. Marne Obernauer from Pittsburgh, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Weil of Lexington, Ky., Dr. and Mrs. Max Goldschmidt and Robert Peltz of New York City, Mrs. Charlotte Ascherman of Shaker Heights, Ohio, and Judge and Mrs. Joseph Perelmutter of New Haven, Conn.

The Embassy Room of the Ambassador is the setting for many cocktail and dinner parties given by the guests of the Ambassador Hotel and Villas, and it is managed by James Brown.

It is a convenient holiday spot for those with friends and activities in Palm Beach and Delray or Boca Raton. Recently, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carlson of Wilmington, Delaware, stayed there, as they have many friends in Palm Beach, and Mr. Carlson played in the pro-amateur golf tournament at Boca Raton. Their daughter, Donna, joined them for part of their holiday. Mr. and Mrs. Dale Morey of Indianapolis were at the Sea Breeze for the same reasons. They brought their infant son with them.

There are a number of permanent guests at the Sea Breeze who spend the Winter there each year. Mrs. Perry Snow of Lowell, Mass., is there again with her son, Richard, a student at Webster-Tufts School in Lake Worth. Also, there again this season is Mrs. A. Barton Cross of "Lilac Hedges," Eatontown, N. J. Her daughter, Mrs. Rosemary Tierney, visited her for two weeks. Mrs. Tierney lives in Providence, R. I.

Ambassador A. L. Karyal of Saudi Arabia arrived from Washington, D. C., for a rest. He spent over a month there early in the season.

Other recent visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Shelley of New Rochelle, N. Y., with their two children. Mrs. John Shaw was a visitor from Macon, Ga.; Mrs. Helen Samson was there from Great Neck, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John Bollinger were there from Knoxville, Tenn., with their daughter, Janet; and Mr. and Mrs. George Factor were at the Sea Breeze from Glencoe, Ill., with their daughter, Patricia.

INDIAN LAKE ESTATES

New Multi-Million Dollar Development Is Rapidly Taking Shape

HIGH IN THE BEAUTIFUL RIDGE SECTION of Florida, a new private city is rapidly taking shape. Visitors who have seen Indian Lake Estates describe it as a country club community without equal in the state. Situated 18 miles southeast of Lake Wales, this multi-million dollar development borders on a 15-square mile lake . . . and has been planned entirely in the country club pattern.

Progress is moving ahead on the quarter-million dollar club house at Indian Lake Estates, which is planned for completion early this Spring. This spacious club house, designed by Carlos B. Schoeppl &

Associates of Miami, will provide the ultimate in modern facilities . . . including a magnificent ballroom. Adjacent to the club house, work is well underway on an 18-hole golf course; and a 9-hole par-3 golf course is now completed and ready for play. Other plans for the club include a swimming pool; tennis, badminton and shuffleboard courts; and additional golf courses. Ample parking area has been provided.

Another unique feature is the 1,100-foot private pier (the longest fresh water pier in Florida) which juts out into the spring-fed lake. Two 200-foot fishing wings at the end of the pier make it T-shaped. In order that this novel boardwalk can be enjoyed both day and night, new fluorescent lights have been installed. A marina to accommodate 2,000 boats, with docking facilities for members, is more than half completed.

One of the important emphases at Indian Lake Estates is the vast beautification and improvement program. Miles of dual lane avenues have been paved and lined with tall, stately palm trees and colorful tropical flowers. New mercury vapor street lights are being installed on the avenues. Fronting the lake is a wide, white sand beach fringed with coconut palms.

All property owners are members of the Indian Lake Club, whose approval is a requisite for purchase. The many recreational facilities are being provided for the exclusive use of club members and their guests. To maintain the complete privacy of the community, there are personnel at gate entrances on duty 24 hours a day.

with a gradually rising elevation from 64 to 115 feet above sea level — Indian Lake Estates has a delightfully dry climate for enjoyable year-round living. The Lake Wales area, in which Indian Lake Estates is located, is well-known for its many attractions . . . such as world-famous Cypress Gardens; the Bok Singing Tower; the Great Masterpiece; and the Black Hills Passion Play, which is given in the huge outdoor amphitheatre at Lake Wales.

She is a student at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., and is seen here with Jack Leckie, lacrosse player from Tufts University who played in the Heart Fund holiday game here.

PALM BEACH TOWERS

THE PALM BEACH TOWERS, which has become a home away from home for many, has been the center of great activity during the early season. Mr. Emmett Coniff, the new manager, has inaugurated Monday evening movies on the terrace, weather permitting, followed by refreshments. Tuesday night is game night with special card rooms set up for anyone who wishes to use them. In addition, there is a new recreation room for ping-pong and the like.

Other activities include a golf driving range which is directed by Don Bogan on the lake front of The Towers. There is also shuffleboard, badminton, and corquet at the Cabana Club, which is under the direction of John Bampffield. However, the two swimming pools continue to be the most prevalent source of recreation.

The Poinciana Room continues to be a favorite rendezvous of members of the Palm Beach cottage colony, as well as guests of The Palm Beach Towers. Al Green has remodeled the Poinciana Room and added a Cantonese kitchen with chefs from Honolulu.

The bar has been enlarged to become a supper club. It is called the Keyboard Lounge because of the dramatic Keyboard Bar which seats about fourteen people who wish to hear good music at close range. Rack plays there nightly, and Al Navarro and his Society Orchestra are in the Poinciana Room with regular featured entertainment which is changed weekly.

Guests of The Palm Beach Towers have had a continual stream of visitors. In fact, Senator and Mrs. Erret Loban Cord have had so many visitors that they have leased a house on Middle Road to accommodate children and grandchildren. MIAMI PREMIERE of "Amahl and the Night Visitors," featuring members of the original NBC television cast, attracted more than 2500 first nighters to the Miami Beach Auditorium.

Also performed twice in Dade County Auditorium, the Gian-Carlo Menotti Christmas classic was presented as part of the regular University of Miami Symphony Orchestra season.

First nighters included Mrs. Claude A.

Renshaw, wife of the Miami Beach city manager and a founding member of the UM Symphony Club.

Also in the audience was Barbara Bitter, wife of Mr. John Bitter, Dean of the School of Music and conductor of the UM Symphony Orchestra. The Bitters translated the German text of Beethoven's incomplete opera "Vesta's Feuer," which had its world premiere on the same program with "Amahl."

Plaudits went to Dr. Gertrude X. Mooney, UM professor of physical education, choreographer for "Amahl," as well as to three of her students for their delightful interpretation of the shepherds' dance.

Symphony Club first vice president Mrs. Warren C. Freeman attended "Amahl" with her husband. Both praised the UM Chorus, directed by Mr. Wilfred Smith, for their performance of the shepherds' songs.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Knowles — he's on the Symphony Club Board of Directors — heard "Amahl" with Mrs. Knowles' son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Philhour and their two sons. Dr. Philhour is a UM drama professor.

First nighters also included Symphony Club members Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Bromberg, Mrs. Eugene Dubois, Mrs. Phillip Head and Mrs. Charles Moon, and Madelon (Mrs. John B.) Reid.

"Amahl," who is 11-year-old Kirk Jordan, and his mother, Mrs. John W. Jordan of Victoria, Texas, before the performance of "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Dr. and Mrs. Arturo DiFilippi chatted during intermission with Symphony Orchestra manager Marie (Mrs. Arnold) Volpe about plans for the forthcoming performances in Miami of "Aida" and "Tosca," featuring Metropolitan Opera stars. Performances are sponsored by the Opera Guild of Greater Miami of which "Dr. D." — as he's known to his University voice students — is artistic director and manager.

Classic elegance in motorcars: The Lincoln Premiere Landau.

THE NEW LINCOLN . . . inspired by the Continental

The one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic

The New Lincoln is a fresh, distinctively new personality in the fine car field.

Immediately, you will see it is the one car that deserves to be called a modern classic . . . styled and crafted in the Continental tradition.

Perhaps—by simply assuming that the fine car you judged best three, four, or even ten years ago still rates top choice—you've been depriving yourself of a great deal of pleasure.

To be sure, we suggest you inspect The New Lincoln—with an open mind and a critical eye.

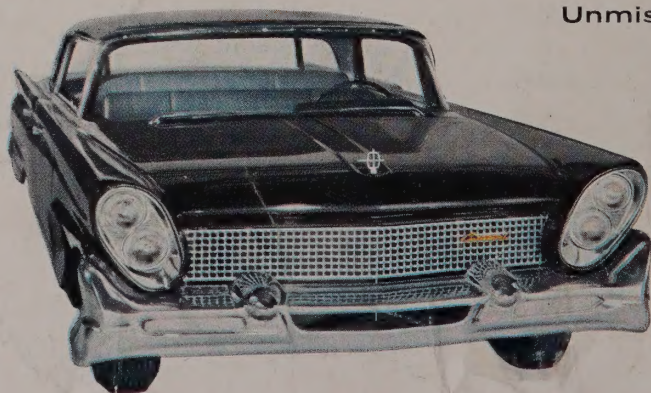

On the road, The New Lincoln lets you re-discover the rare pleasures of fine car motoring.

It has a new, 375-hp. engine that barely whispers, because it is built to a whole new standard of precision tolerances. And thanks to a new single unit body and frame, it has a quietness of ride formerly achieved only through hand-crafting.

Clearly, The New Lincoln is the one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic.

LINCOLN DIVISION, FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Unmistakably . . . the finest in the fine car field
